Pratte Quits

Times News Services

MONTREAL — Yves Pratte resigned today as chairman of Air Canada in the face of what he called "unprecedented charges of alleged incompetence and inefficiency."

Pratte, 50, chairman since December, 1968, outlined his reasons for quitting in a letter to Transport Minister Otto Lang.

In the letter, Pratte said the airline was showing financial improvement in the past year, but "in contrast during the same period, the senior management group of Air Canada has been subjected in Parliament to unprecedented charges of alleged incompetence and inefficiency.

"These attacks ... have been given some aura of credibility by the nature of the response from the government and more especially, by the establishment of the Estey Commission, which for many of us was a clear indication that the government had lost confidence in my stewardship of the airline."

The commission had uncovered "no significant fact" not already known to the government or for which "corrective action had not already been initiated by the company," he claimed.

While admitting the airline had made mistakes, Pratte said the government could have used "more effective and less destructive means to resolve the situation."

In one passage, Pratte apparently anticipated possible criticism in the forthcoming Estey report.

"Whatever the views of the commission, whether they have any validity or not and quite irrespective of the manner in which they might have been arrived at, they are likely to be accorded the degree of infallibility and finality of a judicial pronouncement," Pratte said.

Pratte, a lawyer and longtime friend of Prime Minister Trudeau, said his resignation was effective Monday, Dec. 1.

An Air Canada spokesman said that until a successor is named, his duties will be assumed by the chairman of Canadian National Railways, Air Canada's parent company.

SKY SHOP PROBE DISCUSSED

PRATTE

OTTAWA (CP) — The RCMP today visited the office of cabinet minister Jean Marchand to talk about the so-called Sky Shops affair but what upset Mr. Marchand was that a reporter arrived ahead of the police.

And Prime Minister Trudeau didn't like it either. "I advised Mr Marchand not to talk with the RCMP until I talked to the (RCMP) commissioner," Mr. Trudeau said as he entered the weekly Thursday meeting of cabinet.

Mr. Marchand, minister without portfolio, was ambushed by a group of reporters as he entered cabinet meeting today following reports that his office or his home had been raided by the RCMP.

The Mounties raided the parliamentary office of Senator Louis Giguere (L—Quebec) Nov. 7. Senator Giguere has said he made a $95,000 profit on a $5,000 investment in Sky Shop shares in 1972.

The RCMP came to Mr. Marchand's office at 9 a.m EST today—after making an appointment—and the minister said "we discussed the procedure" of an inquiry. He said he felt the visit was justified because when Senator Giguere became involved in the shares of the firm, Mr. Marchand headed the Quebec wing of the Liberal party.

"I told them I was willing to co-operate and give them all the documents I had." The police did not take any papers with them, he said.

"But what I object to is being received by a reporter at 8 a.m.," said Mr. Marchand. "Where is it (the information) coming from?"

CBC reporter John Drewery was the reporter involved and he said he approached the minister at breakfast to ask about a rumor that his office or home had been, or was to be, raided. "And it was during this conversation that Mr. Marchand told me the RCMP would be coming to his office at nine o'clock."

The early rumors around Ottawa also had Health Minister Marc Lalonde's office involved. But Mr Lalonde said this wasn't true. The RCMP hadn't been at his office nor had they asked to see him.

Solicitor-General Warren Allmand appeared annoyed when approached by reporters who were waiting for Mr. Marchand. Asked whether he knew anything about "raids," Mr Allmand said "If I did, I wouldn't tell you. I have nothing to say."

Mr. Marchand said the conversation with the RCMP was about the procedure to be followed in the investigation. "They were going to talk with the commissioner about it."

And he added, "They (the RCMP) visited other ministers and no one (in the press) was tipped off."

FAITHFUL CUSTOMERS of B.C. Hydro line up in Victoria office to pick up and pay bills despite postal strike which has halted the normal billing system. Hydro is not charging interest on bills unpaid because of the strike. Similar lines are forming at B.C. Telephone offices.

Postal Highway Service For 35 Island Centres

The post office has instituted a highway service on Vancouver Island which will carry mail between the 35 small non-union post offices still open during the nationwide postal strike.

A letter mailed at one of the small offices, such as Brentwood on the Saanich Peninsula, will be delivered to another small office, such as Comox, where it can be picked up or sent out on a rural route.

Letters can also be sent from the small offices to the post offices in Duncan and Courtenay where letter carriers are on the job because enough postal workers have defied union policy and returned to work.

Letters are still not being delivered either to or from the Victoria office, although there are now 13 postal workers sorting mail.

Post offices on Vancouver which are not open include: Victoria, Sidney, Ladysmith, Nanaimo, Port Alberni, Campbell River and Port Hardy.

Meanwhile, the waiting game continued in Ottawa today as both sides in the dispute reviewed their positions on wage clauses and refused comment on when formal bargaining might resume.

Both union and post office spokesmen said behind-the-scenes manoeuvring still was going on in an attempt to bring the two parties back to the bargaining table.

NEW B.C. PARK

The provincial government today announced creation of the largest park in 36 years—the 1.66 million-acre wilderness area on Spatsizi Plateau in northwestern B.C.

Lands, Forests and Water Resources Minister Bob Williams and Recreation and Conservation Minister Jack Radford said the park will be B.C.'s second largest, next to Tweedsmuir Park.

Spatsizi is located about 200 miles north of Smithers east of B.C. Railway right-of-way and has been set aside largely to protect its wildlife habitat.

In the centre of the plateau is 82,000 acres to be known as Gladys Lake Ecological Reserve, which was announced at the same time.

NEWS BRIEFS

Bomb for Fraser

BRISBANE, Australia (UPI) — Postal detectives today defused a letter bomb addressed to Prime Minister Malcolm Fraser. A post office spokesman said mail sorters detected the letter bomb earlier in the day. It was the fourth letter bomb picked up by security men addressed to political leaders in the past eight days.

Pound Sagging

LONDON (Reuter) — The value of the British pound fell to a record low of $2.03 (U.S.) on foreign exchange markets today, weakened by the United States dollar's advance in response to President Ford's offer to help New York City.

Near-Miss Probed

DETROIT (UPI) — The Federal Aviation Administration has been called in to investigate the near collision of two jumbo jets over Lake Michigan Wednesday night that forced one of the planes to make an emergency landing in Detroit.

Workers Protest

LONDON (Reuter) — About 20,000 workers marched through the city Wednesday protesting rising unemployment, now five per cent or 1.2 million people, the highest level since the Second World War.

Japan Paralyzed

TOKYO (UPI) — Hundreds of thousands of government employees halted trains and mail delivery for a second day today and vowed to continue their massive 10-day walkout until they regain the right to strike.

Israeli Raid

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israeli soldiers moved across the border into Lebanon early today, blew up a house, traded fire with Arab guerrillas and brought a prisoner back to Israel for questioning, the Tel Aviv command said.

Bomb in Loo

MIAMI (UPI) — A maintenance supervisor repairing the plumbing in a restroom of a Bahamas Air jetliner at Miami international airport stumbled on an "active" time bomb behind some panelling today. Police disarmed it before it could go off.

RANSOM NOTE . . . AND FINGER

Times News Services

HELSINBORG, Sweden — The parents of a missing woman received a severed finger and a ransom demand for 325,000 kroner (about $78,000) Wednesday, police said.

The 27-year-old victim, daughter of a wealthy farmer in the southwestern city of Helsingborg, was last seen at her dentist's office Tuesday afternoon.

On Wednesday, police said, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bertil Ollson, received a packet containing the index finger.

"The finger matches the general blood group of the girl, Louise Marrstad," a police spokesman said. "The prints have now been sent to the criminal laboratory in Stockholm for examination."

$100,000 Fraud Cited

Times News Services

MONTREAL — A $100,000 sale of seven mobile homes to the consortium building the Olympic village led to a police investigation of alleged kickbacks involving the project, according to the Gazette.

"We are investigating what appears to be the sale of seven mobile homes for exorbitant prices," the newspaper quotes a police source as saying.

The mobile homes have been used as on-site offices by the developers, said the source close to the combined squad of RCMP and Quebec Provincial Police officers who carried out nearly 60 raids Tuesday and Wednesday on the homes and offices of key officials associated with Terrasses Zarolega, the consortium building the Olympic village project.

Police confirmed today they have completed a series of raids in connection with possible fraudulent activities in the construction of the Olympic village.

A spokesman said there was "no question for the moment" of bringing formal charges.

Scare Tactics Blamed In Liberal Shortfalls

VANCOUVER (CP) — The president of the B.C. Liberal party said Wednesday that the Liberals will be unable to contest some ridings in the Dec. 11 provincial election because of what he called "intimidation tactics" by Social Credit supporters.

Pat Graham said "we had to gige up nomination attempts in Kootenay Tuesday night after our fifth nominee was pressured out."

"The same thing happened earlier to the Conservatives there," he said.

"Blackmail and intimidation tactics are in use in other interior ridings as well. We may not be able to field candidates in Shuswap, Nelson-Creston, Cariboo and Peace River South."

Graham said his party's last potential candidate for the Kootenay riding was told by "a representative of the business community" that if he ran in the election, his new insurance business would be bankrupt within three months.

"This kind of fear campaign by Socreds and their backers, afraid the anti-NDP vote will split, is more widespread than many people realize," Graham said.

"In effect, both Liberal and Conservative supporters in some ridings are being disenfranchised by threats of retaliation and even violence. You can't be too hard on a man who is simply afraid to risk the livelihood of himself and his family."

FROMME TO FIGHT GUILTY VERDICT

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Lynette Squeaky Fromme, who dedicated her life to mass murderer Charles Manson, was found guilty of attempting to kill President Ford — a conviction that may send her to prison for life.

Fromme, who was absent from the courtroom for the verdict as she was much of her trial, was found guilty late Wednesday night by a jury of eight women and four men which deliberated more than 19 hours. Fromme's lawyer said he will appeal the conviction.

The 27-year-old Miss Fromme is the first person ever convicted of attempting to assassinate a U.S. president. She was prosecuted under a special law enacted after the 1963 assassination of President John Kennedy.

Provinces Balk At Inflation Talks

Times News Services

OTTAWA — The federal provincial finance ministers' conference ended Wednesday without reaching accord on the form federal-provincial agreements to fight inflation will take.

Ontario Finance Minister Darcy McKeough said "all the provinces want to see the regulations which will accompany the anti-inflation bill before they sign on the dotted line."

One of the major stumbling blocks to an agreement appeared to be the term of such agreements. Several provinces indicated they would be willing to go along with the program for a year or 18 months, but were unwilling to agree to the three years the federal government wants.

Another area of disagreement centred on whether the provincial public services would come under federal or provincial regulation.

Finance Minister Donald Macdonald said "we would prefer to have the provincial public sectors under federal jurisdiction to insure as much national uniformity as possible."

Despite the lack of general agreement, Macdonald said some agreements were reached on specific issues.

The provinces agreed they would co-operate fully with the federal Anti-Inflation Board in monitoring provincial marketing boards, Macdonald said.

There was also a general agreement that each province should have some form of rent controls, he said.

Agreement was also reached that it will be up to the federal government to determine whether there will be a surtax or excessive increases in professional incomes, he noted.

Most Retired Canadians Below Poverty Line

OTTAWA (CP) — More than half of retired Canadians live below the poverty line, says a report on retirement compiled by the Canadian Council on Social Development.

The council, an independent organization which defines poverty as an annual income of $7,028 or lower for a family of four, suggests that better government pension benefits are the best answer to the problem.

Private pension plans are generally inadequate and existing retirement policies reflect a drift — "a sustained ad hocery" — at a time when the proportion of retired citizens is growing, the report argues.

"Over one-half of all those over 65 have incomes which are regarded as below the poverty line, and are eligible for some assistance through the federal guaranteed income supplement scheme.

"The obvious message is that Canadians lack adequate income security for their retirement years."

The report says benefits available through the Canada and Quebec pension plans have been deliberately held down to allow private pensions to flourish.

"It has been assumed that the private pension system is capable of working effectively . . . Private pension schemes have not provided adequate pensions."

As recently as 1970, the last year of complete statistics, "only 40 per cent of the work force was covered by private pensions."

Of 2.8 million persons covered, 1.8 million were employed by government or crown corporations.

"In other words, almost 70 per cent of those employed by private companies are not receiving coverage."

"As each layer has been found inadequate, a further layer has been added —only in its turn to be found inadequate."

The system now has six layers, it says — private pensions, personal savings, government old-age pensions, the Canada and Quebec pension plans, federal old-age pension supplements and provincial supplements.

The Canada and Quebec plans should be given the central role in the over-all pension system, it argues. They are popular, straightforward, universal, portable, secure, looked upon as faithful friends by many workers, and have the "tremendous advantage" of being indexed upward with the cost of living, the report says.

Gomes Puts Lid On Lisbon Pot

LISBON (AP) — President Francisco da Costa Gomes ordered troop reinforcements to strategic points in and around Lisbon today to prevent any backlash following an abortive Portuguese coup.

Fighter planes made periodic rooftop passes over the city during the morning, but the reason for the flights was not clear. No incidents were reported.

The country was generally calm after the attempted coup that began early Tuesday when men from a disbanded paratroop regiment seized four air force installations around Lisbon.

The paratroops surrendered the last of the four bases late Wednesday when it became obvious the coup had failed.

A communique from the armed forces general staff that Costa Gomes heads, said today the uprising was only "the initial pretext" for a "counter-revolutionary coup attempt."

The statement said workers and troops in the rest of the country gave "no significant support to the politico-military adventure that was carried out in an attempt to undermine the advance toward socialism that the governing authorities are trying to carry out."

Costa Gomes congratulated the people of the south as well as those of the more conservative north on "their show of political maturity in not allowing themselves to be drawn into Utopian manipulation."

LABOR CHIEFTAINS BRACED FOR JAIL

CALGARY (CP) — Canadian Labor Congress leaders are prepared to go to jail in their battle aginst the federal anti-inflation bill, a CLC spokesman said Wednesday.

Julien Major, CLC vice-president, said the proposed wage and price control program is a calculated move by the government to fight inflatin on the backs of all working men and women across the country.

The announcement was applauded by about 300 union leaders at a Southern Alberta conference jointly sponsored by the CLC and the Alberta Federation of Labor.

Major attacked the government's restraint program as highly inequitable since it will clamp down on wages without a corresponding restraint on prices. The controls are also an attack on free collective bargaining, he said.

Juan Carlos Prays for Guidance

MADRID (UPI) — King Juan Carlos today prayed for divine guidance in a solemn religious service, then listened impassively to the Archbishop of Madrid who urged him to lead Spain toward democracy.

At the same time police broke up a demonstration by several thousand persons demanding freedom for political prisoners. According to unconfirmed reports, a number of protestors were injured or detained.

It was the second incident involving Spain's tough security police in less than 12 hours. Several newsmen were beaten by police at Madrid Airport Wednesday night while covering the arrival of foreign dignitaries.

LOUGHEED: FINAL NO

EDMONTON (CP) — Premier Peter Lougheed of Alberta Wednesday reiterated, in possibly the strongest terms to date, that he will not seek the leadership of the federal Progressive Conservative party.

The premier, in a prepared statement, said he will not even accept a so-called draft for the leadership at the party convention next February.

"As a matter of personal integrity and public credibility, I am firmly committed to completing my responsibilities to the people of Alberta," he said.

The premier's statement read:

"Over the last 15 months I have been asked a number of times whether or not I would seek the federal leadership of the Progressive Conservative party. On each occasion I have consistently replied that I would not and could not do so at this time.

"In order to discourage any further efforts to attempt to convince me to alter my position, I should also state that in the very unlikely event of a so-called 'draft' that I would not accept such an approach."

Man Pleads Guilty To 4 Drug Counts

Peter Gaw, 2655 Belmont, had bail set at $5,000 and his case remanded to Dec. 19 for sentence.

He pleaded guilty to trafficking in MDA on Oct. 4 and to possession of MDA, hashish and marijuana on Nov. 18.

Court was told that Gaw sold 17 grams of MDA to undercover officers at his house last month. Drug squad members found 27 capsules of MDA at his home nine days ago. A vial of liquid hashish and a small amount of marijuana was also found by police.

Court was also told Gaw was convicted of break-in and theft at Port Hardy earlier this year.

to what issues were being reviewed by the parties.

Mail delivery was extended Wednesday to Vanderhoof, Burns Lake and Terrace on a three-times-a-week basis, Kamloops postal officials said. Four Prince george inside postal workers have returned to work. Eleven Kamloops inside workers are working and there is daily delivery.

For an extra charge of $2 per parcel, home delivery will be made in Vancouver, New Westminster, Kamloops, Prince George, Penticton, Kelowna, Vernon, Edmonton, aClgary, Saskatoon, Regina and Winnipeg.

"It occured to us that with the mail strike going on and people lining up for half an hour or longer at the depots waiting to pick up their parcels that would be a good idea" says Floyd Mogen, Greyhound vice-president in Calgary.

Mogen said arrangements have been made with local delivery companies in these cities for them to pick up Christmas parcels and deliver to homes.

"The parcels should be prepaid. We are just passing along the cost of home delivery. We hope it will not only be convenient for our customers but also be good for the boys at the depots."

Mail delivery will resume in Calgary Friday but it is not known how long it will last, Postmaster allan Shred said today.

He said inside workers who have crossed the picket lines have processed enough mail and parcels to warrant calling back letter carriers to work Friday.

Wednesday, about 50 of Calgary's 700 inside workers reported for work. A similar number was expected today.

"However, it will be a day-to-day decision," Shred said. "We hope there will be enough mail sorted for letter carriers to work on Monday, but we don't know.

Jaywalkers' Haven

Pedestrians can legally walk down the middle of Oak Bay Avenue against the flow of traffic, a surprised Oak Bay council committee was told Wednesday night.

Municipal engineer Geoff White said there is no anti-jaywalking bylaw in Oak Bay, as there is downtown, so people have a right to wander on the roads.

Ald. Doug McLelland suggested "perhaps we need a new bylaw."

The point arose in streets and traffic section of B Committee discussion on a proposed bikeway route from downtown to the University of Victoria.

The committee agreed to recommend to council that it endorse the principle of putting in a six-foot-wide concrete bicycle path parallel to the sidewalk on Henderson Road, on municipal property.

The committee also agreed, if council concurs with the bicycle pathway idea, that application be made to the provincial government's Capital Improvement District Commission for the $48,000 cost.

Cold, dry air gave clear skies overnight to most B.C. areas and allowed generally below freezing temperatures, with coldest temperatures in the central interior where Prince George reached minus 23. Patches of cloud persisted in parts of southern B.C. though keeping temepratures near or just above freezing in southwestern B.C. and the southern Okanagan. Most of the province will be sunny but cool today.

Cloud and precipitation will spread to the B.C. north coast tonight with a storm from the Gulf of Alaska. The system will move southeastward down the coast with only patchy cloud and a little snow spreading across the coast range into the western interior. Cloud will reach the lower mainland late Friday but most of the rain with the system will remain along the outer coast.

COMMUNITY NEWS ROUND-UP

A guild of artists in the Colwood, Langford and Metchosin areas was formed last week in a meeting at the Juan de Fuca Curling Club. It's headed by Jill Mallett and already has 67 members who want a focal point for the many artists there.

They plan to hold workshops so they can share their knowledge about their various crafts, and they'll also have public displays

One display is being planned for this Friday and Saturday at the Colwood Community Hall where Jill says the arttists will really be crowded in because of the good response she has had. Display times will be 6:30 to 10 p.m. Friday and 1 to 5 p.m. Saturday

The group is called the JUAN D EFUCA ARTS AND CRAFTS GUILD, and members want to get in touch with people in the Saanich arts and crafts guild they hear has been operating for several years. Anyone who can help is urged to get in touch with Jil .

Another meeting of Western Community residents is planned for Saturday as a follow-up to the successful one last weekend at Belmont-Fisher Secondary School, 3067 Jacklin Road.

Capital Region planner Peter Hammer said this week the Colwood, Langford and Metchosin citizens who went to the meeting gav him and his staff interesting ideas for the community plan.

This weekend's workshop will also be at the school, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., and some topics discussed will be transportation, environment, recreation, uplands, residential planning and employment opportunities in the area's future.

Two Toronto employees were in James Bay last week to talk to members of the JAMES BAY' PROJECT there. Project co-ordinator Bob Dill told the Times Toronto Mayor David Crombie has divided the city into wards in anticipation of breaking down the distribution of health and social services there, as is being done in James Bay. Bob says Toronto people have looked all over North America for neighborhood projects they can take yips from, and zeroed in on James Bay as ideal in many ways. "They were really impressed by what's going on," said Bob.

James Bay Project workers including supervisor Bob Leach, co-ordinator Bob Dill, community worker Lorne de Girolamo, physician Derek Carroll, and nurse Ann Boldt are moving the whole operation from their Douglas Street office over to James Bay Square in the next two weeks, too.

The whole project is going to 425 Simcoe — and they all hope that will be permanent headquarters.

GETTING SET for the Community Services Fair Saturday are, left to right: Rhoda Kaellis, Ray Houston and Jim Beaubien working on signs in the community video office. A few of the more than 60 groups that will be at St. John's Anglican Church, 1611 Quadra, from 1 to 4 p.m. to meet the public are the John Howard Society, Birthright, Silver Threads, Peace Research Institute, Birth Control Clinic, B.C. Heart Foundation and Children's International Summer Village.

Fairfield Community Association will hold a Victoria riding all-candidates meeting at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 3 in the basement of the Fairfield United Church. The candidates will each speak for five minutes on issues pertaining to the Fairfield area, followed by a general question period. Coffee will be served.

Wildlife Preservation Stressed

Citizen groups attending a meeting of the Federal-Provincial Committee for Humane Trapping were told Wednesday they should not lose sight of the "basic issue" in their fight for more humane trapping methods for animals.

Bill Otway, executive director of the B.C. Wildlife Federation, said a humane trap would serve no useful purpose if "there are no animals left to trap."

"Development of more humane trapping systems as soon as possible is most important," he said. "But let us not forget the basic issue is the preservation of our wildlife."

He said he wished there was more public pressure to force all levels of government to consider the needs of wildlife.

Federal government austerity programs have cut back fisheries and wildlife budgets, he said.

"It makes no sense when you consider the government is spending $500 million on a bilingual program."

The meeting was attended by representatives of humane and conservation societies which want want the leg-hold trap banned because animals captured in its steel grip die of slow starvation.

The committee, formed 18 months ago to find and introduce more humane trapping systems, met to inform public organizations of its progress.

John Brubacher, director of the Ontario Commercial Fish and Fur Branch, said the committee is seeking assistance from scientific institutions and companies involved in scientific research.

Mrs. Bunty Clements, president of the Association for the Protection of Fur-bearing Animals, said the committee should speed up its work in testing new devices.

She noted that one trapper submitted a trapping device for testing 18 months ago and is still waiting to hear from the committee.

She urged the committee to set up new communication between the committee and the inventors who have submitted traps.

The Mackasey Oracle

What is Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey doing — trying to get Canada's mail moving again, or making grandstand speeches about the country's alleged capitulation to unionism and the slow slide down the slippery slope?

Unless he has abandoned all hope of a negotiated settlement with the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, and the government plans either to legislate them back to work soon or let their strike continue (until Easter, according to the postmaster-general, or kingdom come, as the prime minister says), Mackasey seems somewhat rash in his remarks.

In swinging the cudgels all about him, Mackasey has painted a picture of Canadian society much darker, at least in some respects, than it actually is. He charged labor unions with being unpatriotic and on a collision course with society. Labor statesmen are extinct today, he said, and unions have declared war against the rest of society.

Like all generalizations (even this one) Mackasey's broad indictment makes good reading. But do the facts support his gloomy pessimism? There are still labor statesmen around. One whose name should have been mentioned by Mackasey (though the man himself would deny it) is Jack Munro, president of the International Woodworkers of America in B.C., who showed courageous leadership —and good sense—this year when he managed to keep a fractious union on the job as long as possible and kept negotiating.

Sure, there are irresponsible labor unions and labor leaders. There are also irresponsible politicians who offer simplistic solutions to complex problems, and who try to paint everything in stark, contrasting black and white.

Mackasey says the economy suffers from a new disease. No longer is unemployment a self-balancing check on out-of-line wage settlements. He did not add that the federal government's overly generous unemployment insurance scheme (going to $133 a week benefits as of Jan. 1, more than the wages earned by many people at the Unemployment Insurance Commission itself) probably is the main factor in this development.

Clearly, all the praise Mackasey has received in the last five weeks (loudest from the redneck fringes) for his tough stand against the CUPW seems to have made him believe in his own powers of prediction. His thoughts are one man's opinion, that's all.

Every speech he makes like this one, however, does not bring the post office any closer to a settlement, which we think should be the postmaster-general's main goal. Instead, he seems bent on discrediting the CUPW's leadership in front of the union membership — a tactic which has failed to bring more than 15 per cent (five per cent, according to the CUPW) of the strikers back to work.

Perhaps if Mackasey lowered his voice, or got out of the negotiations — since his presence at the bargaining table seems to inflame union leaders — the post office might be able to move closer, quietly, to a settlement.

Taking Stock

The announcement this week by a Vancouver brokerage house that it plans to move its head office to Alberta if the New Democratic Party is re-elected next month is the kind of threat that, ironically, will probably help the NDP.

This election campaign hasn't yet seen the likes of the much-publicized stunt in Quebec in its 1970 provincial election, when a Brink's armored truck pulled out of Montreal's financial district loaded with share certificates and other securities and drove the 300 miles to safe, non-separatist Bay Street.

It was supposed to indicate to scared Quebeckers that if the Parti Quebecois got in, then investors and financiers would suddenly pull out of the province.

The warning earlier this week from Peter Brown of Canarim Investment Corp. we suppose was intended to serve the same purpose.

He claimed the government has scared capital away from the stock market — an assertion which is questionable, at least. Other stock markets in North America in the past couple of years seem to have suffered through the same kind of slump. Investors just weren't getting an adequate return. Witness the boom in coins and stamps, antiques and silver and commodities trading.

Federal wage and price controls, the dispute over resources taxation between Ottawa and the provinces, an annual inflation rate of 12 per cent which no dividend can match — all these have probably affected the Vancouver stock exchange as much or more than any provincial administration.

". . . I asked Santa for a new doll but to keep my self-assessment at an all-time high I'll probably wind up with a 'cr ummy truck . . ."

DAVID MACDONALD

Devolution—Sticky Question

LONDON — Prime Minister Harold Wilson's decision to delay for a year introduction of legislation to provide Scottish and Welsh assemblies may cost him dearly.

Labor party managers in London concede there is renewed danger of deterioration of support in 36 of Labor's 40 seats in which the Scottish National Party ran second in the October, 1974, general election.

But they say the prime minister had no choice but to delay. In Westminster voting terms they are right.

The delay in implementing devolution (the term for granting limited independence to Scotland and Wales), admitted reluctantly by Wilson during the debate on the speech from the throne in typically devious Wilsonian fashion, has enraged the Scottish and Welsh nationalists and drawn vows to bring down the government at the earliest opportunity.

Split Opposition

Much of this threat, however, is hot air. Wilson governs with a majority of one but his apparent vulnerability is almost non-existent. His opposition is split five ways.

The divergencies among his political opponents outweigh their united strength. Time and again he gets huge majorities in House of Commons votes.

The 11 Scottish Nationalist members plus the three Plaid Cymru members from Wales could provide a useful tool for Margaret Thatcher's Conservatives, who are in a very poor straits to form a government should there be a snap election.

All that really came out of this year's Conservative annual conference was a series of skilful compromises to paper over very real differences on fundamental policies, mainly economic ones. It was underlined by the undistinguished speeches that Thatcher's shadow cabinet is weak.

It would appear that the Liberal party, with its 13 members, would be a good bet to help the Scottish and Welsh nationalists, considering its traditional stand in favor of devolution.

All indications are, however, that the Liberal tide has gone into reverse in the country and there would have to be a change in this before the Liberals would seriously consider forcing an early election.

The 12 Unionist representatives from Ulster are most unlikely to support people who favor the breakup of the United Kingdom, unless there is some clear benefit to Ulster from an election.

Wilson will experience some extra-parliamentary harassment from angry nationalists but his political survival is hardly at stake.

But the long-term problem is the political hay that can be made by nationalists, particularly in Scotland.

How this will be done is not hard to divine.

The prime minister said no legislation would be introduced before next November to allow for "an extended debate" both in parliament and in the country.

Back in 1969, when he was prime minister, Wilson set up a royal commission to examine devolution.

When the Kilbrandon commission report was published in 1973 by Edward Heath's Conservative government, it had held exhaustive hearings and been the subject of much public debate.

It recommended greater self-government for Scotland and Wales.

This report was quietly forgotten by both the Labor and Conservative parties until the stunning electoral victories of the Scottish National Party in the February and October, 1974, general elections.

Commitments to different types of local assemblies then appeared in both Labor and Conservative election manifestos.

Devolution of power from Westminster and Whitehall has been the subject of feverish debate in Scotland for two years, less so in Wales. In England, ordinary people are uninterested in the subject and politicians do not understand it.

An elaborate white paper is to be published in a few days giving the government's general proposals on devolution, from which legislation was originally to have been framed during this coming Parliamentary session.

Nationalists, therefore, will claim government perfidy. And the Conservatives will not escape blame because Thatcher stated clearly in the throne speech debate that delay in bringing in legislation was fine with her and her party — a hasty reaction she may come to regret.

Creeping Separatism

The reason for the year's delay is that Wilson found out that his whips could not guarantee enough support among English Labor backbenchers to pass the legislation. And Thatcher also has discovered a substantial body of English Tory backbenchers bitterly opposed to what they see as creeping separatism.

Wilson has had to trade probable political damage to his party in Scotland in coming months against personal humiliation in backbench rebellions against devolution legislation.

Edward Short, government house leader, summed up the political seriousness of the devolution issue when he said:

"The one thing you cannot do is nothing, at any rate in Scotland. I believe quite firmly and sincerely that, if we do not do this sensibly in Scotland, then Scotland will be a separate independence (country) within a decade. It has gone so far that there is no going back."

BRUCE HUTCHISON

Strange Washington Allegory

WASHINGTON — From a bench in Lafayette Square the visiting Canadian can see with his eyes a strange spectacle and, with his imagination, an allegory even stranger, involving every human creature on earth.

The White House glows in the hot, unseasonable November sunshine. To the south the pointed spire of George Washington's monument stands clean and regnant against the steel-blue autumn sky. To the east a gilded Jefferson watches the Potomac from under his marble dome and to the west a stone Lincoln broods, in his Greek temple. Near the end of a great people's second century these mighty symbols tell us much about our current affairs and conceal more.

Washington, the simple squire of Virginia, fought the revolutionary war that built the nation in the first place. Jefferson, the man of political genius, codified its ideals and created a myth stronger than its constitution. Lincoln, noblest of all Americans, saved the union from dismemberment.

But who has replaced the giants in our time? Who inhabits the White House today beside the symbols in a new kind of crisis unimaginable to his predecessors? By almost unbelievable chance and without benefit of election, the inhabitant is an honest, groping, small-town politician, a nice guy from Grand Rapids, Mich., "good old Jerry Ford," everybody's friend, nobody's hero.

Same Conundrum

Between Washington and Ford it has been a long journey of 200 years. But the journey, with its downhill slide to Watergate, is only a beginning. Now a president ill-prepared for his task finds the nation again confronting, on the eve of its bicentennial year, the same philosophical conundrum that brought it to life. The course of human events, in Jefferson's ringing declaration, has run full circle. The society has changed beyond belief. Its original assumption and wild surmise have not.

Probably Ford has no time to consider these intangibles in the rush of daily business but a penetrating British observer, foresaw his dilemma long ago. Lord Bryce could have been thinking of contemporary politics when he wrote that great men are seldom elected president of the United States because "the ordinary American voter does not object to mediocrity."

Here, and everywhere, it is the age of political mediocrity, the drought cycle of greatness, when the quiet courage of a Washington, the genius of a Jefferson and the mystical impulse of a Lincoln are most needed.

The gap between talent and necessity yawns deep. In the person of Ford — beleaguered in his White House, assailed by the impatient left and the savage right of politics, struggling desparately to win election, working hard, talking endlessly but mastering no basic problem — the autumn allegory is vivid and rather frightening. But if not the present leader, who can guide the nation safely through the next presidential term, undoubtedly the most critical of modern times?

No such leader has yet apeared. No man has demonstrated his fitness for a task almost beyond human nature (though a man of that size, another potential Harry Truman, may be hidden among the multitude of eager candidates). For the moment, perhaps only for the moment, a foreigner may guess that the nation must solve the problems of its second century despite its politicians. Those problems already are racing far ahead of the solutions, the leaders limping behind the led, the promises dwarfing all the realities, a bewildered people awaiting the man who can reinvoke the spirit of 1776.

WASHINGTON

This is equally true, of course, in all the free nations, notably true in Canada where, to tell the truth, we have made a worse mess of our business and our leadership than our neighbors have made of theirs.

But what makes President Ford's task basically different from that of any other man who has lived in the elegant prison of the White House? Amid all the confusion and clamor of these days three differences, at least, are legible.

First, the brief nuclear hegemony of the United States after the last world war, the undeclared, unwanted and unnatural American empire founded on the unlikely spot of Hiroshima has ended in the swamp of Vietnam. The nation now understands that in its still powerful but altered status it must work with lesser nations, even with its communist adversaries, in the literally unique, interdependent problems exempting none of them. This new understanding, the antithesis of old-time isolationism, is the strongest ray of light in a dark season.

Second, the present state of the American economy, heart of the entire world economy, is improving, a recovery of sorts is under way for worldwide gain, but no long-term economic question has been answered or even generally understood. Nothing has been done to cure the disease of repeated boom and bust. The riddle of simultaneous inflation and unemployment, yielding to no known rules, remains unbroken. The disorder of public finance spreads its contagion abroad and cannot continue much longer without eventual ruin but its end is not yet in sight.

Third, and comprehending all the other riddles, the nation cannot enjoy in its third century anything like the easy ways, the prodigal waste, the ever-rising affluence and unlimited living standards of the past. That hope, the material and secondary aspect of the American Dream, is finished like the empire.

Need Tough Guys

In the election year of 1976, a year peculiarly confused and unpredictable, no party or candidate is likely to mention these facts or propose the painful remedies that can be delayed for a little while but not for long. Until the polls close next November the facts will be blurred, the impossible promises maintained as a genial folkway, a quadrennial make-believe.

Then the elected president, whoever he may be, will have to face the mathematically obvious prospects and no nation, Canada least of all, can escape his decisions, for better or worse. But a still larger question remains unanswered and the Canadian who has pondered the symbols of Washington can usefully observe some others of earlier date and greater moment in Philadelphia.

There the first century was launched not by nice guys but by men of opposite type, in distance and mind, from Ford. And whatever he or his rivals may say about the future, it does not lead back to the cosy streets of Grand Rapids, Mich. On a rough, unmapped road, it leads back to the beginning.

Tiffin Replies

In a recent article in your paper entitled Mobile Home Rules Unfair to Operators, it is asserted that I am "absolutely behind" one recommendation of the Audain commission that real estate agents be the exclusive sellers of used mobile homes.

Actually our submission to the Audain commission requested mobile home park owners be prohibited from arbitrarily demanding a fee of 10 per cent to 14 per cent when an owner of a mobile home in his park sells his own home directly to the purchaser. We feel the "fee" itself is exhorbitant and that the landlord has no right or justification for demanding it unless the mobile home-owner has specifically asked him to be his agent in the selling of his home. We are not of the opinion that sales should be restricted only to realtors. In some instances the park owner could more readily effect a sale. It would therefore be untrue that I am "absolutely behind" real estate agents being exclusive agents for the selling of mobile homes.

We recognize that whoever is the agent in selling the home, the park owner should retain the privilege of approving or disapproving the new tenant in his park. The new regulations will, hopefully, prohibit him from "blocking" a sale by refusing new owner-tenants admission to his park if the new owner-tenants are reputable people able to pay the park rent. In one case an owner listed his home with a real estate agent, paid the agent a seven-per-cent commission, and was then confronted with a demand from the park owner that he also be paid a 10-per-cent commission. We are "absolutely behind" regulations banning such unscrupulous practices. — Victor R. Tiffin, President, Active Mobile Home Owners Association.

Socialist Nightmare

Allow me to present to you and your readers, my view on the coming vote issue:

Another ugly feature of socialism is, in addition to placing ignorant government regulations between us and our problems it makes us socialists. That is, less productive and more helpless.

So, let's vote B.C. out of the socialist nightmare, regain confidence, pride, ambition, and start living again before we're all parading beggars. — J. A. Beaucher, 5232 Rambler Road.

Thinking About Bill

I read in the newspapers that Bill Bennett says he's going to impose a freeze on government spending if he's elected.

I am an old age pensioner who also receives Mincome. If Bill Bennett is elected, does this mean he won't increase Mincome payments during the freeze on government spending? I'm worried about Mincome's future if the Socreds are elected.

Mr. Bennett has been saying many things during this campaign and I am also worried that he will end the land commission that protects our farmland.

I, for one, think Bill Bennett just promises whatever comes into his head and he doesn't think what his actions would mean to the old age pensioners and the other people in this province.

I've been thinking about him and I don't like what I see. — Lil Hallberg, 401—566 Simcoe Street.

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of November 27, 1915

Ald. Robert Burns McMicking, one of the last survivors of the great overland trek of 1862 through central British Columbia, one of Victoria's best known citizens and a pioneer of telephone enterprise in B.C. died early this morning at his Kingston Street home. He was born in 1843 in Welland County, Ont., and at the age of 13 began to study electricity. He later became a telegraph operator. In 1862, he joined a party of 150 Ontario residents who were going to the Cariboo mines of B.C. The expedition crossed the prairies in Red River carts from Fort Garry — now Winnipeg — and changed these for pack horses at Fort Edmonton. The group divided at Tete Jaune Cache, McMicking going with the larger group down the Fraser River rapids, when five men were drowned. In 1878, he received the first two telephones imported into the province.

The UN Needs A New Messiah

By MAX WILDE
London Observer

There are quite a few Jeremiahs, particularly in the more advanced Western countries, who believe that the United Nations is going the way of the League of Nations: first it will become impotent and finally vanish altogether in a welter of discord, or even war.

But there is a very simple reason why this is not at all likely. The two super-powers, the United States and the Soviet Union, and the third superpower in the making, China, cannot afford to withdraw from the UN or even seriously damage it because this would create a power vacuum which would immediately be filled by their opponents. True, the superpowers grumble a lot and occasionally withhold funds from projects of which they disapprove or even suspend payment of mandatory contributions to the regular budgets of some of the UN specialized agencies, but, in the end, these quarrels get patched up and there is at least a tacit admission that they must learn to live together.

However, there is no denying that the United Nations is in a crisis situation. This is well summed up in the opening statement of a proposal entitled "A New United Nations Structure for Global Economic Cooperation" which is now under discussion by the General Assembly: "In its thirtieth anniversary year the United Nations has reached a turning point. In one direction lies the prospect of a new capacity to cope with the central issues facing mankind in the decisive last quarter of the twentieth century. In the other direction lies the danger of a decline in the effectiveness of the United Nations."

Had Elbow Room

The crux of the matter is that the United Nations will have to create a dynamic of its own and become greater than the sum of its parts (i.e. its 140 members) as it has done only once before — and then only for a short period. This was during the Congo crisis in the early 1960s when the then Secretary-General, Dag Hammarskjold, managed, largely because of disagreements among members states, to achieve enough elbow room to carry out a policy which was recognizably a United Nations policy.

The seventh Special Session, which preceded the current General Assembly, and which was called to discuss the prevailing global economic imbalance, seems to have been largely devoted to manoeuvring for position. Both sides pulled their punches somewhat but, even so, the long list of reservations attached by the United States to the final statement of the session, including the repudiation of the very concept of a New International Economic Order as a mere "slogan," is a clear indication that there are battles to come, especially in forthcoming meetings of the UN Conference on Trade and Development.

Challenges Unmet

The 25 experts who produced the proposal for a new Structure for Global Economic Cooperation point out that the emphasis of UN activities has become more and more focused on economic and social problems: at least four-fifths of the approximately $1.5 billion now spent each year by the UN system, exclusive of its international financial institutions, is devoted to these. In addition, the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund are making available over $5 billion in medium- and long-term loans to member countries.

It is all too evident that even this level of activity is not adequate to meet fully the challenges of our times, although it is now widely accepted that these can only be met through multilateral action and that a logical place for this is the UN system. "Yet," says the experts, "it is a paradox that at the very moment when this recognition is becoming widespread there are growing doubts about the capacity of the UN system as an instrument to meet these challenges."

The experts point out that the expenditures of the United Nations system during the past three decades have amounted to 0.4 per cent of the total Gross National Product of member states in the single year of 1974, and that current United Nations' expenditures barely equal the sum spent on armaments by members in only 36 hours. They add: "The priorities of members clearly need to be redirected towards development."

Certainly structural change is needed, they say, but they add: "We wish to emphasize at the outset that no amount of restructuring can replace the political will of member states to discharge their obligations under Article 56 of the Charter to 'take joint and separate action in cooperation with the organization for the achievement of . . . higher standards of living, full employment, and conditions of economic and social progress and development.'"

HAMMARSKJOLD
. . . where's successor?

The experts further emphasized that most of the structural deficiencies of the UN are the result of actions by its member states and their correction will require a change of heart on the part of the same states: "Every serious reform proposal (as opposed to marginal proposals that amount to mere "tinkering") is bound to cut across someone's vested interest in the status quo."

The experts also point to the "fragmentation of effort" in the UN system. During the past decade, hardly a year has gone by without the establishment of one or two new United Nations bodies. Today, the system embraces 12 organizations and operational programs, five regional commissions, 14 specialized agencies and the International Atomic Energy Agency, a multiplicity of special funds, and various semi-autonomous bodies within the central secretariat, not to mention several hundred inter-governmental committees, coordinating bodies and ad hoc groups.

Cynics often suggest that the fragmentation of the UN system was deliberately contrived and encouraged by certain member states in order not to give the UN itself, or any other UN body, too great a concentration of power.

The present structure is well summarized in the current issue of the UN publication Development Forum which explains that, apart from the Security Council, which deals principally with political problems, the UN system is best envisaged as a series of concentric circles. At the centre is the General Assembly. Under it, the Economic and Social Council presides over a large number of subordinate bodies, served by the Department of Economic and Social Affairs.

Specialized Agencies

Moving away from the innermost circle, but still remaining within the orbit of the UN itself, are such semi-autonomous organizations as the UN Development Program, the UN Conference on Trade and Development, the UN Industrial Development Organization and the UN Environment Program. All these are part of the UN proper, but have their own governing bodies and secretariats.

In the third and outer circle are the specialized agencies. These have their own constitutions, ratified by international treaty among member nations. Some, like the Universal Postal Union, the World Meteorological Organization and the International Labour Office pre-date the United Nations. Financial institutions like the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank also form part of the specialized agency system but operate under statutes that differ substantially from those of other member organizations.

The proposals now under discussion advocate the creation of a United Nations Development Authority (note the word "Authority") under a Director-General for Development and International Economic Cooperation, who would be second in rank only to the secretary-general, in order to strengthen the Secretariat to carry out its economic functions. And here, perhaps, lies the opportunity for the revival of a United Nations dynamic.

Other Obstacles

Much depends upon the personality and prestige of the chosen person. If he is of the calibre of Dag Hammarskjold, and could initiate a policy which, once deadlock is reached among member states who nevertheless do not wish to destroy the United Nations, could win their grudging acceptance, there is a chance, but only a chance, that the UN could foster a new international economic order. But, as in Katanga 14 years ago, there will also be other obstacles to surmount, in this case the vested interests of the global multinational corporations, and this time on a global basis.

Montreal the Target

By DOUGLAS FISHER

OTTAWA — John Rodriguez, the NDP MP from Nickel Belt, is probably the most determinedly direct and genuine radical among the 264 MPs in the House of Commons. He pushes interpretations in favor of the causes he believes in farther than 99 per cent of other Canadian politicians. This means he invariably depicts the enemies of his causes in the worst light.

One of Rodriguez's causes is the improvement of the condition of the ordinary working people. Specifically, he is one of the few politicians who always stands up for unions, including the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, its president Joe Davidson and its spokesman in negotiations, Jean-Claude Parrot.

Rodriguez blames the creation of broad national sentiments antagonistic to the postal workers on the media. They have not dealt fairly with the postal negotiations and the strike. Getting down to the case, Rodriguez has said: "Mackasey has his bum-boys in the parliamentary press gallery — and he keeps them on the string by letting out little tid-bits."

In fairness to Mackasey, some distinctions about him should be made. Firstly, long before he became a minister, he was an unusual, though not unique MP, in that he went out of his way to deal directly with reporters and columnists.

It may be a mix of gregariousness, desire for attention and a "good press", ego, vanity, cunning and naivete that has made him do this.

Being a minister and a public figure is so personal to Mackasey that he never hides behind the normal device of secrecy or the advice of his mandarins. In a cabinet and a government hipped on inscrutability and caution, even fear of what the prime minister may think, Mackasey bustles along — some think blunders along — meeting, challenging, accusing, blarneying. He's not a Pickersgillian or a Machiavellan type.

Mackasey is unusual enough in his manifold, personal dealings with the people of the media to merit the doubts of a radical protagonist for a group which Mackasey is hitting head-on. Does this make us "bum-boys"? What I suggest it leaves us with is an unusually open situation in which Mackasey's motives and tactics are obvious. What got him in bad trouble in 1972 in relation to unemployment insurance is simply working to his advantage this time. Not because we are fawning lackeys but because he has the merits of the case and his opponents have been stupid and less than honest, particularly to their own constituency — the inside postal workers.

There are two contexts in which we should see the present postal strike.

The first is long-range, beginning in the early 1960s when the postmaster general of the time, Bill Hamilton, first flew the warning about substantial annual financial losses ahead and the need to modernize and improve the functioning of the post office.

The second is the short-range plots which were brought into the open as early as last July by both Mackasey and the union.

MACKASEY

The union revealed then that they were determined to have much more in the way of money than the letter-carriers had settled for, and that they must have the issues of automation, part-time workers, casual workers, and grievance procedures, including suspensions, settled before they signed a contract.

Mackasey made no secret (and it was so written) that he had cabinet backing to: (a) face up to the chronic ulcer of the Montreal situation; (b) give no more money than the letter-carriers had gotten; (c) take a long, bitter strike and (d) negotiate fairly many of the non-monetary issues as possible, including automation and job security.

Neither side in the bargaining teams has been deceiving the other although one wonders how honest the union committee was with its membership in leading them to believe that a strike would give them more money.

A number of us wrote months ago that Mackasey was determined to break the grip of the Montreal local's leaders on the control of the union as a whole. For this he had the unqualified support of the cabinet.

That's what this strike is over. On Mackasey's side — to end Montreal dominance; on the union's side — to get more money than offered and for the present union leadership to retain control by winning a clear victory through a strike.

The long-term context is different. Since the days of Bill Hamilton the post office has had a weird collection of ministerial leaders, some for very brief periods — Ellen Fairclough, Azellus Denis, Jack Nicholson, Jean-Pierre Cote, Eric Kierans, Cote again, Andre Ouellet, and now Mackasey. I make it 10 ministerial changes in 13 years.

Even the most zealous defender of establishments cannot look at the sorry record of change, reorganization, waste, false starts, and insensitive management in the post office over this period without being sympathetic to all postal workers below the top management. This is a classic tale of bad management, mismanagement, and the nourishing of bad moral and terrible human relations in the work-place.

Without too much loss of face Mackasey could give the union leadership what it is now ready to settle for . . . being legislated back to work by an act of Parliament. He won't do it, despite the strike's mounting damages to innocent users of the postal service. Why? It's simple. It's his judgment. He may be wrong. He doesn't think the Post Office can ever be reconstituted as an effective service organization and a decent work-place until the Montreal situation has been cleared up and the union gets more responsible leaders. I may make me a bum-boy but I agree with him.

Check Your Philosophy

RUSSELL BAKER

A bum approaches you on the street and asks for 25 cents for a cup of coffee. Your response tells whether you are a conservative, a moderate, a left-wing Republican, a Wallaceite, a populist, a right-wing Democrat or a liberal. Check your philosophy.

1. The conservative tells the bum he should get a job and quit asking for handouts, but gives him nothing. He tells the bum he should go to church.

2. The moderate gives the bum a dime after debating whether he ought to give him 15 cents.

3. The left-wing Republican ignores the bum, but writes a letter to the editor deploring the decay of the American social structure.

4. The Wallaceite warns the bum that he will run over him if the bum ever tries stopping him on the street again.

5. The populist tells the bum he already pays the government so much money in taxes to care of things like bums and the Pentagon that he has nothing left to give him.

6. The right-wing Democrat tells the bum he would gladly give him the money if he thought the bum was really going to buy coffee, but that he is not going to give him anything because he knows — once a bum, always a bum — the bum is going to buy wine.

7. The liberal pretends not to notice the bum and, afterwards feels guilty all day about his inhumanity to man.

Another test situation:

Walking down the street at dusk, you notice a young muscular man in jeans attempting to break into a house through a second-storey window. Your political philosophy comes into play.

1. The conservative asks the young man if he is employed by the FBI or the CIA and is acting under government orders.

2. The moderate crosses the street to another house, rings the doorbell and inquires whether they happen to know the young man trying to break in across the street.

3. The left-wing Republican ignores the young man, but writes a letter to the editor deploring the breakdown in police protection.

4. The Wallaceite tells the young man it is thieves and welfare cheats like him who are ruining the country and warns that if the young man ever tries to break into his house he will run him down.

5. The populist assumes that the young man has either locked himself out of his own home and is trying to get back in or is going to burglarize a house whose owner is probably not paying his fair share of income taxes anyhow and, therefore, deserves to have his wealth equalized. He passes by.

6. The right-wing Democrat stops and yells, "What the hell do you think you're doing?" and, whatever the explanation, yells, "that's what I thought," before continuing on.

7. The liberal immediately calls the police and, afterwards, feels guilty all night.

And finally:

A small child having overheard someone say there is no Santa Claus, writes you a letter asking, "is there a Santa Claus?"

1. The conservative immediately replies, "Yes, small child, there is a Santa Claus, and his name is fiscal integrity. He may not wear a red suit and a jolly grin, but without him . . ."

2. The moderate replies that the world is deeply divided on this great question and urges the child to listen closely to all sides before rushing too hastily to a conclusion.

3. The left-wing Republican pretends the small child's question was not asked, but writes back deploring the increasing frequency with which it fails to snow on Christmas.

4. The Wallaceite tells the child there certainly is a Santa Claus but says the child needn't expect Santa to visit if his daddy is an honest, hard-working man without a pointy-head and a briefcase.

5. The populist, observing that the child has had to pay 10 cents for a stamp, replies that the child should apply its mind to more serious issues, such as why individuals have to pay so much for government services like mail while the Pentagon is growing fat on their tax money.

6. The right-wing Democrat telephones the child's parents and says, "which way does this kid want me to tell it?"

7. The liberal has a sleepless night debating which is the right thing to tell the child, and feels guilty all next day because he hasn't answered the letter. He resolves to attend a symposium on how to deal with small children's questions, or else, to be psychoanalyzed.

Bus Price Defended by Transit Officer

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Bureau of Transit Marketing officer said Wednesday that the $66,000 paid to the city of Saskatoon by British Columbia Hydro for three 13-year-old buses was a fair market price.

Charles Spratt was responding to a charge by Social Credit leader Bill Bennett who said Tuesday in Cranbrook that the B.C. government paid $66,000 for buses worth only $7,000.

Demand for transit buses has increased in the last several years to a point where manufacturers are unable to keep up, Spratt said.

"The needs of the cities, including ours, has exceeded the capacity of the industry to produce," he told a news conference Wednesday.

"If we were to sell one of the buses tomorrow we'd get $22,000 for it," he added. "It has that market value."

Bennett said the three buses were worth only $7,000, according to the book value.

Municipal affairs minister Jim Lorimer said Wednesday that the government actually saved money by purchasing the used buses, because new ones cost about $65,000 each.

"The used buses have a life of at least 10 years,' Lorimer said. Lorimer also said plans for a bus manufacturing plant in B.C. are still proceeding, with negotiations continuing with Volvo of Sweden

Land Claim Letters Released

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — Highways Minister Graham Lea released on Wednesday confidential correspondence between the federal and provincial governments concerning Indian land claims.

The correspondence, much of which had already been publicly discussed on other occasions, was released in its entirety to a meeting of the North Coast district Council of Indians.

Lea said the correspondence included two letters, one from Prime Minister Trudeau and one from Indian Affairs Minister Judd Buchanan.

Premier Barrett received a letter dated Sept. 23 from Buchanan which said it was time the two levels of government met to establish the limitations of the land claims question

Buchanan said he did not think it appropriate that negotiations include Indian representatives.

Last weekend in Comox, however, Human resources iMinister Norm Levi, who has been appointed by the provincial government to sit on land claims committees, said "we will not sit down with the feds — we want Indians at the bargaining table, as well as government officials."

The second letter was from the Prime Minister to Barrett in February. In it, Trudeau said if Indian claims were upheld, it would affect important provincial interests because Indian claims asserted a legal right to lands that were not extinguished by treaty or valid laws.

Lea said the province had not released the confidential documents previously because it respected the federal government's desire for confidentiality. All correspondence from B C. to the federal government was not marked confidential.

Now Barrett Vows B.C. Ombudsman

Canadian Press

Premier Barrett promised Wednesday in Powell River to provide a provincial ombudsman to act as watchdog over government departments if the New Democratic Party is re-elected Dec. 11

It had always been party policy to provide an ombudsman but it was not a priority during the NDP's first term, he added.

A similar pledge was made by Social Credit leader Bill Bennett last week.

If Social Credit formed the government, the party would even expand social programs if government revenues increased, he told a crowd of 250 at Notre Dame University in Nelson.

A Social Credit government could do this because it would encourage investment, something he said Premier Barrett's government has not done, he added

"The basic issue of this election must be the economy of the province," he said.

"Only with people working, only with confidence and optimism in an expanding economy will there be the money for government to pay for those programs that all parties will be promising as an inducement to voters."

The government had increased in size during the NDP's term but revenues had decreased because of the state of the economy, he added.

In his Powell River speech, the premier said there are a number of things the NDP has in store for B.C. But that another mandate from the people is needed to carry out new programs and maintain those established since the party came to power in August, 1972.

Among promises made by Barrett during this campaign is for establishment of a B.C. pension plan.

"We're talking about creating a B.C. portable pension schmeme that enables any working man or woman to have an extra bit of security transferable

"If they leave one job in British Columbia and they're voluntarily a member of this pension scheme, they can transfer their pension benefits and build them up on a new job," he said.

He also restated his pledge of a homemaker's pension.

Bennett said many of Barrett's promises, such as a pension plan for housewives, are "promises without price tage" but he was not without his own promises.

A Social Credit government would be prepared to help small businessmen or individuals who have plans for businesses, he said.

Such a program would include feasibility studies, low-cost financing — not grants — and market studies.

Asked by reporters to describe how his program would differ from the NDP's B.C. Development Corp., Bennett said: "Hopefully our program would be a lot better."

He also said that in addition to keeping programs like Mincome and Pharmacare, a Social Credit government, when it had the revenues, would introduce a government dental plan for children and government subsidization of nursing home or intermediate care programs.

Still True Grit at Heart: Gardom

VANCOUVER (CP) — Garde Gardom, Social Credit candidate in the Dec. 11 election, said Wednesday that, philosophically, he is still a liberal.

He told a high school humanities class that there now are no basic differences between Liberal, Conservative and Social Credit.

"I believe more in liberalism in historic terms than in its contemporary party form," he said, adding that he is still puzzled by the reluctance of the three B.C. private enterprise parties to unite against the New Democratic Party.

Gardom said his switch in affiliation required no change in his political aims.

"Right now Social Credit contains more Liberals and Conservatives than the Liberal and Tory parties," he added.

Ambulances Enter Campaign

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Health Minister Dennis Cocke said here Wednesday it would be "a staggering blow to the people of B.C." if the government's subsidized ambulance program was dismantled.

Cocke, in Prince George for a brief campaign visit, said there is "a very real danger" such a dismantling will occur if the Social Credit party wins the Dec. 11 provincial election.

Social Credit leader Bill Bennett "has indicated quite clearly that he's prepared to turn the clock back, the calendar back and everything else back to save money," he said.

The New Democratic Party Cocke said, "believes it is a basic human right for British Columbians to get properly attended to in the event of an accident or acute illness."

Sask. Gives Cow, Ewe Loans

REGINA (CP) — Agriculture Minister Edgar Kaeding has announced guaranteed loans of up to $12,000 for each Saskatchewan livestock producer are available to purchase female cattle or sheep for breeding purposes.

Kaeding, in a news release, said that under the new aid program partnerships — cooperatives or farming corporations — may borrow up to $24,000 if they have two full-time members and up to $36,000 if the unit consists of three or more members.

"There still is room for livestock expansion in Saskatchewan and farmers should consider getting into production when prices for breeding stock are low."

Arctic Specimens' Analysis Begins

They are among the last samples taken in the two-year, $12 million Beaufort Sea study undertaken by Environment Canada and the petroleum industry, which comes to an end Dec. 31.

Project manager Al Milne said analysis of the ocean chemistry section's field specimens was delayed because the group's research support vessels Theta and Pandora II had to return to southern Canada by way of the Northwest Passage and Atlantic Ocean.

Pandora II docked here Sunday after a 14,000-mile voyage. In her refrigerators she carried the samples taken during the summer field work under direction of Dr. C. S. Wong, head of ocean chemistry for the department on this coast.

Milne said transfer of the specimens could not be risked for fear of spoiling them, despite the alternative risk of refrigeration breakdown as the vessel made its way through the tropics and Panama Canal en route back to Victoria.

Chemists will work on specimens during the winter and have reports ready for detailed technical reports which are expected to be ready early in the new year.

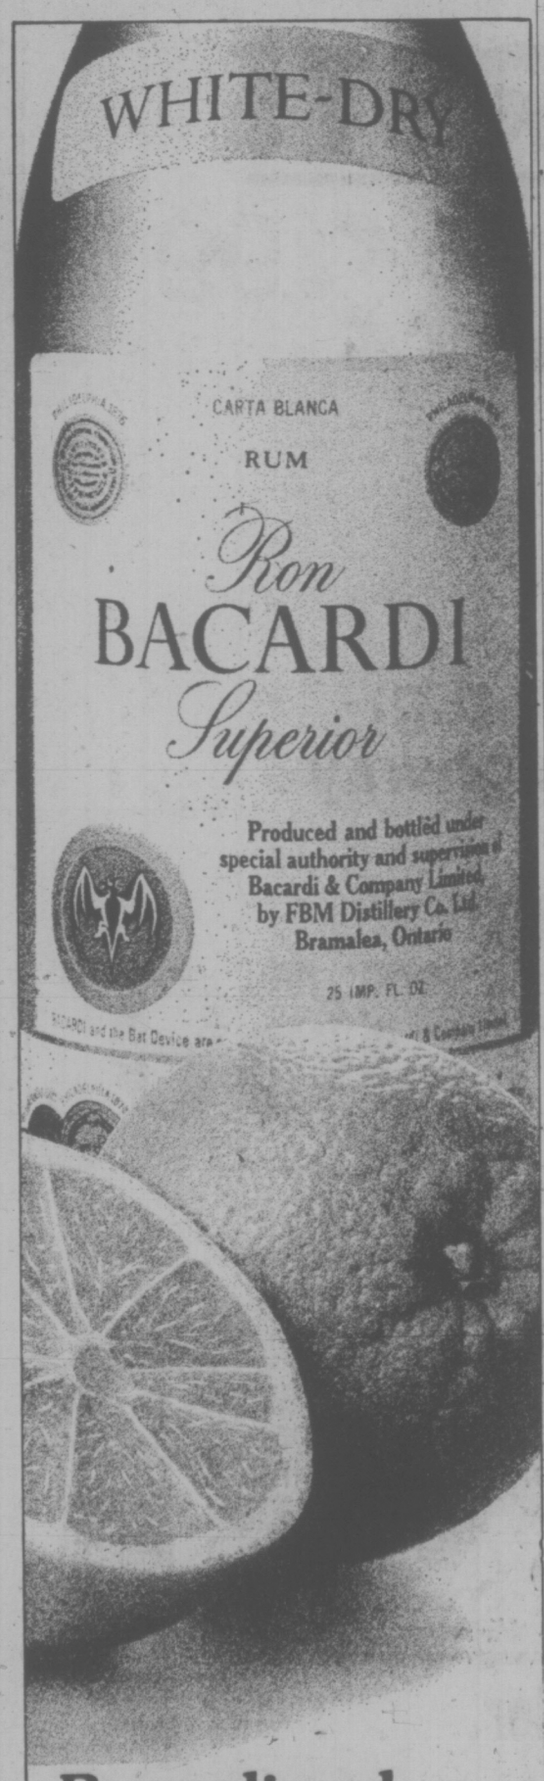

Milne said there will be more than 40 of these covering all aspects of study in the last two years and distribution should begin in mid-January.

In addition, there will be six booklets of between 100 and 200 pages each consisting of condensations of the technical material which would be available for public or legislative use.

The Beaufort Sea study is to determine the state of the Arctic environment as a means of comparing changes when the petroleum industry begins drilling expected to start offshore next summer.

Eighteen companies put up $4.1 million, public funds provided about $1.6 million special budgetting and the balance of the cost was distributed in normal budgets of federal government departments concerned.

Industry, anxious to arrange its financing for continuation of the oil search, requires authority for drilling in the Beaufort Sea as soon as possible to enable work to start in the summer.

Air Canada Denies Delay

MONTREAL (CP) — An allegation that Air Canada delayed reporting the default of a travel agency owned by a company pilot was denied by the airline Wednesday and a published report to that effect was branded "totally misleading."

The airline issued a statement following a report published in The Gazette which said Air Canada is liable to fines by the International Air Transport Association (IATA) and its Canadian equivalent for failing to report a $100,000 default by a travel agency.

"This is one more example of the calculated slurs and innuendos to which Air Canada has been subjected in recent months," said Claude Taylor, vice-president of public affairs.

The airline said Sunset Holidays Travel Agency, owned by pilot Edward Hill, experienced financial difficulties this fall and defaulted on its payments to Air Canada for the latter half of September.

The report said Air Canada, under investigation by Mr. Justice Willard Z. Estey, Chief Justice of the Ontario Supreme Court, failed to inform IATA and the Canadian transport commission until after the Estey report on the airline's financial controls had been handed to Transport Minister Otto Lang on Nov. 4.

Air Canada said the company sought to obtain payment and was advised by Sunset Holidays Oct.14 a cheque had been mailed.

Because of the postal strike the airline's district office in Montreal decided to give the agency more time to meet its obligations.

There were no other factors in that decision, the statement said.

On Oct. 22, Air Canada received a cheque from the agency, but on Oct. 27, it was returned by the bank marked NSF (not sufficient funds).

The airline removed its ticket stock from the Montreal agency Nov. 3.

"It is completely false to suggest that Sunset Holidays was in any way protected by Air Canada because of its owner," Taylor said.

"It is ludicrous to imply that this matter, handled entirely within the jurisdiction of the Montreal district office, has anything whatever to do with the Estey inquiry."

Under industry regulations, airlines are required to report financial defaults by travel agents as soon as they occur. Airlines may then repossess their still-negotiable blank tickets held by agents.

Curtis, Students Tangle At Saanich-Islands Forum

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

The gloves had to come off sooner or later in the Saanich and The Islands election campaign.

It happened at noon Wednesday during an all-candidates meeting fittingly held in the Old Gym at the University of Victoria.

There was name-calling, innuendo, and from the audience of about 200, repeated jeers and guffaws directed mainly at Hugh Curtis, the incumbent Socred MLA seeking re-election.

Curtis, who cited fiscal mismanagement as the principal issue in the election, was shouted down when he criticized the NDP's education policy and called Eileen Dailly "less than a fully satisfactory minister."

"What about her predecessor?" someone shouted.

He chided the audience for being more concerned with issues of the past than the present and was met with such a crescendo of boos and hisses his final remakrs couldn't be heard. He sat down.

Irene Block, the feisty 49-year-old grandmother running for the Progressive Conservatives, made the most of the anti-Curtis feeling.

Mrs. Block, who supported Curtis in the last election when he ran as a Tory (she even signed his nomination papers), attacked him for bolting from the party.

She noted he'd been at one time a Liberal, then a Conservative and now a Scored.

Much to the amusement of the crowd she asked, "What party does he represent?" There were loud cheers.

"We know he's tried three but something tells me the fourth wouldn't have him."

She held up a Curtis election pamphlet, repudiated his record and ended by saying: "it reads here Hugh Curtis believes . . . but who believes in Hugh Curtis," Applause.

Mrs. Block declared, "It's been said politics is a dirty game," and added that the events of the past few weeks —the stolen briefcase caper and the report of a Kootenay PC candidate being intimidated by the Socreds from running — had "borne out that dictum."

But Curtis and the Socreds weren't her only targets. She had something to say about the Liberal candidate Edgar Rhomberg.

Waving a piece of paper, she said Rhomberg had tried to join the PC party on Nov. 7 and here was the membership application and certified cheque to prove it.

The crowd roared, drowning her out.

"Give me time," she pleaded.

"He discovered the better way," a heckler shouted.

Rhomberg, a 29-year-old car dealer and tennis club operator, got the quietest response. He was the first speaker.

He identified himself as a recent student — a graduate of BCIT — and said he was aware of problems students faced particularly in the areas of student loans and student residences.

He said he believed an individual should be able to decide his own destiny and that couldn't be done by policies from either the left or the right.

"The alternatives are in the middle," he said. "It's a world of compromise."

The 36-year-old nurse and mother of two pointed out the programs initiated by the NDP and refuted Curtis's charge of fiscal mismanagement.

She said there was $143 million surplus in the provincial treasury.

"Despite what the Socreds say to the contrary, the finances are sound."

She felt that for Saanich and the Islands riding, the most important piece of legislation was the Land Commission Act.

She noted Curtis had voted against the act and had also opposed such NDP programs as ICBC, Mincome and pharmacare.

"The Socreds had 20 years to do the same things . . . but didn't."

Reading from Hansard she quoted Curtis, then a Tory MLA criticizing the Social Credit approach to education and health.

She said Curtis had once called the Socred health minister "a disaster" who had done "so much damage to the provincial health care programs it will take years to recover."

She also said Curtis had referred to the "Long years of Social Credit rule" as a period which saw the government put "money before people and surplus before progress."

One student spectator, asked his impressions of the hour-long meeting, replied: "What do I think? I think there are too many NDPers in this university."

Another student posed the same question laughed and remarked he was "too cynical to take it all that seriously."

Israeli Plane Slams Into Peak

TEL AVIV. (AP) — An Israeli transport plane on a training mission crashed into a mountain in the Sinai desert late Tuesday, killing all 20 military passengers and crew members board, the military command said Wednesday.

The crash was believed to be the worst in Israel's history.

The command said the plane was flying through a cloud bank on a night exercise when it hit the summit of Jebel Hallal — a mountain in an Israel-controlled area of the northern Sinai about 85 miles from the ceasefire line with Egypt.

The aircraft was an American-built C-130 Hercules, used by the Israelis as a cargo or troop transport. the C-130, widely used in Vietnam, was first shipped to Israel in the emergency airlift during the 1973 Middle East war.

Fire Destroys Fishboat

The 51-foot Advance II was about 1½ miles offshore on her way from Ladysmith to drydock in Nanaimo when the fire started.

Aboard were her owner, Ken Farrington of Ladysmith and his 16-year-old son.

A spokesman from the Royal Canadian Mounted Police's Ladysmith detachment said faulty electrical wiring is believed to have caused the fire.

MARKSMAN TO COMPETE

A regional board employee who is also a pistol marksmen of international standing has been granted 30 days leave with pay to compete next year in Olympic and allied events.

Directors Wednesday approved the leave for Arthur Tomsett, a pumping station supervisor, after first rejecting a proposal it be increased to 35 days.

Tomsett is a member of Canada's national pistol team which won a silver medal in international competition at Zurich last year and a bronze medal at the recent Pan-American Games.

He held the B.C. championship in his event from 1971 to 1974, not competing this year, and he finished third at a Mexican invitational event earlier this year.

Executive director Dennis Young told the board that the opportunity for Tomsett to compete in the Olympic games at Montreal requires participation in a series of international events before the Olympics.

More than 10 weeks of competitive shooting is involved in total and Tomsett will use all his holiday time as well as the leave to compete.

While board members grumbled about setting a precedent and a lack of federal support for such competitors, they approved the 30 days leave with pay without a dissenting vote.

Five Weeks Without Mail And Isn't It Wonderful?

Historians of the distant future may look back on November, 1975, as the time when mail, as we know it now, became a thing of the past, like Eugenie hats, church-going, chain letters, tandem bicycling, marriage and other quaint relics of earlier days.

I would not want, you understand, to under-estimate the dimensions of the dispute that grips the land. I have, myself, a small syndication of weekly newspapers that's now gone belly-up because I've no way of getting my priceless gems to them. It's one of the minor casualties, I know, but very few people have escaped without some inconvenience or loss of revenue and from where I sit it looks as if it may just be the beginning.

(By the way, did you see the panel of Front Page Challenge, not one of whom makes less than 150,000 a year, bitterly attacking the head of the postal workers as "undemocratic" because the union's negotiating team quite properly rejected a take-it-or-leave it wage offer that perpetuated the postal workers' status as peons?)

I'll even grant you that there may be some communications — old-age cheques and pensions and the like — that could be categorized as indispensable and there will always be a need, I expect, for the handling and delivery of such mail.

Yet what I have found over the past month is that I don't really miss the daily visit of the postman In fact, it has been just about the most carefree month I can remember.

Just for starters, I can tell you that it's now a pleasure to go into the office. I have a little cubby-hole there that's almost guaranteed to start my working day with the information that I am an insufferable jerk, a male chauvinist pig, a has-been scribbler, a communist spy and other predictable expressions of endearment from those readers who are not, so to speak, on the same wave-length. Why, it's just done wonders for my battered little psyche.

Some readers, of course, simply can't contain themselves and deliver, by hand or wheel-chair, their gratuitous estimates (as they've every right to do), but after 40 years of it I find it just swell to begin a day with the ego more or less intact. But it's the home delivery — or, I should say, the lack of it — that really brings the roses to my cheeks and I have been analysing why this should be so.

In broad terms it can be said there were three kinds of mail. There were letters from friends or loved ones. There were bills. And there was that mail that's described so accurately as junk, one reason why your friendly, neighborhood postman appears to be spavined. In each case I could not only do without it. I was over-joyed to do without it.

The first fact that we must face is that personal mail hardly exists any more. It has nothing to do with the current dispute but somewhere over the past dozen years there's been an enormous case of writer's cramp.

Time was when you used to trade news, views, gossip, even the weightier things of life, with your correspondents. Now, at best, you get stenographic reports maybe once a year. Short of a visit in the flesh friendship no longer means the exchange of letters. I do not know what caused this, but it was the beginning of the end for mail as a welcome part of each day.

Along with this goes the decline in the correspondence, once taken for granted, from those who have left the nest. When I wrote a few months ago about three footloose daughters who seem incapable of penning even a short note I had phone calls and letters from hordes of parents who reported that they were precisely in the same boat. And so there went another reason for anticipating what might be in the mail box.

These things having gone, what's left are the bills, those envelopes with the tell-tale isinglass windows, and the great mass of mail that's turned the poor postman into a beast of burden for the sleazier merchants.

There were days, indeed, when all that came to my door were entreaties to horde dried foods as a hedge against the days of starvation to come, to invest in creams made from secret hormones to ward off old age, appeals for obscure and possibly fraudulent charities, hard-sell pitches from rotten magazines, meaningless constituent reports by politicians, religious tracts from the glibber evangelists and, in short, piles of unsolicited garbage that doesn't even burn very well.

The dispute between the postal workers and the autocrats who run things in Ottawa has thus had the effect of protecting me — and maybe even you — from great wads of hypocrisy in printed form.

If the thing lasts beyond the coming month there is even the delicious prospect that it could mean the end of the greatest hypocrisy of all, the exchange of Christmas cards. I, for one, look forward to the first year in my life when my tailor, my butcher, my insurance agent and my local gravel supplier don't send me their season blessings.

Why, just think of it. It means the end of that annual guilt complex when, in the very last week before Christmas, you receive cards from people whose signatures are illegible or who are known but slightly to you or, worse, those that cause you to cry out, "My God, here's a card from the Murrays and we didn't send them one." Now all you have to say, with a shrug, is that it was too bad about the strike and the hell with Aunt Agatha.

As I say, I hope the thing gets settled soon. I hope the postal workers get a living wage. But I'll be just as happy if one result of it all is that mail goes just a little out of style. Now if we could just silence the telephone — but I suppose you can't have everything.

Rendle, Bawlf Take It on Chin

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

There were jeers for the Social Credit men, cheers for the NDP, laughter and sympathy for the Liberals and generally polite indifference for all the rest at an all-candidates meeting in James Bay elementary school Wednesday night.

The good-natured but highly vocal crowd, with NDP supporters obviously in the majority, directed most of the heckling and aggressive questioning at Social Credit candidates Ian Randle and Sam Bawlf.

Rendle received his share of the hoots and interruptions during his address, not least when he claimed that the NDP government didn't invent the monthly supplement" system for senior citizens with its Mincome program.

This, he said, was only an extension of a program which had existed under the Socred administration — at which one questioner demanded to know how many elderly British Columbians had received the original supplement.

Rendle said Socred leader Bill Bennett would immediately increase the Mincome allowance to $265 monthly if elected.

"I thought you weren't supposed to buy votes," yelled a young man from the back of the audience.

Rendle received his share of the hoots and interruptions during his address, not least when he claimed that the NDP government "didn't invent the monthly supplement" system for senior citizens with its Mincome program.

This, he said, was only an extension of a program which had existed under the Socred administration — at which one questioner demanded to know how many elderly British Columbians had received the original supplement.

Bawlf had an easier time in his speech. He recounted his achievements as an alderman, and pledged that the Socreds would establish a provincial heritage trust to protect old buildings.

Bawlf said an efficient park-and-ride service for civil servants, to reduce downtown traffic congestion, would be swiftly introduced if his party came to power. And he promised action to ensure the provincial government, the "biggest developer" in Victoria with more than 100 acres of holdings, pays full property taxes.

Bawlf was kept busy during the question period. One person wanted to know how he could talk about the need for senior citizens' housing downtown when he was renovating so much of the area for commercial use rather than residential.

He replied that government financing doesn't offer sufficient incentive for developers to provide residential accommodation, and the only feasible alternative is to turn to commercial projects.

Liberal incumbent David Anderson gave so much "credit" to Premier Barrett's regime for various social programs and legislative reforms that at times he could have been mistaken for an NDP candidate.

He heaped scorn on the "fear tactics" which he said the Social Credit party were using in the current campaign. The audience applauded loudly when he said Bennett had enunciated a 10-point platform including eight proposals for increased expenditure, "and then he comes on and tells us he is going to cut the budget."

Anderson said Barrett deserves to have his majority "cut right back," and by electing Liberals in the Victoria riding voters would help to deny seats to Bennett, a man who "so obviously doesn't deserve any more."

His fellow-Liberal, Terry O'Grady, discounted the NDP presence as any significant factor in the Victoria riding — in the 1972 election, he said, the party drew only about 20 per cent of the total votes cast — and said the only real contest here is between the Liberals and the Socreds.

O'Grady's flamboyant style went over well with the crowd, and the laughs and interruptions dampened it not at all.

"Do you want Social Credit representation or have you had enough of that?" he asked. "I ask you to support us."

"No way," hooted many of the listeners.

Pleaded O'Grady; "Will you not vote for us, just a few votes?"

"No," they chorused.

NDP candidates Charles Barber and Gordon Hanson when they listed the NDP government's achievements, including the establishment of community resource boards and the introduction of collective bargaining for the province's 35,000 civil servants.

The latter, said Hanson, had replaced a 20-year denial of rights for government employees, "a paternalistic, miserly system of collective begging."

★

Conservative candidates Peter Stanley and Lloyd Burdon both laid stress on the party's "positive" approach which concentrates on issues and avoids mud-slinging.

Independents Bill Scott and Owen Kavanagh also spoke.

Among Scott's suggestions was the proposal that schools grow their own vegetables. Kavanagh, a nurse at Victoria General hospital, expressed concern about the shortage of hospital beds in the Victoria area.

Two Escapers May Seek Guns Mounties Warn

DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

Two men who escaped from William Head prison Wednesday are considered dangerous and will probably try to get weapons, RCMP in Colwood warned today.

John Edward Wonnacott, 28, and Glen John Glowa, 34, went missing sometime between the 4:30 p.m. and 10 p.m. head counts at the federal medium security institution.

Police believe the pair may have stolen a 1973 white Volvo from a residence near the prison and an all-points bulletin has been issued.

Wonnacott was serving 11 years, six months for three counts of armed robbery and one count of assault causing bodily harm and would have been eligible for parole the end of 1979. He was sentenced in New Westminster Jan. 31, 1972, and transferred to William Head within the past year.

Glowa was serving 15 years for four counts of robbery, being sentenced in Vancouver in November 1970. He was transferred to William Head from Matsqui only six weeks ago. His parole date was July, 1982.

Glowa is described as five feet 10 inches, 160 pounds, blonde hair, blue eyes, with tattoos of "love" on his left hand, a spider on the back of his left hand, and an eagle on his right forearm. When last seen he was wearing blue jeans, white shirt and running shoes.

Prison officials said he displays an "effeminate manner" and added he had recently investigated the possibilities of undergoing a sex change but had been rebuffed by the authorities.

"He was told," said one official, "that if he wanted to change his sex he would have to do it on his own time and not the government's."

William Head director John Mulroney said Wonnacott had been released from prison on temporary pass 13 times, and with the exception of one time when he went to his grandfather's funeral in Victoria, always under escort.

On the other hand, Mulroney said, Glowa had never been given a temporary pass.

Mulroney said there was a five-and-a-half hour interval between head checks Wednesday because a number of the inmates were involved in a variety of social programs in the institution that night. However, he noted neither Glowa nor Wonnacott participated in any of the programs.

Police believe the two men may have stolen a white Volvo, licence nuumber LNE 432, parked in front of 664 Lombard, owned by Victoria realtor William Holmes. The residence overlooks the prison about a mile away.

Mrs. Holmes said her husband drove home at about 9 p.m. Wednesday and they retired at about 11 p.m. Although there were six persons in the house no one heard a sound through the night.

She said a dog kept inside usually barks whenever anyone approaches the residence.

She said she discovered the car missing at 7 a.m. today, and when her son Patrick went outside he found a red and white plastic flashlight on the driveway, apparently dropped by the thief or thieves.

Store to Hide Smut Mags

A Colwood corner store owner said today he will put "smut" magazines beyond children's reach by hiding them behind the cashier's counter.

Mac's Convenience Store operator Al Chartrand made the commitment today in response to a concerted parent's movement against the girlie magazines, led by Shirley Wilde. But other store operators were not that definite.

Chartrand said the sexual publications carried in his store are now located on two racks by the till, a location off-limits to all children that visit the store.

"But if parents are serious enough to boycott the store, because of that location, I'll put them behind the counter."

Parents are protesting that children can't walk into a grocery store, pharmacy or convenience store in the Colwood-Langford area "without tripping over a smut counter on the way to groceries and other items."

They want the display of magazine covers with scantily-clad bodies hidden from a child's view, and although a sampling of store owners in the area agree with the philosophy of the move, they are baffled.

Joe Despot, of Langford Pharmacy, says the sales of magazines like Playboy indicate there are a great number of the magazines in many homes.

He said his staff has decided of its own accord not to sell particularly "rank" issues of some magazines, and they've been taken off the display racks.

But Despot is reluctant to say he'll hide the magazines. Now they are located on a rack within a child's range.

"I don't know — there are already regulations about these things and if our own government's can't regulate them further . . . I just don't know. Where do you draw the line?"

Colwood Pharmacy owner Orvall Roer is uncertain.

Girlie magazines, he said are ineluded in a continuous row of magazines, in his store.

"I don't agree that the material should be hidden; that seems really sneaky way to solve the problem, but on the other hand I agree children shouldn't see them."

There are some children who look at the magazines, anyway, he said.

Q. Once again, for all of us with bad memories . . . how many floors in the Empire State Building in New York? M. L.

A. There are 102 and the building is 1,250 feet tall, 1,472 feet if you count the television tower. It was completed in 1931 at a cost of $40,948,900.

Crown Witness Admits Stealing Woodward's Groceries

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Staff

A key witness for the Crown in an armed robbery case in county court admitted under cross-examination Wednesday that he stole bulk groceries from Woodward's where he was a construction worker earlier this year.

Anthony Vogelaar, 4520 Vantreight, was called to testify in the case against Rodney Trevor Johnson, 24, of 1166 Summit, accused of armed robbery involving a wallet and contents from Maurice Dutour of Surrey.

Court was told earlier that the three men and a fourth person, Dan McIsaac, were driving in a truck from a cabaret in the early hours of April 13. Dutour said Johnson was holding a starting pistol while McIsaac was searching him for his wallet while the truck was stopped.

Vogelaar said he used his truck to take the stolen groceries to Johnson's house. He said he did this with Johnson and McIsaac but couldn't recall whose idea it was.

Asked why he didn't take the groceries to his house, he said "it wasn't all mine for one thing."

Your mother would have seen it, asked Johnson's lawyer, Doug Christie.

"That's one reason."

Vogelaar said he wasn't charged with the groceries theft and hasn't been convicted of a criminal offence.

Have you ever stolen anything else, asked Christie.

Prosecutor Barry Mah Ming objected, but Judge Peter Millward over-ruled him.

Vogelaar then said he objected to answering.

The judge, who had earlier advised Vogelaar of his rights under the Canada Evidence Act which prevents a person from self-incrimination, then ordered the witness to answer the question.

Mah Ming interjected again, saying the witness was being asked a legal opinion because theft is a legal question.

The judge again ruled it was an appropriate question and directed the witness to answer.

"In my entire life, yes, I have stolen other things," replied Vogelaar.

He denied it was his intention to steal from Dutour and that he expressed that intention to Johnson.

"It was your idea and McIsaac's idea to rob this man?" asked Christie.

"No sir, it was not my idea. I do not know whose idea it was."

In his testimony before cross-examination, Vogelaar said he picked up Johnson and McIsaac at 1166 Summit and they went to the King's Hotel pub and then the Century Inn pub where they met Dutour.

At closing time, they went to Sappho's cabaret.

He said he saw Dutour beside the truck with Johnson and McIsaac on either side and in front of him.

Vogelaar asked what was going on but no one said anything. He put his hand on either Johnson's or McIsaac's shoulder and Johnson turned around and told him to get in the truck.

"I saw a black gun and what looked like a white handle," he said.

He demonstrated in court how it was held to show that without a fist being closed over the small handle the white side could be seen.

Vogelaar said he had seen a gun like the one in court at Johnson's house two or three days earlier and Johnson had fired it.

He testified Johnson and McIsaac told him to get into the truck and go, leaving Dutour beside the road.

McIsaac opened a wallet in the truck and Vogelaar said he saw a $20 bill and a credit card.

The other two men said "it's not all here. They were excited. Something was mentioned that the credit card was dynamite, something to that effect."

While driving to Johnson's house, Johnson said "something to the effect you get a third, or something, and I said I don't know."

Vogelaar said he "deduced" it was Dutour's wallet but he wasn't sure.

The jury trial continued today.

PROSECUTOR COUGHS UP

A cough drop caused some tart comment in county court Wednesday.

What did you just give the witness, asked Doug Christie, counsel for Rodney Trevor Johnson, 24, of 1166 Summit, accused of armed robbery.

A cough drop, replied Mah Ming, adding that Vogelaar's throat was parched and he was coughing.

"That's the first time I've seen a prosecutor offer candy to a witness," said Christie.

"Would you like one, Mr. Christie," replied Mah Ming.

$40M Container Terminal

VANCOUVER (UPI) — The port of Vancouver, already North America's second-busiest in cargo volume after New York, took a further step forward Wednesday with the opening of a $40 million terminal specially designed to help speed container cargos to destinations across Canada and abroad.

Officials said the move clears the way for Vancouver to regain a "significant portion" of Canada-bound shipments now diverted through Seattle because of previously-limited facilities in the Canadian city.

The first vessel to arrive, the 12,000-ton Soviet container ship Pestovo, immediately began unloading general cargo from Japan.

Port Manager Fred Spoke hailed the 76-acre site, Vanterm, as a "landmark" in the history of the port and said it made Vancouver "competitive with any port on the continent in the fast, efficient handling of specialized and general cargo."

Last year Vancouver handled exports and imports totaling 41.9 million tons, just short of a record 42.09 tons in 1973.

"This year, because of a downturn in economies around the world, we could be down five to 10 per cent from last year's figures," Spoke said. "But that's not to bad. Some otther ports are projecting a decline of 25 to 40 per cent."

Spoke recently led a five-man team on a three-week tour of Japan, South Korea, Hong Kong, Malaysia, Singapore and Indonesia to publicize the new facilities.

The port will be further expanded early in 1976 with a new $22 million general cargo terminal and industrial park on a 76-acre site.

Five Small, Fast Cutters Eyed for Coast Rescues

The Canadian Coast Guard's three cutters on the west coast could be replaced with five smaller but faster vessels.

The replacement recommendation is in a report on how to update marine rescue facilities throughout Canada, now being studied in Ottawa.

Herbert Buchanan, ministry of transport's regional director in Vancouver, said Wednesday the report was made by a three-man management resources team from Ottawa.

The team visited the west coast as part of its native-wide study earlier this year and the report, yet to go to Transport Minister Otto Lang, is being vetted by department officials in Ottawa. It was submitted in July.

Buchanan said he could not divulge the report's entire findings but conceded some of the recommendations in it were similar to those presented by his department 2½ to three years ago.

One of these is the replacement of the 95-foot cutters Racer, Rider and Ready with smaller and faster ships. The cutters are now 13 years old and have a life expectancy of another 10 years at the most.

"We recommended that they be replaced with five 65-foot cutters," Buchanan reported, "We still think it's the best way to go for this region."

Buchanan said the replacement vessels should be similar to the new pilotage boats in operation on this coast.

"If this were done all the boats would be virtually interchangable," he explained, "We could have two spare engines (as backup) for all the boats. They (the boats) could circulate during refits."

The report also recommends implementation of an education program with education teams visiting yacht clubs, power squadrons and other groups. Increased use of the media to promote boat safety is also advocated.

Buchanan said, although it's the responsibility of armed forces' helicopters to respond to marine emergencies, the MoT helicopters, mainly used for servicing navigational aids ,also act as a backup.

Money has been allotted to equip the department's large Sikorski helicopter, based at Prince Rupert, with additional navigational equipment which will allow it to operate during the poor weather in which most marine accidents occur.

Buchanan said the national survey was prompted by a regional one carried out 2½ years ago.

"That was a purely parochial one," he said. "After it was done it was decided a more extensive one should be made."

He said the federal government's budget-tightening policy might delay implementation of the report's recommendations.

"We can always do with more equipment but I think we do quite well," he added.

He refuted assertions made by Robert Sommerville, of Campbell River one of the most active volunteer rescue agents in B.C., and others that the west coast is being short-changed in marine rescue equipment.

"We have three cutters, three lifeboats, two crash boats operating out of Kitsilano, as well as the hovercraft," he said. There are also five Zodiac rescue craft manned during the summer season.

In comparison, Newfoundland has no cutter, relying on five lifeboats. The Halifax region has two cutters and four lifeboats.

While the withdrawal of the three cutters is not opposed by volunteers such as Somerville they say larger vessels, more helicopters and sophisticated communication equipment are needed.

"I hope they complete the purchase of 10 or 12 Canadian Coast Guard cutters, but that won't solve our air-sea rescue problems," he said. "Our air-sea rescue services and fisheries protection is totally inadequate on the Pacific coast

He said in 1974 there were twice the number of marine accidents on the west coast than on the east coast, but the latter has more vessels and equipment for air-sea rescue.

There were 3,765 marine mishaps in Canada in 1974. The west coast had 2,503 compared to 1,262 in the east.

Permanent shore stations also should be installed at Sidney, Sooke, Vancouver, Gibson, Campbell River, Bull Harbor, Gold River, Bella Bella, Sandspit and if possible at Prince Rupert and Masset, Somerville he said.

He said there should also be one ocean-going cutter stationed in Victoria and a permanent shore station established at Bull Harbor in the Winter Harbor area, West coast of Vancouver Island.

"Canadian armed forces should bring at least two helicopter destroyers from the Halifax zone to the west coast," he said. "There should be an RCMP officer and fisheries officer on these vessels to maintain our sovereignty over our fisheries and to see that marine regulations are enforced."

"Our coast guard is doing an excellent job," he said. "They are doing twice as much with half of the equipment of the U.S. Coast Guard."

BEFORE THE JUDGE

An 18-year-old youth whose pre-sentence report said he is headed for a criminal life received nine months definite and nine months indefinite when he appeared in Victoria provincial court Wednesday.

Defence counsel Jaspar Bomhof had applied to change his pleas to not guilty Tuesday after Smith had seen his report.

"That indicates that while he may not have been alone, he was certainly involved."

Bomhof contended the report was too harsh on Smith, but the judge said: "I don't think the probation officer is suggesting the boy be locked up and the key thrown away. He's trying to point out the direction in which Smith is going."

The break-in's occurred Aug. 19 at the View Royal Garage, 275 Island Highway; Sept. 4 at the Outpost Cafe, 2727 Spencer; and Oct. 16 at a Saanich home where $77.50 in cash and jewelry was stolen.

A man who assaulted a policeman who arrested him for impaired driving Nov. 6 was fined $800.

Richard Martin Geise, 25, of 897 Claremont, was also put on six months' probation, ordered to take the impaired drivers' course and perform 20 hours' community work.

He pleaded guilty to impaired driving and assaulting a peace officer.

Judge Ostler said higher courts in the province had ruled persons who assault peace officers should go to jail. He said Geise was a first offender, however, and was drunk at the time of the incident.

Wayne Albert Boyd, 22, of 131 Niagara, received a suspended sentence when he pleaded guilty to theft of plywood.

He told Ostler he supported himself by washing windows, and the judge said: "I admire you for that. One has to admire a man who would rather do that difficult work than go on welfare."

In traffic court, a number of persons pleaded guilty to impaired driving and were fined $350, put on three months', probation and ordered to take the impaired drivers' course.

They were Richard Morley Jones, 24, of 714 Newbury; Ronald Dale Hoskins, 19, of 2790 Cedar Hill Road; Glen Richard Ford, 22, of 430 Montreal; Lloyd William Stevenson, 32, of 2325 Victor; and Mary Joyce St. Clair, 53, of 2100 Granite.

Two persons pleaded guilty to dangerous driving and were each fined $200: Robin Nicoll Page, 19, of 2797 Cedar Hill Road, who was also prohibited from driving for six months; and Gerard Albert Ouston, 38, of Pascoe Road, Sooke, who was prohibited from pleasure driving for three months.

Bird Poison Probe

Provincial agricultural experts will meet Dec 11 to consider controls for a pesticide responsible for massive kills of waterfowl in the Fraser Valley.

The announcement was made by Chet Neilson, head of the provincial entomology branch, following a request by the B.C. Wildlife Federation Wednesday for immediate action to ban the sale and use of the poison in B.C.

A similar request has been submitted to Federal Agriculture Minister Eugen Whalen

The pesticide known as carbo-furan, is used to control root maggots in crops.

Neilson said studies have started to determine the residual effects of the chemical.

"We will meet in December to receive reports and to make recommendations on its use," he said.

Federation executive director Bill Otway said for three successive years the chemical has killed waterfowl on Fraser River farmlands.

"When I expressed concern to federal wildlife branch officials in Ottawa, they said they couldn't do anything about the matter," he said.

"A pesticide which can kill a duck can eventually kill a human being," he added

He noted when the federal department of agriculture approved the use of the chemical, it said that the residual effect of carbo-furon lasted only a few days in the soil.

"Now we are told the residual effects can last for nearly two years," he said.

Tapes Bare Montreal Underworld Murder Plots

MONTREAL (CP) — Tape-recorded evidence and testimony was used Wednesday to link three alleged underworld leaders — brothers Frank and Vincenzo Vic Cotroni and Pablo Violi — with explicit plans to murder members of rival organizations.

The evidence came out at hearings of the Quebec police commission inquiry into organized crime.

There was also evidence that the three men were involved in falsification of passports to permit illegal Italian immigrants to remain in Canada, as well as efforts to control legal moves affecting their "picciotti," or young soldiers.

A series of police-recorded conversations, introduced as evidence, involved discussions between persons identified as Violi anl Vic Cotroni about a round of "settling of accounts" which involved several gangland slayings in the summer of 1973.

Two "picciotti" associated with Violi's faction, Mario Ciambrone and Salvatore Sergi, were shot down July 10, 1973. Provincial police, who named Angelo Faquino as a suspect at the time, thought the motive behind the double murder was a "burn," or drug deal in which one party is cheated.

Faquino himself was shot and killed Sept. 2, 1973, in what an earlier witness described as "a very personal thing." Tony Vanelli, who with Moreno Gallo is currently serving a jail sentence in connection with Faquino's death, was the "compare" or lifelong friend of Ciambrone.

Conversations introduced as evidence showed Violi was displeased with the murder of Faquino, who was one of the few Italians in a rival group of French-Canadian motorcyclists.

According to the taped conversation, he said the methods used had been amateurish: "They shouldn't have wasted time with the others. They should have entered the place, customers or no customers, made them face the wall, all against the wall, and gone braummmm."

Faquino, being an Italian, could have been brought around to his way of thinking, said Violi, and should have been left to last in the killings.

He was further angered by the shooting death 12 days after Faquino of one of his own men, DeGenova. No suspects were ever named in this murder.

Inquiry counsel Pierre Paradis said a September meeting at the midtown Windsor Hotel attended by Vic Cotroni anl Violi brought about a "peace treaty" which put an end to that series of "settling of accounts."

Meanwhile, Jimmy Desantis, who worked for Violi, had made arrangements with Roger O'Connor, then a prison guard at Parthenais Detention Centre — where Gallo and Vanelli were being held as suspects in the Faquino murder — to smuggle hashish and cognac into the prison.

Desantis, now serving a one-year sentence for refusing to testify before the commission, was told by O'Connor in telephone conversations released to the press last week that "his boys were always treated well."

After reading newspaper accounts which said he had disappeared, O'Connor reported to the Commission Tuesday night and appeared Wednesday to corroborate the recorded evidence.

He added a new twist, however, revealing he had been commissioned to carry a message from Paolo Violi to Gallo and Vanelli. He was to tell them one of them "had to plead guilty so there would be no trial and word wouldn't get around about it."

In the day's most dramatic appearance, Pietro "Dio Petrino" Schiara testified with the help of an Italian interpreter. Schiara has been deported twice from Canada, served 15 months in jail for illegal entry into the country, and is currently awaiting an appeal on a charge of possessing a false passport.

He admitted he was interned for three years in a Sicilian detention colony for "mafioso" under Italy's anti-mafia laws. He said, however, he does not know what the word "mafia" means.

In the transcript of a conversation between Schiara and Violi recorded by police and released to the press, Violi explained the procedure by which he obtained false passports and through which he was expecting one for Schiara in the near future.

In an apparent arrangement with employees in the passport office, passports which were to be picked up by their legitimate owners were rerouted and the photos in them replaced to be given to Italians like Schiara who had problems staying in the country.

In testimony last week, an independent candidate in the 1974 municipal election in suburban St. Leonard testified Schiara, representing the present municipal administration, had threatened him with death if he did not drop out of the race.

Schiara said he had spoken to the candidate at the request of an uncle who did not wish him to run, saying it was too late.

"I thought he shoud listen to the good advice of his uncle," he said.

Gas mileage tests conducted by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency in 1975 proved that no other car in Canada got better gas mileage than a Datsun B210. The test results on the 1976 cars have just been announced and, once again, the Datsun B210 is the gas mileage winner.* The B210 delivered 40 miles per gallon in combined city-highway driving (getting up to 35 mpg in the city, and up to 49 mpg on the highway). No car in Canada does better.

It's Datsun's aerodynamic styling and efficient engineering that produce the money-saving high gas mileage you need. And there's a B210 for everyone ... including 4-door sedans, stylish 2-door hatchbacks, and budget-pleasing 2-doors starting as low as $3,295.†

Check out all the 1976 Datsuns, and test-drive the one you like, at your Datsun dealer today. If you enjoy driving, you'll love the feel of a Datsun. The '76 Datsuns have all the economy you need, and all the driving feeling you want. That's what the Datsun spirit is all about.

*The Datsun B210, with manual transmission, gets 40 mpg in combined city-highway driving (35 mpg in the city, and 49 mpg on the highway), according to latest U.S. E.P.A. test results, when converted from U.S. to Imperial gallons. In the same tests, Subaru and Chevette tied with Datsun B210 at 40 mpg for top spot in combined city-highway driving. Your own gas mileage may vary from these results, as it depends on many factors, including the kind of driving you do, the condition of your car, and its optional equipment.

†Manufacturers suggested retail price F.O.B. Vancouver, Toronto, Montreal, Dartmouth. Local freight and Provincial sales tax extra, where applicable.

Buy it for the economy, drive it for the feeling!

Violence: It Went Out With the Bustle—Gabby

He comes trundling into the office in early afternoon, nearly always on a Tuesday and every second week. He displays an infectious grin, booms out a hearty "hi," and usually sports a beard, depending on the season. And there is just no way you can pretend he isn't there, even if you want to.

JIM PENNOCK SR.

And there's no way that any junior hockey fan can pretend that "Gabby" isn't at rinkside at the northwest corner of Memorial Arena on hockey nights either. He is loud, man!

The two people are the same. "Gabby" really is Jim Pennock Sr. He's "the Cougars' No. 1 fan." That's official, and he's got the pass for the 1973-74 season to prove it. Former Cougar owner Eric Bishop bestowed that honor on him. Now he pays again like everyone else.

The reason he arrives here every week is quite simple. Professional wrestling takes place at Memorial every second Thursday and "people want to know who's coming."

And Jim or Gabby, or whatever—he doesn't mind—is the Island rep for Northwest Wrestling Promotions. His far-flung territory, some wholly, some in part, includes Victoria, Nanaimo, Duncan, Port Alberni, Campbell River, Courtenay, Cumberland, Lake Cowichan, Chemainus and, once, Parksville.

It's usually the good guys against the bad guys that makes wrestling flourish. You've seen the ad: "The sensational stars of Channel 11 wrestling . . . and then THE names: Jimmy Snuka, Dutch Savage, Professor Dale Lewis, Seigfreid Steinke, Yasu Fuji . . . some are no less revered than Dave Barrett.

So that's Jim's other hat, and one he has worn for the past 15 years. Actually, wrestling now is his main occupation because he can't work regularly. Formerly in the cartage and construction industry, Jim had a serious kidney operation last year which has curtailed his activities.

He's still that dedicated Cougar fan, though, and maybe even an unofficial coach. He'll quickly tell a player what he thinks, often without being asked. And maybe he does know something about the game. He should. He grew up knocking heads with the Warwicks, the Metz brothers, Elmer Lach, et al, and "I lost a chunk out of my nose and two front teeth on a cross-check from the late Scotty Livingston."

Jim is from Regina where his father was a railroader for 52½ years. Jim worked on the railroad, too, and reached the exalted position of "gandy-dancer". He played hockey there and in Halifax while becoming a petty officer mechanic in the navy during the war. In 1947 he decided to call Victoria home, married Phylis Reid, and his son, Jim Jr., and daughter, Mary, are fourth-generation Victorians on his wife's side.

Pro baseball wa sthe insport here after the war and Jim got involved actively with the Athletics and Tyee booster clubs.

"Do you remember how many fans" he chided, "turned out for the first game at Athletic Park the year after the Tyees won the championship? Eighty-seven," he continued. "and that was the beginning of the end." Still, Jim helped with the ill-fated "Save Baseball" campaign, as did his father-in-law, Bill Reid, and many others.

When the junior Cougars were first organized he became an instant fan, and still is. And if the Cougars want some more advice, fine. "Defencemen today are not taught to use their body as much as they should," he said. "They don't take the man out any more."

"They talk about hockey violence," he continued. "Violence went out with the bustle. It was tougher in the old days, but one thing we didn't have was a team brawl every game. That is plain stupid."

Some Cougars he fancies—Mel Bridgman, "he was good, but Jim Gustafson may have been lost in Bridgeman's shadow. He's proving it this season." Kim Clackson, from last season, is his "top defensive defenceman and team leader, a hard-nosed kid who was more valuable than many thought; Tim Williams has a bright future—he has a lot of moves.

Grunt and groan fans of the '60s may recall the live shows that originated from and used to be a Saturday feature at CHEK-TV. Jim organized those, put up and took down the ring and doubled as timekeeper.

Troubles? No, not many" he reminisced. "Bulldog Brown gave me a bad time once, but then he apologized when he found out who I was. He didn't know the score. Gene Kiniski and I got chased out of Memorial one night," he laughed. "Some East Indian fans became incensed because Kiniski had been less than gentle with one of their race. But wrestlers and fans are mostly good guys." Then he added:

"You know, people knock wrestling. But I've been around sport all my life and I honestly think that wrestlers are the finest conditioned of all pro athletes. Who else works at his trade six days a week, every week, and sometimes seven?"

And the most dangerous type of fan is in the average crowd of 900 to 1,000 who show up at Memorial most Thursdays and vent their pent-up frustrations on the wrestlers?

"Women!" Jim Charged. "Women with purses or handbags. You never know what's inside when they start swinging. "Somebody could get hurt."

Trottier Can Sparkle When Stars Don't

By The Canadian Press

Rookie Bryan Trottier of New York Islanders looked very good Wednesday night against Minnesota Stars.

But then, says Minnesota veteran Bill Goldsworthy, looking good against the woeful North Stars doesn't mean all that much.

"Sure he looked great," said Goldsworthy. "But who wouldn't have against us "

The 20-year-old Trottier scored his 10th goal of the season and assisted on four others as the Islanders hammered the North Stars 9-1 in a National Hockey League game.

Trottier started the season with three goals and two assists in his first game and, says coach Al Arbour, he has been coming along ever since.

"He's got a great intelligence for the game," said Arbour. "We knew he was a very strong player but I suppose you have to be a little surprised about the way he has turned out."

In Wednesday's other NHL games, Washington Capitals stunned Los Angeles Kings 7-2, Boston Bruins downed New York Rangers 6-4, Pittsburgh Penguins stopped Detroit Red Wings 5-2, California Seals edged Vancouver Canucks 2-1, Toronto Maple Leafs tied Chicago Black Hawks 4-4, Philadelphia Flyers trimmed Atlanta Flames 7-3 and Kansas City Scouts tied St. Louis Blues 3-3

The North Stars have lost nine of their last 10 games and 16 of 20 this season.

Washington produced its seven goals with only 21 shots on Los Angeles goalie Rogie Vachon, sentling the Kings down to their fifth successive defeat

"It doesn't matter who the goaltender is," said Tony White who scored two goals for Washington. "Whenever you get two quick goals on anybody it just collapses their confidence."

Defenceman Bobby Orr scored one goal and assisted on another as the Bruins beat the Rangers at Madison Square Garden in the first meeting between the two teams since the Phil Esposito trade earlier this month.

Ex-Ranger Jean Ratelle, assured by Bruin management he had a future with the club, also had a goal and an assist for Boston. Defenceman Brad Park, booed by his old supporters, also had an assist

The Rangers sent Ratelle, Park and defenceman Joe Zanussi to Boston for defenceman Carol Vadnais and Esposito. Vadnais didn't figure in Wednesday's scoring and Esposito was on the sidelines with an injury.

Penguins goalie Michel Plasse extended his personal unbeaten streak on Pittsburgh ice, stopping 20 shots in an easy victory over the Red Wings.

Vancouver's Don Lever scored in the last minute to deprive California goalie Gilles Meloche of a shutout. Wayne Merrick, acquired from St. Louis in a trade earlier this week, and Dennis Maruk scored for the Seals.

Rick MacLeish and Reggie Leach scored two goals each for the Flyers, who regained their status as the NHL team with the highest points total, moving two in front of the idle Buffalo Sabres and Montreal Canadiens.

Darryl Sittler scored twice and Stan Weir once for Toronto in the third period as the Leafs overcame a 4-1 Chicago lead.

Only 8,500 fans were on hand at St. Louis to see Ed Gilbert score in the final five minutes to give the Scouts a tie with their cross-state rivals, offsetting a three-goal performance by St. Louis veteran Garry Unger.

MACK HERRON
. . . personality clash

Coach Lied —Herron

QUINCY, Mass. (AP) — Running back Mack Herron, formerly with New England Patriots, said Thursday he was dropped from the National Football League team because of a personality clash with coach Chuck Fairbanks.

In a copyright story Wednesday in the Quincy Patriot-Ledger, Herron said Fairbanks "lied to me" and "has a lot to learn about working with men."

Herron, a former star with Winnipeg Blue Bombers of the Canadian Football League, was put on waivers about two weeks ago and picked up by Atlanta Falcons.

"The real problem was a personality conflict between me and Fairbanks," he said. "He was wrong about me and I want to show him."

Herron also said he was "used as a scapegoat" by Fairbanks.

"He seemed to blame me for the way the whole season was turning out," he said "Now that I'm gone, I wonder who he will blame?"

Herron maintained Fairbanks said they would discuss a pay raise at the end of the pre-season.

"Fairbanks lied to me," Herron said. "He and (asssistant general manager Peter) Hadhazy tricked me. They kept putting me off and when the season started to go bad and I got some more injuries, they never spoke to me about it again.

"Hadhazy indicated the Patriots had given me enough just by giving me another chance of pro football. I was thankful for that and I showed it by playing as hard as I could and having the kind of year I had.

"I made a mistake four years ago (when he was arrested on drug charges in Canada) and I admitted it and I paid for it. But they expected me to keep on paying for it."

CITY GOLFER HOME

Big Year Ahead for Cec

DOUG PEDEN - EDITOR

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

Cec Ferguson returned home from the Commonwealth matches in South Africa last Monday with a selling point for the 1976 Canadian Amateur golf championship. Which, as it happens, will be played at Royal Colwood.

Performances by Canadians in next year's national tournament will determine the makeup of two international teams The order of finish will decide the 1976 Eisenhower (World) Cup team (of four) and the 1977 Commonwealth lineup (of six).

The World Cup is coming aroumd on schedule. Next year, it will be held in either Switzerland or South Africa.

The surprise is the change involving the Commonwealth matches. Since they began in 1954, they have been held every four years Scotland gets them in 1977, and that's only a two-year lag between then and this year's matches in South Africa.

"They made the announcement just before we left South Africa," said Ferguson. "The dates were changed so they wouldn't conflict with the 1979 Walker Cup matches between Great Britain and the U.S."

Because the 1977 Commonwealth will be played in May, that means 1976 performances will have to be used in determining the makeup of Canada's team

That suits Ferguson, the alternate who went to South Africa to lead Canada to victory for the second straight time. The weekend triumph marks the first time any country has scored back-to-back victories.

Cec is ready for more international competition.

Ferguson was named to the team when Gary Cowan of Kitchener, Ont., passed up competition. The 25-year-old Gorge Vale member showed his appreciation for being allowed to make the trip by winning all three of his singles and teaming up with Jim Nelford of Vancouver to sweep their three foursomes matches.

Did Ferguson play well?

"Yes, I was pleased," said Ferguson Tuesday. "I was only one over par for my six rounds. My poorest round was one over, my best three under.

"The practice I put in during the past two months really paid off. I was very consistent. Every part of my game was good. I don't think I missed more than three fairways in the six rounds.

"I putted well, but I'll have to give my South African caddy credit for that. The greens at Royal Durban (site of the matches) are much different than ours in Victoria. Here, if you read a two-inch break, that's all that it will break. In South Africa, putts that looked like they would break two inches would take off six and eight inches.

"The Canadian team really put a lot of faith in the caddies. We just knocked the ball on the line the caddy picked out, and it was right on the money.

"The caddies were super."

For Cec, the highlight of the trip was South African hospitality and "the tremendous team spirit" established by the six Canadian players and non-playing captain Bruce Forbes.

"I've never been on a team . . . in any sport . . . that got together as we did. We dressed alike, ate together and did everything as a team.

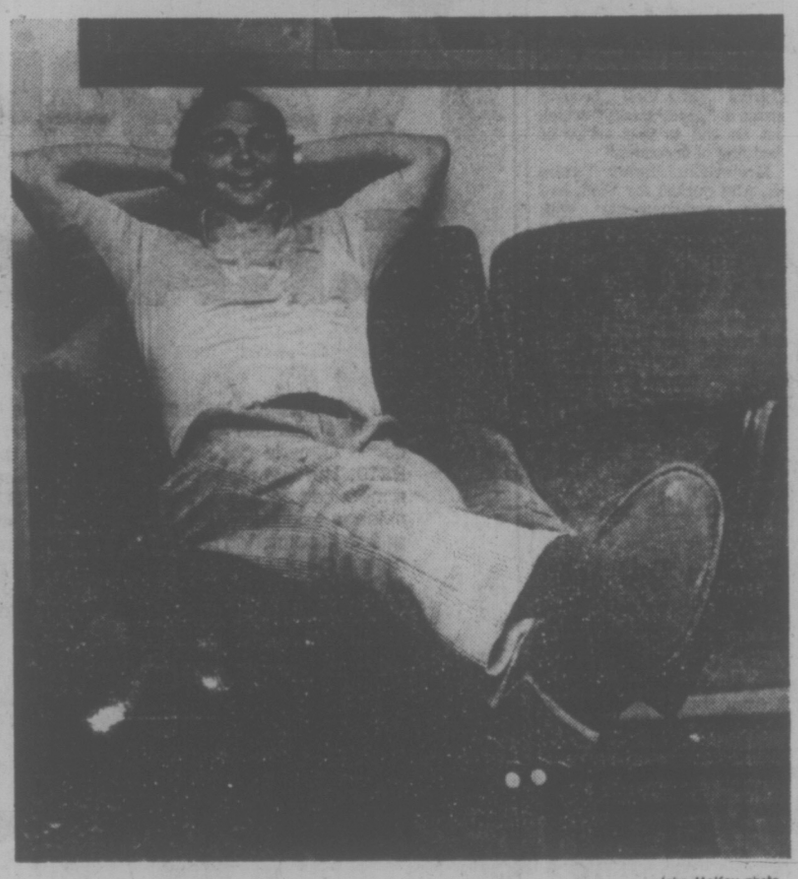

"It's hard to believe six guys could get together in such a short time and be so close to each other. I had met Robbie Jackson (of Montreal) only once before, and only briefly. Yet I roomed with him, and it was as if we had been life-long friends."

In addition to Ferguson, Jackson and Nelford, the B.C. champion, the other team members were Dave Webber of Dartmouth, N.S., Doug Roxburgh of Vancouver and Ken Tamke of Edmonton.

The players' ages ranged from 20 to 28, a factor that contributed greatly to the esprit de corps.

Now that he has tasted international competition, Ferguson is ready for more. That's why he thinks "it's just great" that the Canadian Amateur will be played here next year.

With two teams to work on, the "timing couldn't be better."

FEET UP after returning from South Africa, Victoria's Cec Ferguson takes well-deserved rest after winning all his matches in Commonwealth golf competition in Durban. Next major project for Gorge Vale golfer is good performance in 1976 Canadian Amateur at Royal Colwood.

No Chance to Sting

By The Canadian Press

Cincinnati Stingers didn't get much chance to rough up Winnipeg Jets on Wednesday night.

They had their hands full just catching the fast-skating Jets, who humbled them 11-3 in a World Hockey Association game.

Winnipeg's Bobby Hull accused Cincinnati coach Terry Slater of encouraging rough play earlier this season, but Slater said the Jets weren't in any danger Wednesday night.

"We're not going to hurt anyone intentionally," said Slater. "We're going to go out and bodycheck people, but you have to skate with them to do that. We sure didn't do that tonight."

Hull said Wednesday he felt sorry for the Cincinnati players "because they must go out and follow the coach's wishes."

Hull, who sat out one game earlier this season in protest over an incident in a Cincinnati Winnipeg game, was penalized for tripping after he was twice decked by Cincinnati players.

The lop-sided win moved the Jets into a tie with Quebec Nordiques for the Canadian Division lead. Quebec has played one more game than Winnipeg.

A crowd of 6,527 saw Denver goalie Cam Newton stop 23 Cleveland shots, 11 of them in the first period.

POLICE HURT IN PUCK ROW

Times News Services

Five members of Beauce Jaros, an eastern U.S. team in the North American Hockey League, were arrested Wednesday night in a scuffle in which two policemen were injured while on duty at a game in Syracuse, N.Y., authorities said.

Police said Joe Hardy, the league's leading scorer, and James Troy, were charged with second-degree assault.

Wally Weir, Peter Folco and Giles Bilodeau, were each charged with disorderly conduct, obstructing governmental administration and resisting arrest, police said.

Weir, Folco and Bilodeau were in street clothes in the stands because they were under two-game suspensions as the result of conduct in another game.

The three were released on $300 bail after the incident, police said.

Precisely what led up to the arrests was not immediately known, but authorities said two policemen received head injuries, although not serious.

Paradise, 31, has been in the National Hockey Legue with Minnesota, Atlanta and Pittsburgh since 1971 after spending three years in the minors and being a member of the 1968 U.S. Olympic squad.

Supply and Demand

Victoria coach Pat Ginnell doesn't consider it a problem, but Cougars' supply of goaltenders remains greater than the demand.

Gerry Simpson, Dan Rogers and Murray Bannerman, all 18 years old and with another season of junior eligibility, remain on the roster of Victoria's Western Canada Hockey League team.

Ginnell admitted Wednesday he's trying to deal one to another WCHL team. It would have to be either Simpson or Rogers since Bannerman appears to have won No. 1 ranking on the strength of recent performances.

Ginnell is reluctant to send any of his goalies to a tier two team but says the WCHL's Calgary Centennials have shown "some interest." Calgary general manager Jack Tennant has recalled one goalie from the Alberta Junior League and says he will further discuss a possible trade when the Centennials arrive in Victoria next week.

Calgary starts a four-game B.C. visit Saturday.

Medicine Hat Tigers, meanwhile, haven't found any great enjoyment on their swing into B.C. Only four points ahead of the fourth-place Cougars, the Tigers lost their fourth straight game in B.C. when beaten 4-2 Wednesday in New Westminster.

Goalie Carey Walker was outstanding for the Bruins, making 29 stops, including 14 in the final period.

Tour Matches Hit By Soaring Costs

RUGBY
max low

It's a cruel fact of life that today's high cost of doing things is preventing many people from doing them.

Take rugby.

True, we are getting one big match here this season when the Victoria Crimson Tide takes on the might of the Japanese national team in the spring. There could have been more such games, but the cost of that visit alone is likely to be so high that the Victoria Rugby Union could afford nothing extra.

Union president Alan Rees says Victoria's share of the four-game B.C. tour (three matches will be in Vancouver) was originally estimated at $6,000. But island officials are trimming the frills for this part of the Japanese team's visit and hope to get away with spending only $3,500. Including air fares, the whole cost to B.C. of hosting the visitors is expected to be $22,000.

As Don Burgess of Victoria, Canada's technical coaching director, says "the cost of hosting touring sides is getting out of hand."

Burgess said B.C. had a chance to get the Australian national team, now sweepisg Britain on a wave of popularity, to play here on the way home but the cost would be too much.

The Australians, who were brutal when England toured their country last year, have settled down a lot under the guidance of manager-coach Ross Turnbull (he was here in Victoria with the New South Wales Country side just over a year ago) and are now playing attractive rugby.

And wherever they go there is plenty of scoring. And that's just what the fans like. In Wales they tied 28-28 with Llanelli and they beat Ulster 30-25. There's none of that dour 2-0 stuff for the Aussies.

"They could have played in B.C. on their way back," says Burgess, "but the stopover cost was something like $5,000 and the date mentioned was Jan. 27. That's a pretty difficult time to promise good field conditions and a hard time to get a good crowd out to help pay for the visit."

Victoria also had a chance to have the famed Barbarians from England play here on June 2. But the union voted "no" and instead they will play in Vancouver. Cost was a big part of that decision.

As Rees says, "We felt that as we were already hosting Japan, that was enough to handle."

Rees also pointed out that B.C. had previously laid down guidelines stipulating that no team be invited here during the months from June to September because of the pressure from the number of teams wanting to come and because it's a bad time to get people out to watch rugby.

"Vancouver turned the Barbarians game down, too, for this reason," says Rees, "but the Canadian Rugby Union put pressure on them to take it."

BOWLER OF WEEK

Firing 234-200-232—666 series in Wednesday Men's Commercial League at Mayfair Lanes, Bob McCullagh captured men's tenpin award in eighth week of Times 13th annual Bowler-of-the-Week contest.

Tall Test for Vikings

Don't be fooled by UBC Thunderbirds' record in the Canada West University Athletic Association men's basketball league. They're a lot better than their 1-3 won-lost mark indicates.

That could be a problem for UVic Vikings, who plays the T-Birds in a Friday-Saturday doubleheader starting at 8:30 both nights at the McKinnon gym.

Vikings are riding the crest of a four-game winning streak and are in first place all alone but coach Gary Taylor is cautious.

"It's not going to be an easy task," he admitted Thursday. "They beat a very fine team last weekend in Calgary and they have a lot of height. They have the tallest front line of any team in the country."

Among the UBC skyscrapers are Mike McKay at six feet, 11½ inches, Bob Dunlop and newcomer Jan Bohn from Vancouver City College, both 6-8.

Vikings' Lee Edmonson (6-5) will probably wind up checking McKay while Jim Duddridge (6-5) checks Bohn and Lorn Dakin (6-5) goes against Dunlop.

Vikings have been playing well defensively with guards Tim Carlson, Robbie Parris, Doug Mosher and Bert Zethof lealing the way. Zethof has recovered from a pulled back muscle while Dakin is getting over a heavy cold he picked up last weekend in Vikings' two wins over Saskatchewan Huskies.

UVic Vikettes also put a 4-0 record on the line in a pair of games against UBC Thunderettes starting at 6:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday at McKinnon.

A key factor in Vikettes' success has been a zone press in which they allow their opponents to make one play in their own end, then try to trap them on the sidelines or at centre court.

"We can do it this year because our front line people are very quick and anticipate well," coach Mike Gallo explained. "We try to make them (the opposition) put the ball where we want it."

Thunderettes lost several of last year's players, including Carol Turney, Nora Ballantyne and Kathy Burdett, and are tied for third in the standings with a 2-2 mark.

The Viking Jayvees also play UBC in games Friday and Saturday, both starting at 4:30 p.m.

Lumber String on Line

Victoria Home Lumber, the only senior "A" team in the Victoria Women's Basketball League, will put a 13-game unbeaten streak in both league and exhibition play on the line this Sunday.

Home Lumber, which under the label Saanich Westerners finished second to Vancouver BuzzBombs in the provincial final last season, will take on the University of British Columbia Thunderettes in an exhibition contest at 12:30 p.m. in the University of Victoria old gymnasium.

Wendy Grant, who was a first-string guard with BuzzBombs when the Vancouver club went on to collect the Canadian title last season, has since joined Home Lumber and added strength along with guard Donna Blackstock, who played with UVic Vikettes last season.

Further depth is supplied to Home Lumber by some outstanding holdovers, including Mary Coutts, Angie Dobie and Dee Freethy.

In league games Sunday at the old UVic gym, UVic Juniors face London Boxing Club at 2:30 p.m. while First United Unitys take on Senior "B" 1 at 4:30.

Rowing Sunday

Leading rowers from B.C., Alberta, Washington and Oregon have entered the Elk Lake Fall Regatta sponsored by the Victoria City Rowing Club.

Races begin at 10 a.m. Sunday on the Elk Lake course and are expected to end about 3 p.m.

Among the entries is Chris Alsopp of Seattle, who has competed in the world championships. Alsopp is the defending elite singles champion in the Elk Lake competition, having defeated Victoria's Mike Cullin last year.

Events will consist of singles and doubles races for novices, juniors, seniors and elites, both men and women.

JUNIORS PULL UPSET

While the rich got richer, the poor certainly didn't get any poorer during Victoria Senior "B" Men's Basketball League action Wednesday at Cedar Hill Junior High.

London Boxing Club Seniors extended their unbeaten streak to eight games by smashing Stevens Interiors 81-68 and Victoria and District Junior Men picked up their first victory in nine starts this season by upsetting London Boxing Club Juniors, 67-46.

Jim McKay and Alfred Hass fired 17 and 16 points, respectively, to set the pace as five of th nine Boxing Club Senior players hit for double figures.

Oak Bay POC

ELECTION CORNER

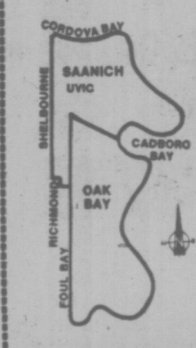

SCOTT WALLACE

In two previous elections, I have used this Column to spell out for the voters in the Oak Bay Riding, my position on the important issues. Since it is even more important in this election that voters should know my stand on the issues, this column will be appearing regularly until election day, Dec. 11. Reaction and response from residents in the Riding will be greatly appreciated.

My campaign committee is operating two offices, one in Oak Bay, and one in Saanich, with phones and addresses as listed below. In this initial column I would like to stress the boundaries of the Oak Bay Riding, which should more accurately be called OAK BAY-EAST SAANICH since that part of Saanich Municipality lying east of Shelbourne and bounded on the north by Cordova Bay is included in the Oak Bay Provincial Riding. When I knock on doors in the Saanich part of the riding (Gordon Head), the Residents are often unaware of the fact that they vote in the Oak Bay Riding at the provincial elections. The map beside this column illustrates the riding Boundaries and I hope residents living in the Saanich part of the riding, as well as in the Oak Bay Municipality will read this column daily and contact me if they have comments or queries.

As in previous elections, I will go from door to door throughout the riding to give individual voters the opportunity to meet me face to face and discuss matters which concern them. My responsibilities as Leader of the Progressive Conservative Party, mean that some of my time will be spent in other Ridings. It is my intention now, as always, to devote the maximum possible amount of time and attention to the people I was elected to represent, the Voters in Oak Bay Provincial riding.

BOUNDARIES:
Saanich Area East of Shelbourne & South to DVA Hospital. All of Oak Bay Municipality.

Ray's Improve Hold

CHEMAINUS — Victoria Ray's protected their hold on third place in the South Island Junior "B" Hockey League by clipping Fuller Lake Flyers 5-4 here Wednesday.

Sparked by Norm Allen's three goals, Ray's moved three points ahead of the fourth-place Flyers.

Lansdowne Girls Reign In Volleyball

Lansdowne captured the Greater Victoria junior high school girls' volleyball championship Wednesday night by defeating Central 15-8, 6-15, 15-3 in the final at S. J. Willis Junior High School.

Two three-team divisions battled through preliminary round-robin play to produce the finalists. Lansdowne advanced with victories over Arbutus and Cedar Hill while Central went ahead with wins over Colquitz and S. J. Willis.

Lansdowne, Central and Cedar Hill, which won third place in a playoff against Colquitz, will tangle with three up-Island schools for the Vancouver Island title Dec. 5 at S. J. Willis.

Invaders Face Argos In B.C. Final

Oak Bay Invaders, the unbeaten Vancouver Island Bantam Football League champions, will tackle Mainland representative North Shore Argos in a sudden-death battle for the B.C. title Sunday at Royal Athletic Park.

Invaders advanced to the provincial final by beating Cowichan Chiefs 29-14 while Argos captured the berth by tripping Surrey Rams, 28-14.

Invaders will rely mainly on a powerful offence, led by quarterback John Mace and halfbacks Craig Bentley and Paul Hughes.

Canadians Top Bucks

Perry Head and Dale McLaughlin each scored twice Wednesday to lead James Bay Canadians to a 6-5 Big Six Hockey League victory over Victoria Buckaroos.

Al Goldade and Darryl Ell counted James Bay's other goals. Ross Swanton scored three times while Randy Kranz and Doug Berger added singles for Buckaroos.

Belmont Breezes

Showing depth and balance, Belmont Braves had little trouble defeating Cowichan Timbermen 91-59 in a high school boys' basketball exhibition at Belmont.

Little Rough Play Forecast

PHILADELPHIA (CP) — Scotty Morrison, National Hockey League referee-in-chief, said Wednesday he doesn't anticipate any abnormally rough play in the forthcoming NHL series against two Russian teams.

"Unlike the two previous series against the Russians in 1972 and 1974, I don't think there will be so much of a chance for a buildup of animosities in this series," Morrison said in a telephone interview.

The coming series features the two Russian teams playing four games each, against four different NHL clubs.

The Soviet Army team will visit New York Rangers on Dec. 28, Montreal Canadiens on Dec. 31, Boston Bruins on Jan. 8 and Philadelphia Flyers on Jan. 11. The Soviet Wings visit Pittsburgh Penguins on Dec. 29, Buffalo Sabres on Jan. 4, Chicago Black Hawks on Jan. 7 and New York Islanders on Jan. 10.

The 1972 and 1974 eight-game series featured the Russian national team playing against a Canadian team made up of NHL players in 1972 and World Hockey Association players in 1974. The 1974 series especially saw tempers flare and several incidents broke out between opposing players. Both series were played with amateur referees.

Morrison said the entire upcoming series will be played under NHL rules with the possible exception of the curved stick ban. It is expected most of the Russians will have sticks with blades curved more severely than allowed in the NHL but this matter will be discussed further, Morrison said.

While he hasn't set the assignments for game officials, Morrison said he has selected a lineup. Two Russian officials — Victor Dombrowski and Yuri Karandin — will each work two games as referees and two games eac as erees and two games each as linesmen. When they work as referees, they will be accom-

The NHL officials will be referees Lloyd Gilmour, Bruce Hood, Wally Harris and Ron Wicks, and linesmen John D'Amico, Neil Armstrong, Matt Pavelich, Leon Stickle and Claude Bechard.

Bad Night For Soccer Visitors

Times News Services

Visiting teams drew blanks Wednesday night as the first leg ties of the European Football Union (UEFA) Cup were played off, with England's Liverpool the exception.

Liverpool, competing in Europe for the 12th successive season, won 2-1 in Poland against Slask Wroclaw in freezing conditions.

Ray Kennedy and Welsh star John Toshack put the visitors ahead in the second half but the Poles got one goal back in a final push.

Poland's other survivor, Stal Mielec, held its Czechoslovak hosts, Inter-Bratislava, to a goalless draw until Sajanek, who starred in the recent Czechoslovakia-England under-23 match, pounced on a goalkeeping error in the dying seconds of the game.

Dynamo Dresden will take a three-goal lead to the Soviet Union for the second leg of their tie against Moscow Torpedo in two weeks time.

Dieter Riedel put the East Germans ahead then scored a second with 15 minutes to go World Cup star Hans-Juergen Kreische headed the third in the last minute.

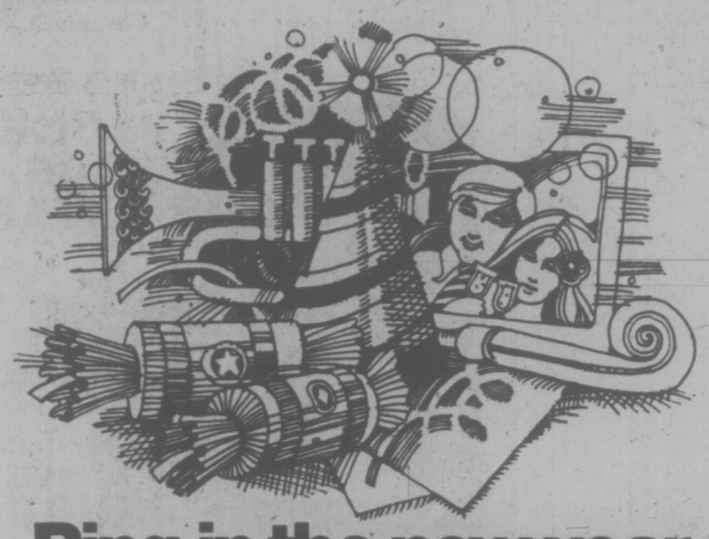

Portugal's FC Porto was another visiting team to depart empty handed from a first leg trek. Porto went down in Hamburg to an early own goal which the West Germans widened to a 2-0 margin by a penalty taken by Volkert in the closing seconds.

FOREMAN ENDS IT QUICKLY

KIAMESHA LAKE, N.Y. (AP) — George Foreman, former world heavyweight champion, stopped Jody Ballard 30 seconds into the second round of a benefit bout for the United States Olympic Fund on Wednesday night.

Foreman, weighing in at 229 pounds, took control early and never let up. He had the 202-pound Ballard on the mat as the bell sounded ending the first round and put him down again early in the second round before referee Arthur Mercante ended the fight.

He started off with a series of left jabs to the face of Ballard, a 24-year-old boxer from Houston, who has a 22-3 professional record and had won his last eight fights. A series of lefts and rights had Ballard on the ropes late in the round, and he finally went down from a left-right combination. Bullard was climbing to his feet at the count of two when the bell sounded.

Foreman went right back at his opponent at the start of the second round, unleashing a series of combinations that sent Ballard back to the canvas. While Ballard was still down, Mercante stepped in and halted the exhibition.

World Curling Schedule Set

TORONTO (CP) — Organizers of the woird curling championships have announced the schedule for the 1976 championships to be played at Duluth, Minn.

The 10-country, round-robin competition is scheduled for March 22-26. The semi-finals will be played on Saturday, March 27, and the final on March 28.

The organizers announced that the modified playoff system introduced this year will be used again. The system calls for any rink undefeated after the round-robin to be given a bye into the final and the second and third rinks to play off in the semi-final.

But if no rink is undefeated in the round-robin, then the top four rinks play off in the semi-finals.

Countries entered in the 1976 championship are defending champion Switzerland, Canada, the United States, Sweden, Norway, Italy, Scotland, West Germany France and Denmark.

Ban Appealed

OTTAWA (CP) — Joan Wenzel is appealing her life suspension from amateur track and field events and the Canadian Track and Field Association "will support her all the way," its executive-director said here Wednesday.

Ken Twigg said Mrs. Wenzel decided to launch her appeal after meeting Tuesday with the association executive.

Mrs. Wenzel was suspended because a urine test after the women's 800-metre race at the Pan-American games in Mexico City last summer revealed traces of amphetamines, a banned drug.

The Waterloo, Ont., woman explained that she had inadvertently taken an antihistamine pill the night before the race.

Dr. Ted Percy, the Canadian team medical officer, said the pill, a common cold tablet which can be bought without prescription, apparently became mixed up with vitamin pills Mrs. Wenzel was taking.

Mrs. Wenzel returned the bronze medal she won in the race and assumed she would be eligible for future competitions. A telegram Friday from the International Amateur Athletic Federation in London, England, informed her of the suspension.

"We're very sympathetic about the whole thing and will back Joan in her appeal," Twigg said.

"But, the appeal may not be heard until an IAAF meeting in April. What it means immediately is that Joan will miss the indoor track season, unable to compete because anyone who runs against a banned athlete risks suspension as well."

Alta. Socreds Facing Crisis

EDMONTON (CP) — The Alberta Social Credit party charts its route to political survival at a three-day annual convention here opening tonight.

Heading into its 41st convention, the party that governed Alberta for half the province's life is technically leaderless, its strength in the legislature is decimated and it is totally overshadowed by a powerful Conservative party.

Bob Clark, the youthful former education minister who is the party's house leader in the legislature, is expected to tell delegates that the party is finished unless it changes course, changes its name and gets serious about acting as a viable alternative to the government of Peter Lougheed.

Official convention literature says the party "has just completed a year of soul searching and now is engaged in the task of problem solving and policy making for the 70s and 80s."

The last year included more than soul searching — party representation in the 75-seat legislature was almost wiped out, dropping to a four-man remnant from the 24-member opposition group that went into the March 26 election debacle.

In the last several months, the four surviving Social Credit MLAs have held seminars across the province trying to gauge what grassroots support is left in the wake of the election that saw the Conservatives pile up the highest popular vote in the province's history.

They tried to get across the message that "we will survive if the people of the province want us to survive," says Walter Buck, Social Credit MLA for Clover Bar.

He insists the conclusion is that there "is room in this province for a viable opposition," but the effort displayed at this week's meeting may be an indication of whether Social Credit will be that opposition.

The party hopes to attract a group of committted delegates — "If we get 200 we'll be happy," says Dr. Buck — to the convention to think about where it should go from here.

Publicly, the meeting is billed as a "working convention" to nail down "firm stands" on educational priorities, law and order, environmental quality, inflation and government accountability.

But it will be more concerned with making sense out of its confused leadership situation — although there won't be a formal leadership contest — and whether it can cast off its image of 1935 "funny money."

"We've had to lie down and bleed and look at where we should go," said Dr. Buck, whose name has been prominently mentioned along with that of Clark as a possible future party leader. The legislature caucus and party board have decided to hold off any formal leadership contest for a year because first "we want to find out if the leader has anything to lead."

Clark, who is to give a major address Friday night, is expected to suggest the party must move away from its insular Social Credit orientation to amore broadlly-based "Alberta party" that will welcome Liberals and disgruntled Conservatives into the fold.

It is reported Clark likely will tell the convention he will stay on as interim leader until a leadership convention is held in the fall of 1976.

The convention will have to endorse formally his interim leadership. The job he now holds as top spokesman actually doesn't exist in the party constitution and his authority as top decision-maker has never been ratified by convention delegates.

Bhutto Asked To Resign In Pakistan

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (UPI) — Pakistan's major opposition parties have asked Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto to step down, and called on their own politicians to leave their posts in protest against Bhutto.

The right-leaning parties announced a joint plan Wednesday to resist what they called undemocratic and unconstitutional rule by Bhuttos' four-year-old government.

The announcement said the eight parties called on their members to resign their legislative seats at an unspecified "appropriate time."

The plan was outlined in a resolution passed following a two-day meeting of party leaders.

The resolution accused Bhutto of "destroying democracy to perpetuate his dictatorial rule, ruining the country's economy by wrong policies and worsening the law and order situation in the country."

The party leaders said fair and impartial elections were not possible with Bhutto in power and demanded that he resign from his office without delay.

They condemned various actions of the government including the ouster of opposition members of parliament earlier this month.

Nine opposition lawmakers were expelled from the national assembly by the assembly security staff when they refused to obey the speaker's order to withdraw from the house for alleged disorderly behavior.

Crisis at Palace

LONDON (AP) — The ceremonial changing of the guard at Buckingham Palace no longer will be a daily occurrence, and the government has indicated the tourist attraction is a victim of Britain's manpower crisis.

Chamber to Press for Night Ferries

Victoria Chamber of Commerce directors Wednesday voted to ask the four provincial party leaders and all local election candidates what plans they have for upgrading the ferry service between Vancouver Island and the Mainland

Transportation committee director Bruce McKay raised the issue at a lunch meeting Wednesday noon at the Strathcona Hotel by saying late-night ferries were a major issue in the 1972 provincial election but political parties are silent about them now.

McKay said both the NDP and Social Credit promised to bring in late night ferry sailings if elected.

(Former premier W.A.C. Bennett promised in 1972 to bring in late ferry sailings on a trial basis if re-elected. He was defeated. Dave Barrett made no pledge for the NDP but Esquimalt NDP candidate Jim Gorst said the NDP would bring in late ferry sailings. Gorst was unable to make good on the pledge. He has not been re-nominated.)

McKay said with the growth of the Victoria area late ferries are even more important in 1975 than they were in 1972.

"The silence by all political parties is very strange. I think we should raise this issue and find out where the candidates stand on the question."

McKay and chamber manager Brian Small will jointly poll the party leaders and local candidates and publicize their findings.

The question will be put to the local candidates when they appear on consecutive all-party forums on Channel 10 at 7 p.m. Monday to Thursday next week, sponosred by the Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce

In other business, the Victoria chamber directors voted to send a telegram to the national executive of the postal workers union urging a free vote on the latest government pay offer.

Vice-president Alan Emery, acting president in the absence of president Jack Hutchins, said the chamber did not wish to take sides in the postal dispute and was not urging the government to legislate the postmen back to work. However, it would only be fair to let the workers vote on the government offer because so many workers indicate they want an opportunity to do so, Emery said.

Small said it would be difficult to calculate the total amount lost because of the strike but it would be considerable.

Most hard hit, he said, are small businesses which don't have the staff to send around collecting and must borrow from the bank to meet their expenses. Greeting card stores usually do 40 per cent of their business in the Christmas season and it may all be lost this year, he said.

Jaycees vice-president Bill Hyde said his organization will go on its annual Santa ship tour Dec. 12, 13 and 14, taking toys to children on the Gulf Islands

Floss Prior, chamber tourist and convention director, reported a city flower week is in the works for Feb. 1 to 7 with a central office to be established where residents can phone in and report on what flowers are blossoming in their gardens. The tentative slogan for the event is: Victoria the Best Blooming City in Canada.

UN Asks S.A. To Quit Namibia

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) —The UN General Assembly again Wednesday asked South Africa to withdraw from Namibia and confirmed the right of the people in the territory to self-determiniation and independence.

In a resolution adopted 110-0, with 7 abstentions, the General Assembly also reitered its recognition of the South West Africa People's Organization as "the authentic representative of the Namibian people.

Your Social Credit Candidate For Saanich and the Islands

A RECORD OF SERVICE IN THE PAST

A PROMISE OF SERVICE IN THE FUTURE

On Dec. 11th ELECT

HUGH CURTIS

And The B.C. Social Credit Party Have Set These goals

1. Make the B.C. Land Commission workable and involve it directly with the people in various regions of the province. What is urgently required on the Saanich peninsula may not be suitable in the northern interior.
2. Prohibit the non-agricultural use of farm land, but insure that the Land Commission is responsive to the majority opinion of elected regional boards.
3. Remove the centralized bureaucratic tangles which have been created by a non-elected board which is not accountable to the public.
4. Amend the Land Commission Act to permit full appeal procedures to be carried out in public—not behind closed doors.
5. Establish a detailed "appeal procedure" so that residents in a municipality or regional district can speak out effectively when it is felt that open space or greenbelt land is threatened by development proposals and the local jurisdiction has ruled in error.
6. Recognize the urgent need to maintain open-space, particularly adjacent to metropolitan areas; for agricultural, recreational and parks purposes. Encourage municipalities and regional districts to participate with the province in acquiring lands which are offered for sale and should be in public ownership.
7. Designate or "zone" parkland in perpetuity in order to avoid gradual erosion of parks boundaries in the future.

RIGHTS RULING POSTPONED

UNITED NATIONS (Reuter) — The General Assembly's social committee postponed indefinitely Wednesday a draft resolution proposed by Chile to set up permanent machinery to investigate human rights violations.

Chile submitted the proposal Monday, after the committee adopted a resolution Nov. 11 accusing Chile of "constant, flagrant violations of human rights."

LONG, LEAN JON YORK IS BACK

Back in town for a couple of weeks' entertaining at the Tally-Ho Travelodge cocktail lounge, is long, lean Jon York, veteran of the folk and country entertainment circuit.

York's home base is now Vancouver where he's busy with shows, films and the preparation of an LP.

In 1970 York tried to put down roots in Victoria but there was not enough work so after about a year he moved to the mainland.

During 1973-74 he made five movies, including a documentary, an episode of the Beachcombers for CBC, a Disney production, The Bears and I, and two full length films for U.S. firms.

He has also been offered a contract by the world's biggest record producing company — EMI.

He says he has evolved from straight folk to a style for which he has coined the title, city-country. The album, however, he says, will be straight country.

A TEAM THAT WORKS

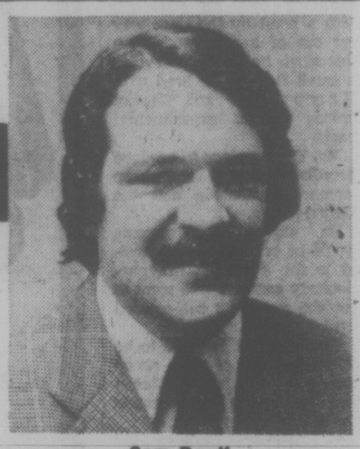

They'll work hard for this community and its people. They'll work hard for a return to responsible government. On December 11, put them to work for you.

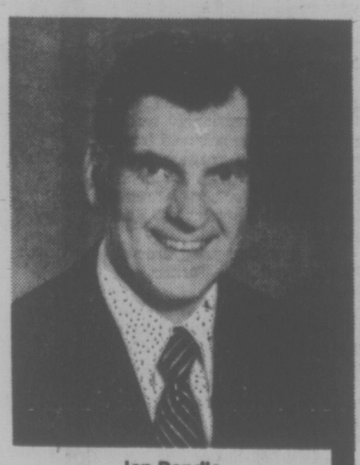

- Extravagance, Waste and Sloppy Bookkeeping must be eliminated. Public borrowing from undisclosed sources must stop. An independant auditor-general should be appointed to monitor the spending of every government department.
- The trend towards centralized control in our schools must be reversed. Local school boards must be given greater automony, individual teachers given the freedom and security to re-establish the quality of education this province needs.
- There must be the establishment of a housing plan that will work. And work fast. Local governments must be encouraged to assemble and service land. Extensive grants and tax incentives must be available through the private sector. This way everyone can have a home. A home they can afford.

More ways they'll work for you:
They promise to fight for fairer taxes for Victoria by making the Provincial Government accept its fair share of property taxes.
They promise to get the ferries working properly again.
They want provincial taxes for those over 65 eliminated.
They want something done about electoral reform.
But most of all, they want to get to work and get this province back to work.

N.S. Puts Brakes on Gov't Spending

HALIFAX (CP) — The Nova Scotia government Monday outlined a program of restraints in public service expenditures linked with an announcement of increased spending for makework projects.

Under the restraint program, the staffing of the public service will be held to within one per cent of its present size by restricting recruitment to essential replacements.

The program also includes restrictions in overtime, travel by public servants, government acquisition of land for purposes other than housing, a review of all inter-governmental programs to achieve maximum productivity and a sharp cut in open-ended expenditures.

Newfoundlanders today, meanwhile, began paying Canada's highest retail sales tax on all purchases, except those necessary for keeping warm, clothed and fed.

The tax was increased to 10 per cent from eight in a supplementary budget introduced in the legislature Monday by William Doody, the Progressive Conservative government's finance minister, who announced several other measures aimed at reducing a $30 million deficit to $11.3 million by March 31.

Former premier Joseph Smallwood, who prepared most of the budgets brought down during his 22 years as Liberal premier, says he is "bitterly disaapointed."

Smallwood, now leader of the four-member Liberal Reform caucus said his party and most Newfoundlanders would have supported "a really drastic effort to balance the budget."

But, he said, the government is going to end the year with a deficit "despite all their new taxes and retrenchments.

New Breed Of Sheep

ST. PAUL'S, N.S. (CP) — An immigrant Welshman who raises sheep near this Pictou County village has a new breed of sheep on his farm, the third time in nine years he has introduced a new breed to Nova Scotia.

Five years ago he brought in the Clun Forest breed and three years ago he introduced Wiltshire Horns. Both have survived well on his 300-acre hilly spread and now they've been joined by sheep of the Jacobs breed.

The sheep are a key part of Mr. Turner's mixed-farm operation, which also includes saddleback hogs and Welsh Blacks beef cattle, which he crosses with Guernseys and Holsteins.

The new arrivals include five ewes and a ram and he estimates they will cost him $600 a head by the time they get out of quarantine. From this stock he plans to develop a small flock to be bred with Hampshire and Cheviot breeds on an experimental basis.

Mr. Turner plans to produce breeding stock for sheep farmers is Canada and the United States.

He says U.S. interests would be particularly interested in the Jacobs breed, particularly weavers who want to get the naturally self-colored wool.

The breed is believed to be the descendant of those sheep raised by the biblical Jacob and from which he had made the coat of many colors.

Mr. Turner is hoping this latest experiment will be as successful as the two previous ventures.

The stories of his work with the Clun Forest and Wiltshire breeds are stories of success.

He brought 39 Clun ewes and two rams to Canada and they did "astonishingly well" and since being released from quarantine two years ago he has sold more than 200 head of breeding stock to farmers in several provinces and states.

"It's the only time in my life I've made a good profit and I've been farming for over 30 years."

The Wiltshire Horns have just begun to give returns. They are part of a rare breed of which only 300 to 400 ewes remain in the world.

The breed dropped in market potential after the Second World War because they were large and "woolless." In reality, they shed their wool.

"This lack of wool reduced the profit," says Mr. Turner, and with current wool prices in a "laughable state," demand for carcasses meant good prices and "I consider there's a future for Wiltshires."

Since their release from quarantine early this year, breeding stock has been sold to interests in Louisiana, Vermont and Maine.

BLENDER CARROT SOUP A CREAMY DELIGHT

By MARY MOORE

Carrots are plentiful and comparatively cheap — especially if you have them in your own garden — which I do.

If you had been sitting beside me at my desk as I opened the mail you would have been impresssed with the number of requests for more and more blender soups. Readers love them.

Maureen went through our file cards and fo und we had given recipes for blender soups using broccoli, celery, mushrooms, potatoes, asparagus, green peas, tomatoes, spinach, cauliflower and a combination of leftover vegetables. That is 10.

So here is an 11th calling for carrots. It results in a delicate orange cream soup and garnished generously with finely chopped parsley is a soup maker's delight. Cheap too. We served it to Bess Forbes, columnist with the Victoria Times.

BLENDER CREAM OF CARROT SOUP
(serves 4)

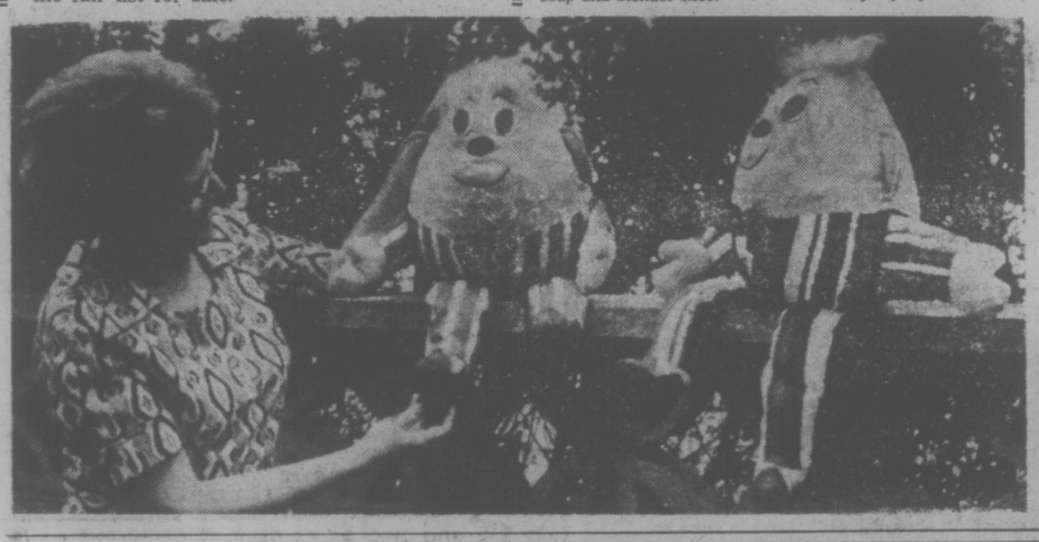

1½ c. chopped up raw carrots
1 medium onion chopped
1 c. water
½ tsp. salt
2 Tbsp. bacon fat or margarine
2 Tbsp. flour
1 chicken bouillon cube or sachet
2½ c. milk (could be reconstituted skim milk powder)
finely chopped parsley (for garnish)

Cook together the carrots, onion, water and salt 30 minutes until tender. When cooked I had 1½ cups including liquid. Cool enough to turn into your blender. Blend until you have a smooth puree.

Make a White Sauce: Melt bacon fat or margarine, stir in flour until blended then chicken bouillon cube or sachet. Then stir in milk until thick. Add carrot puree and reheat. To be sure this would not burn I reheated ours in the double boiler. Serve topped with finely chopped parsley or croutons.

Clip and add this to your soup and blender files.

DISPLAYING Humpty-Dumpty dolls which will be sold at the annual Christmas fair sponsored by the Ladies' Auxiliary for the Retarded is fair convenor Rita Stringer. Fair is from 10:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday at the First United Church Hall, 932 Balmoral Road. Home-baking, crafts, books, plants and novelties are also on the fair list for sale.

Photographer Clicks in Kitchen

CRAIG CLAIBORNE

NEW YORK (NYT) — We have for years been fascinated with recipes that blend meat or poultry with various kinds of seafood, for such combinations, superficially at least, seem incongrous.

The roster of such dishes is fairly lengthy and would include paella; the original version of chicken Marengo (first prepared on the battlefield by Napoleon's chef who included crawfish in the dish); and veal Oskar made with veal and crab.

When we heard that Dick-Davis, the photographer, was a specialist for ameijoas con carne de porco, which he cooks in a cataplana, we sought him out in his neatly appointed apartment in mid-town Manhattan.

Ameijoas con carne de porco is Portuguese for clams with pork, and it is a specialty of the famed Aviz restaurant in Lisbon.

A cataplana is an ingenious and fairly common cooking utensil in Portugal, consisting of a hinged, round, clam-shaped copper gadget in which foods are sealed and cooked almost hermetically.

"If you are born with creative instincts," Davis maintains, "there is no limit to what you can do."

Davis, in his role as photographer, has travelled extensively throughout the world and collected recipes along the way, empanadas from Peru, chilies en Nogales from Mexico; and so on, but one of his prizes is a family treasure dating back to the mid-1800s.

"Around 1850 a group of very wealthy people founded a commune called Brook Farm that predated the communes of young people today. The idea was to give up material possessions and live together in peace and work, dining off the land.

"At one time or another Ralph Waldo Emerson and Henry Longfellow and Nathaniel Hawthorne were briefly a part of it. One of the founders was a Mrs. Butterfield who was famous for a no-knead bread. She gave the recipe to my grandmother, and in my family we've always referred to it as Mama B's Brook Farm bread."

Among the dishes that have given Davis considerable pleasure:

STIR-FRIED BEEF WITH ASPARAGUS

5 tablespoons bottled teriyaki sauce
½ cup dry sherry
1 orange
4 cloves garlic, finely minced
10 very thin slices fresh ginger root
½ cup broken walnut halves
8 fresh asparagus spears
1 tablespoon cornstarch
3 tablespoons peanut or corn oil.

1. Cut the meat into very thin slices measuring about one eighth inch thick and 2¼ by ½ inch. Place the slices in a bowl and add the teriyaki sauce and wine. Let stand.

2. Peel the orange with a swivel-bladed paring knife. Cut the peel into very thin strips (fine julienne). Combine the peel with the garlic, ginger, root and walnuts. Set aside.

3. Cut the asparagus into two-and-one-half-inch lengths. Drop into boiling water and cook two minutes, no longer. Drain immediately and run under cold water. Drain well.

4. Drain the meat but reserve the marinade. Combine the meat with half the cornstarch and two tablespoons reserved marinade. Blend well.

5. Combine the remaining cornstarch with the remaining marinade and set aside.

6. Heat the oil and when it is very hot, add the meat, stirring rapidly. Cook briefly and add the garlic mixture. Stir to blend and add the asparagus pieces. Toss quickly.

7. Stir the cornstarch-marinade mixture and add it, stirring. Cook until the sauce is boiling and the ingredients are nicely glazed. Serve with rice.

Yield: Four servings.

AMEIJOAS CON CARNE DE PORCO
(Portuguese pork with clams)

1¼ pounds boneless loin of pork, cut into one-inch cubes
¾ cup dry white wine
Salt and freshly ground pepper to taste
2 tablespoons peanut, vegetable or corn oil
¼ to ½ teaspoon cayenne pepper or hot Hungarian paprika
1 dozen littleneck clams.

1. Place the pork in a mixing bowl and add the wine, salt and pepper. Let stand several hours. Drain and reserve one-third cup of the liquid.

2. Pat the pork dry. Heat the oil in a skillet and brown the prok well on all sides, adding more salt and pepper to taste.

3. Transfer the pork to a small, heavy utensil with a tight-fitting lid. Add the cayenne and reserved liquid and cover closely. Simmer 20 minutes. Add the clams, cover closely and cook six to eight minutes longer.

Yield: Four servings.

EMPANADAS
(Turnovers)

1 pound ground round steak
¾ cup finely chopped onion
3 cloves garlic, finely minced
20 pitted, unstuffed green olives, chopped
¼ cup chopped raisins
Salt to taste
2 canned jalapeno peppers, seeded and chopped, available in Mexican and Spanish-speaking markets and many supermarkets and grocery stores
1 recipe for cream cheese pastry (see recipe)
Beaten egg.

1. Place the meat in a skillet and cook, breaking up the meat with the side of a metal kitchen spoon. Add the onion and garlic and continue cooking, stirring and chopping down, until the meat is of uniform texture.

2. Add the olives, raisins, salt and jalapeno peppers. Cook until most of the liquid evaporates. Let cool.

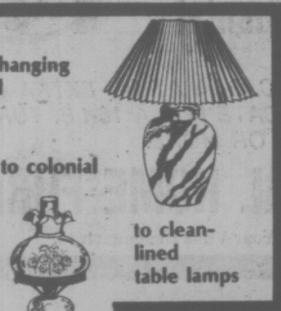

3. Preheat the oven to 375 degrees.

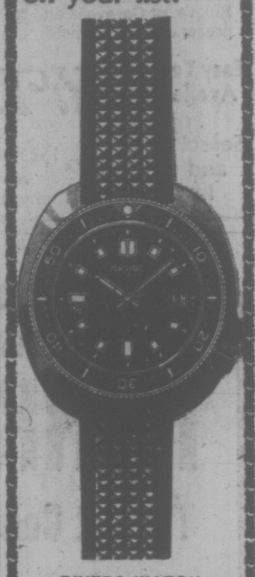

4. Roll out the pastry and use a biscuit cutter three inches in diameter to eut out 24 rounds.

5. Spoon small amounts of filling in the center of each round and fold over. Press down the edges with the tines of a fork to seal. Brush with beaten egg and bake 10 to 15 minutes or until golden brown.

Yield: Two dozen.

An Armful of Orchids To Oak Bay Candidate

elizabeth forbes

If I was giving out orchids today, I'd send a whole armful to Lee Jameson, Liberal candidate for Oak Bay in the forthcoming provincial election.

As head of the Oak Bay Liberal Association she did her best to find someone to run for the party.

Several promising names were uncovered but for one reason or another, the time was not right for any of them.

Despite the fact she had been asked on several occasions, it was only then that she consented to stand for the nomination and to carry the Liberal banner into the election.

That decision has given Oak Bay an opportunity to vote for a woman who is not only loyal to her political beliefs but also one who has been active in many phases of volunteer work in the Greater Victoria area.

Lee Jameson knows she has an uphill fight. She says quite frankly "it is no secret that the Liberal candidate in Oak Bay is the underdog."

She then adds "many people appear to be stampeding to join the Social Credit," but she hopes "in the next two weeks they will pause and consider that three years ago they leaped from the frying pan into the fire, and why should they leap back into the frying pan when a reasonable alternative is at hand."

In Oak Bay the Liberals "don't have a large official membership," she tells you.

"We don't have a healthy bank account. But we do have a principle and we do have a heart."

Ask her for some personal statistics and she says "I'm a farm girl."

This is explained by the fact she was born on a farm near the small town of Craik in Saskatchewan.

She graduated as a nurse from Regina General Hospital, received a public health certificate from McGill University, then worked with the Saskatchewan Department of Public Health until she came to Victoria to join the Victorian Order of Nurses.

Here she married Dr. Carron Jameson, well-known Victoria dentist, and they are now the proud parents of four grown-up daughters.

Lee is a member of Metropolitan United Church and a past president and honorary life member of the United Church Women.

She has served on the board of the Community Chest and also on the board of Rose Manor, a popular residence for elderly women.

Why did she consent to run as a candidate in Oak Bay?

"Because I feel it is important that the Liberals offer the citizens of this constituency the chance of voting for a pragmatic party whose philosophy of reform is based on a concern for the individual and his-her personal liberty."

That's the way she puts it.

Then she adds "I am opposed to the philosophy of government ownership of the NDP, and I am also opposed to the big business-father knows best attitude embraced by both Social Credit and Conservatives."

In her thinking there is no real difference in the philosophy of "the disgruntled Conservatives called Social Credit or the disgruntled Social Credit called Conservatives."

Also with the "jungle of candidates" that have been nominated for the Social Credit party, she wonders what would happen in caucus if Bill Bennett should become premier.

"The in-fighting would create another Tower of Babel," she suggests, "and the citizens of this province would be the losers."

"We may be badly battered and wounded but in the end we'll create a new era of personal freedom."

Then she lifts her head, looks directly at you and ends with the courageous hope that "in two weeks we won't have a Liberal candidate, we'll have a Liberal member of the Legislature in Oak Bay."

Do you wonder then that if I was sending out orchids, a whole armful would go to Lee Jameson.

One Last Word — Being a practical housewife as well as a Liberal candidate, Mrs. Jameson established her headquarters, as soon as she was nominated, in her own home, 2420 Landsdowne, at Cadboro Bay Road. The telephone number is 598-4551.

If you have any questions or you wish to help in any way, don't hesitate to call or telephone. You will recieve a friendly reception.

MUSTARD SAUCE ON HAM LOAF

¼ cup chopped onion
1 slice bread
1 cup rolled oats
¼ tsp. pepper
1 tsp. dry mustard
2 eggs
1 cup tomato juice

Sauce Ingredients:

½ cup brown sugar
2 tsp. dry mustard
¼ tsp. salt
⅛ tsp. pepper
2 tbsp. cornstarch
1 cup hot water
¼ cup vinegar

Trim any excess fat from the ham. Put ham and onion through grinder into large mixing bowl. Follow them through with a slice of bread to clean out the grinder. Mix in all remaining loaf ingredients. Line a greased 8½x4½" loaf pan from end to end with a strip of heavy wax paper for easier removal later. Press meat mixture in. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 1½ hours. Tip off any excess liquid. Turn out on platter and garnish with spiced pear halves or crabapples or serve with MUSTARD SAUCE: In medium saucepan combine all dry sauce ingredients well. Then stir in hot water and vinegar over medium high heat until thick and boiling. Serve in sauce boat.

Few Chances Open For Switched Teen

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 15-year-old girl with a terrible problem. I wanted to be popular with the dudes, so I smoked grass, got drunk and did things only married people should do. Now I want to change.

I haven't messed around for four months. I took a part-time job as a janitor at a restaurant, and I'm getting real good grades, but I'm still called a "whore."

Nobody will give me a chance, Abby. I have no friends. Girls are afraid they'll get a bad name if they're seen with me, and I can't blame them. Boys want only one thing, and since I've stopped putting out, they don't bother with me.

I hate myself. I've been so down and lonely lately. When I was a whore, at least I had someone to talk to. Shrinks are expensive, and there are no free clinces here for counseling.

All my teachers hate me because of my reputation, and I feel too cheap and dirty to go to church. Please help me. — Wants To Change.

DEAR WANTS: I'm proud of you. You have already grown spiritually, or you wouldn't have thought of going to church or changing your ways.

You're wrong, honey. Your teachers don't hate you, and you're not too "dirty" to go to church.

Pick the teacher you'd like most for a friend and meet her half-way. Also, go to church and give your clergyman a chance to help you. All you need to change your life is the will to do it. Please try and write to me again in six months and tell me how things are going. I care.

DEAR ABBY: In response to that 52-year-old woman who is going with a 34-year-old man. She's afraid her children and others will think she's making a fool of herself. She's also afraid people might think she is his mother.

I am 51, and I've been going with a very handsome, 28-year-old man for over two years.

Doyle and I don't care if someone mistakes me for his mother. After all, I am 23 years older than Doyle and that's old enough to be his mother.

The day I stopped worrying about what other people thought I started living.

I have a son who is older than Doyle, and he says, "Mom, anything that makes you happy is just fine with me."

If people limited their friends to their own age group, they'd miss a lot of fun. I say, enjoy what you have while you have it. It will all be gone too soon.—Californian

DEAR CAL: I'm with you!

DEAR ABBY: How does one address a congratulatory telegram to newlyweds who are retaining their individual surnames? Western Union couldn't give me an answer. Uncle Cliff

DEAR UNCLE: "Congratulations to Mary Smith and John Jones on your marriage."

DEAR ABBY: In response to the mother-to-be who asked whether some people were uncomfortable in the presence of a woman who was breast-feeding her baby in public, I would like to post a definite YES!

There is no excuse for a mother's nursing her baby in public. She can always find a rest room.Terre Haute Mom.

DEAR ABBY: What makes a person always want to be first with bad news?

I have a relative who can't wait to call up everybody she knows to tell them that a mutual friend has cancer.

When I answer the phone and she's on the other end, I automatically brace myself for some bad news. She also gives me all the gorey details of suicides, accidents and illnesses of people I don't even know. I try to cut her short, but there's no stopping her.

She is big-hearted and a good person basically, but this one fault sets my teeth on edge. Any suggestions?

N. Carolina

DEAR CAROLINA: Perhaps if you understood why she enjoy being the bearer of bad news, it would help you to be more compassionate. It gives her a feeling of "importance."

Canadian forests cover almost half of the country's total area. About half of this forest land contains saleable wood — some eight per cent of the world's total timber resources.

Since forest products add over $3 billion to our export trade, they are of the utmost importance to every Canadian.

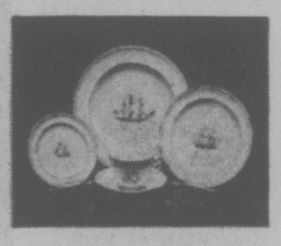

The 4-page fact sheet (precis d'information) "Foreaty and the Environment" ("Forestry and the Environment") makes it very clear that the value of our forests cannot be measured in dollars and cents. Forests stabilize the flow of rivers and minimize flooding. They provide a picturesque background for much of our recreational activities and they shelter a great variety of wildlife. The leaflet also discusses the pros and cons of clearcutting (removal of an entire crop in a given area) and selective cutting (cutting only the best and biggest trees).

You will also learn that each year insects kill about 250,000 acres of woodland and that forest fires cost Canadians $35 million annually. Trees may also be killed by air pollution. Most can stand injury for several years before they actually succumb.

To increase forest growth, fertilization has been introduced fairly recently. In Canada between 5,000 and 15,000 acres are now treated every year. In addition, about four million acres have already been artificially restocked. By 1985 this total will have grown to ten million acres.

Living with Executives Matter of Listening

TORONTO (CP) — "My wife greets me when I come home with two cold martinis, then she drinks them both. She says she needs them to get through an evening with me."

The man giving the new twist to the old martini story is Jack McQuaig, a top executive who gives lectures on how to live with a top executive.

The head of McQuaig Institute of Executive Development, Mr. McQuaig specializes in the selection and training of managers. He has been married for 27 years and is the father of five children.

In a recent lecture here, Mr. McQuaig said he believes a person's attitudes or skills or knowledge can be changed, but his temperament cannot.

Therefore, trying to change the basic person you married is like butting your head against a wall.

"By the time we're five years old we're fixed in certain very important ways. We've developed certain attitudes towards people and ourselves that never change without a traumatic experience."

And the key to living with a top exeective is to learn this valuable lesson, he said.

"Maybe top executives are grown-up boys. They are capable of solving all their problems if you will only listen to them solve their problems."

By developing this art of listening you can generate negotiations where everybody wins and nobody loses.

Top executives fall into categories, he said.

There is the specialist who is "a very thorough, dedicated, relaxed, steady person" who does not like social situations very much and is a non-leader.

This type of person often suffers from negative stress and is hard to live with.

Then there is the generalist who is a born leader, restless, dissatisfied, has highly developed social skills, is independent, strong-minded and determined.

This person is even more difficult to live with because he does not like controls

But the hardest of all to live with is the autocrat.

The autocrat is often a successful man, but he steps on toes and pushes people around.

If you are married to this type of executive you must accept the fact "your husband is a little bit mental, a little bit neurotic."

At a recent management course he gave at University of Waterloo, Mr. McQuaig said he found 90 per cent of the executives had once thought of divorce.

They asked him whether he had and he answered: "No, I haven't. I've thought of murder occasionally, but never divorce."

Soybean Experts Eye Revolution

DECATUR, Ill. (AP) — Soybeans may soon replace meat on many dinner tables.

That is the aim of food scientists in laboratories not far from the dusty brown fields where plump, protein-packed beans await the tractors and combines.

One soybean expert predicts a revolution in American eating habits similar to the one which saw margaine conquer butter in many households.

"The period is not too far in the future when many people will prefer soybean products to meat," said William T. Atkinson, 64, senior research chemist for Archer Daniels Midland Co. of Decatur, one of the world's largest soybean processers.

Nutritionists consider soybeans an almost perfect food, free of fat and starch and packed with twice as much crude protein as beef or fish, three times as much as eggs and 11 times as much mil,.

The United States agriculture department predicts this year's harvest, extending from mid-September to mid-November, will produce nearly 1.5 billion bushels of soybeans, close to the record 1.54 billion harvested in 1973.

This amount is more than three-quarters of the world's supply. Soybeans are the biggest American agricultural export.

But nearly all of the crop will be fed to animals, soybean processers say. Less than five per cent will be used in such things as margarine, cooking oil and other soybean products for people.

Increasing direct human consumption of soybeans would be of temendous significance in helping to solve the world's growing food shortage, scientists agree.

It takes several pounds of vegetable protein fed to livestock to produce a single pound of animal protein. Yet in all but the poorest countries most of the population gets most of its protein from meat.

The problem is that soybeans straight out of the pod have what many consider a bitter, unpleasant taste. Few other than vegetarians eat them plain.

The solution is to make soybeans taste — and even look and feel — like something else.

A processed 60-pound bushel of soybeans yields about 48 pounds of meal and 11 pounds of oil. The rest is waste.

The oil has been used commercially since the 1930s as an ingredient for paint and plastic.

Soybean meal was thrown away or used as fertilizer until the early 1950s.

"We were just submerged in the stuff and no one knew what to do with it," said Atkinson, who has been seeking new uses for the soybean through this 40-year career as a chemist.

In the 1950s, however, soybean meal began to be used as a protein supplement in feed for cattle, hogs and chickens, helping them grow bigger, faster and more cheaply.

A protein supplement for human consumption was also developed around 1950. It was in the form of a relatively tasteless powder, more than 90 per cent pure protein, which could be mixed with virtually any food to boost its nutritive value.

"We thought, 'Everybody is going to grab this stuff.' Boy, were we wrong. "People won't eat food just because it's good for them. Peple eat things because they're fun to eat, and you couln't have much fun eating a powder."

The breakthrough, in terms of increasing human consumption of soybeans, came in 1970, when processers invented a way of cooking the powder into a plastic-like liquid and forcing it through small holes to make Texturized Vegetable Protein (TVP).

In one form TVP can can be shaped, colored and flavored to resemble hamburger. Treated in different ways, it can be made to look, taste and chew like stew meat, and scientists are working on ways to imitate shrimp, mushrooms and other delicacies.

Soaring meat prices in 1973 sparked the appearance in many areas of ground beef mixed with TVP. Priced 10 to 20 per cent below the cost of pure ground beef, it is still available in some stores. One major midwestern supermarket chain, which calls its version of this product Tnd-R-Blenb, said sales dropped off slightly when meat prices declined, but have remained steady since.

"Now that we've got a way to give soybeans texture, there's no limit to what we'll be able to do with them," said Atkinson, who thinks young people will acquire a taste for soybeans by eating them in school.

"These beans are a wonder," he said. "You're going to be eating a lot more of them in the future."

No 'Blank Cheque' Stanfield Pledges

Stanfield

TORONTO (CP) — Robert Stanfield told 1,200 Progressive Conservative party faithful Wednesday night that he has no intention of giving the Liberal government a blank cheque when it comes to its program of selective wage and price controls.

Stanfield told the party fund-raising dinner gathering — termed by a party official as his last major political speech before he steps down as national leader — that the controls bill being introduced in Parliament and what the government has been talking about are two different things.

He charged that if and when the bill is passed the government can bring in whatever kind of controls program it chooses.

"The controls program being talked about today is not the bill," Stanfield said. "The bill strictly deals with sweeping powers and the government is seeking parliamentary approval for these powers on what amounts to an open-ended basis."

Stanfield charged that a year from now, with no reference ot Parliament and no open committee consideration, the government could drastically change its guidelines to something nothing like the ones being introduced today.

"When I think of the number of times the government has changed its mind ... I am not of a mind to willingly grant it that kind of blank cheque for anything beyond a limited and fixed period of time."

Stanfield repeated what he has said in Parliament when he called for the limiting of the program to 18 months rather than the 3½ years suggested by the government.

The powers being asked for under Bill C-73, the wage-and-price-control bill, should only be granted for a limited time, he said.

The party leader said that he was the first to propose the need for short-term controls to break inflation.

"We still stand by this need. This is quite a different thing from a longer-term incomes policy which attempts to contain the rate of inflation through an institutionalized process of government intervention."

Controls, he said, can only be used as a short-term measure to dampen inflation psychology.

They lose their effectiveness as "a cold-shower technique" after about 1½ years, he said.

'DON'T INVITE THE QUEEN'

OTTAWA (FP) — Massive protests will greet Queen Elizabeth if she is invited to officially open the Montreal Olympic Games next summer, according to Rene Matte (Cred-Champlain).

However, the Commons rejected a motion by Matte that the Queen not be invited, or if she already had that the invitation should be withdrawn.

A hubbub of protest from both sides of the House greeted the motion

Such motions which the rules say must be based on matters of "urgent and pressing necessity" require the unanimous consent of the House before they can be debated.

Matte also said that the "immense majority" of Quebecers do not regard Queen Elizabeth II as their sovereign.

Prime Minister Trudeau said Wednesday, meanwhile, it is "foolish" to say his government is not interested in the $1-billion Olympics.

In a spirited defence of the federal government decision not to give any more money to the Games, Trudeau told the Commons the federal government already has done a great deal to help the Games.

"All one has to do is look at the laws passed by Parliament in the last number of years . . which are responsible for the largest part of the financing of the Olympic Games," he said.

No Boost Seen For Armed Forces

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Minister James Richardson said Wednesday the size of the Canadian Armed Forces will remain at 78,000 and it will not be increased to provide more men for United Nations peacekeeping.

The minister said there are no immediate plans to close bases and, at any rate, bases will not be closed to accommodate the needs of peacekeeping.

He said he will make some consolidation recommendations to cabinet in a matter of months. But he would not say whether this would involve base closure.

The minister was responding to questions inside and outside the Commons about remarks made Tuesday by Gen. J. A. Dextraze, chief of defence staff.

The general told a Commons committee that the size of the forces has stabilized at 78,000 but he could use another 1,500 or so men because of the strains of peacekeeping.

He also told a reporter he might get the men by trimming expenditures elsewhere and hinted that that trimming might come through base closure.

The possibility of base closure brought questions from J. Angus MacLean (PC—Malpeque) who was concerned about the base at Summerside, P.E.I., and also from Michael Forestall (PC — Dartmouth-Halifax East).

The minister said in the Commons if there is any consolidation of the armed forces it will not be because of peacekeping needs. He said it would be simpler, when men in Canada are doing two and three jobs because of Middle East peacekeeping, to increase the size of the forces. But the decision was to stay at 78,000.

Land Sale Restrictions Urged for Foreigners

OTTAWA (CP) — A federal-provincial committee has recommended a series of measures to regulate land purchases by foreigners.

A report tabled in the commons Wednesday by Prime Minister Trudeau said foreign land buyers are not yet a problem in all areas but that most provinces want the means to control them if necessary.

So far, only Prince Edward Island and Saskatchewan have legislation restricting the sale of private land to aliens or non-residents, the report says.

It was prepared on the instructions of the prime minister and provincial premiers, and completed more than a year ago.

Adequate statistics on foreign land ownerships are unavailable but Prince Edward Island appears to be the most vulnerable because of its recreational and tourist attractions, the report suggests.

An estimated 6.3 per cent of all available land and 11.5 per cent of total shore frontage is owned by non-residents — people who reside outside the province, it says.

Despite restrictions, land owned by outsiders will rise to 25.7 per cent by 2000 if current trends continue, it forecasts. Non-residents would own half the province by 2000 if no regulations existed.

This could be done through the Citizenship Act by giving provincial cabinets the power to decide who is eligible to buy land, it says.

However, the authority should not restrict purchases by immigrants intending to become Canadian citizens, conflit with international obligations, discriminate between aliens on the basis of nationality or hinder foreign countries from acquiring property for embassies or other diplomatic purposes.

Change Not What Doctor Ordered

OTTAWA (CP) — Two medical magazines and an advertising group made separate pleas Wednesday before the Commons committee studying the goverenment's controversial magazine legislation.

The Association of Canadian Advertisers said that if the Canadian editions of Time and Reader's Digest are forced out of business, "the viability of the magazine medium is significantly reduced." The association, representing 215 Canadian advertisers, said the two magazines were "important selling vehicles."

President Thomas Blakeney told the committee that the two magazines receive less than 14 per cent of the advertising dollars spent in magazines. The government's proposed legislation therefore would not "free up" a large percentage of magazine advertising dollars, he said. Both magazines are circulated to doctors in Canada free of charge.

A brief from Modern Medicine said medicine and science are universal and it was imperative to have an international approach to medical literature.

Similar arguments were advanced by Vera Sabella, president of MD of Canada, which also is edited and produced in Canada, with some material from other international editions.

The legislation would affect the special tax status of Time, Reader's Digest, some other magazines, several border television stations and some newspapers.

Double Police for Habitat

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Vancouver police spokesman said Wednesday the force will have to nearly double the number of men on patrol if the United Nations-sponsored Habitat Conference is held here next year

Deputy chief Ted Oliver said "it is reasonable to expect large demonstrations" at the conference, noting that at least 20,000 persons are expected to flood into the city for the 13-day event next June.

Oliver said more than 200 regular constables and detectives plus another 41 reserve constables will be assigned specifically to duty at the conference.

The number is in addition to the 223 patrolmen usually assigned to guard the city on a 24-hour basis.

One squad of detectives will be assigned to handle possible cases involving persons with diplomatic immunity attending the conference.

Vancouver city council has asked for postponement of the Habitat conference because of concern that the presence of observers from the Palestine Liberation Organization might transform the city into an armed camp.

External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen said, however, the government plans to go ahead with the conference, despite the request

Mayor Art Phillips said later in an interview Wednesday that the city will continue as the host city for the conference only if the federal government insists that Habitat should continue.

"But we draw the line at financing the extra police costs," he said.

Estimates for police costs vary from $350,000 to $1 million.

Mayor Phillips said the city's objection "is not a bluff at all."

"We genuinely feel this conference will be hazardous, acrimonious and violent."

Phillips added that the conference could still take place without the support of city council

DANSON PLANS TO INTERVENE

OTTAWA (CP) — Urban Affairs Minister Barney Danson plans to go to Vancouver next week to deal personally with local opposition in the latest threat to the United Nations-sponsored Habitat conference.

Danson said outside the Commons that Vancouver will not be an "armed camp" during the Habitat conference next June, despite the presence of the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO). He reaffirmed federal support for the UN meeting.

"I expect I will go out next week to speak with city council because I think there has been a lack of proper political communication. I must take responsibility for that."

Danson echoed External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen's comment in the Commons Wednesday that the circumstances surrounding the Habitat conference are different from the UN crime conference which was moved to Geneva from Toronto this summer following an unsuccessful bid for postponement by Canada.

Basics To Woods Viability

VANCOUVER (CP) — Weyerhaeuser Canada Ltd. says in its second brief to the Pearse Royal Commission on Forest Resources that there are three basic criteria which must be met to achieve and maintain the economic viability of the interior pulp industry.

The brief, presented Wednesday, says they are:

—An assured long-term supply of economic wood through agreement with the B.C. government;

—Adequate long-term financing;

Pair Granted Execution Stay

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two men under sentence of death for the murder of an RCMP constable were granted a stay of execution Wednesday until Aug. 3, 1976.

Mr. Justice Kirke Smith granted the stay to Vincent John Cockriell, 19, of Powell River and John Harvey Miller, 29, of Langley, previously scheduled to hang Dec 16.

The two men were convicted of the murder of RCMP constable Roger Pierlet in nearby Cloverdale March 29 1974.

The stay of execution was granted pending appeal by the two men to the Supreme Court of Canada. Their appeals were previously dismissed by the B.C. Court of Appeal.

VANCOUVER (CP) — A provisional 1976 budget of $8.5 million was approved Wednesday by the Greater Vancouver Regional District's board of directors.

The amount represents more than a 30 per cent increase over 1975 spending of $5.07 million.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Hing Poy Wong, 47, of Vancouver has been committed for trial nearly 2½ years after he was originally charged with possessing 20 pounds of heroin for trafficking.

Wong was first charged June 16, 1973, however, the charge was stayed in February, 1974, to protect another investigation.

In November 1974, six men were arrested in a heroin conspiracy case to face trail in New York along with other suspects arrested in the United States and Asia.

The case against Wong was then reactivited.

HOPE (CP) — The Trans-Canada Highway will be reopened today after a rockslide four miles south of Boston Bar closed it Wednesday.

RCMP said that a work crew and machines were clearing the rock and it was first thought the highway would be opened in an hour.

"But the rock keeps coming down," a spokesman said Heavy rainfall and a freeze-thaw cycle were blamed for the slide. No motorists were caught in the slide.

Prison Plans Off

KAMLOOPS (CP) — A proposed $10 million maximum security prison slated for construction at Clearwater, 90 miles north of here, will not be built, MP Len Marchand (L — Kamloops-Cariboo) said Tuesday.

Marchand said public opposition in Clearwater is running at a high pitch so the government will be considering a second site for the prison.

He indicated a likely area would be Lillooet, about 120 miles north of Vancouver, because of the depressed state of the local economy.

He said a $10 million construction project would be "quite a shot in the arm for the local economy."

If the people of an area indicate they do not want a maximum security institution, there is no way we, as a government, will force it on them, said Marchand.

Unionist Defends System

VANCOUVER (CP) — A leading British Columbia trade unionist defended Wednesday the present system of collective bargaining and warned it should not be tinkered with "unless we are completely convinced that we have a workable alternative.

John Fryer, general secretary of the B.C. Government Employees Union (BCGEU), also told a labor seminar of the Greater Vancouver chapter of the International Personnel Management Association that the right to strike should also be left alone.

"I do not believe that it should be further restricted until we devise a way of settling industrial disputes equitably in its absence," he said.

Fryer said he is skeptical of pat solutions to labor relations problems adding, "the whole issue requires further study."

Planned Obsolescence In Eyeglasses Charged

By AB KENT
Times Staff

Planned obsolescence in the manufacture of eyeglasses was criticized Wednesday by a Victoria man appearing at the opening sitting here of a Restrictive Trade Practices Commission inquiry into Canada's ophthalmic industry.

J. W. G. Langley, 3937 Margot, was invited to address the commission by chairman Luc-Andre Couture, to whom Langley had written complaining that he was unable to have new frames supplied for old lenses although not needing a new prescription.

Langley recommended the optical industry be required to make available open stock lenses and frames for ready interchangeability where a consumer does not wish to change the style of his frames.

Couture said representatives of the industry would be given a chance to call evidence on the subject at a later time when the commission sits in Vancouver.

However, counsel Tom Heintzman appearing for Imperial Optical Co., suggested the difficulty lay more with Langley's optometrist than with the industry, and he produced samples of frames which have been available in Canada for up to 15 years.

Langley said his optometrist told him his old frames could not be repaired because the parts required were no longer available, and neither were replacement frames.

To get satisfaction, he had to buy a new style frame to which the old lenses could not be fitted, requiring new lenses to be ground, Langley said.

He suggested this built-in-obsolescence was worse than in the automobile industry, which at least continues to stock parts for older models.

The commission began hearings on the production, supply, distribution and sale of ophthalmic goods in Canada Nov. 5 in Ottawa and Victoria is the second of a total 15 cities where sittings will be held up to the end of March.

The hearing continued today before moving on to Montreal.

Much of the afternoon sitting Wednesday was taken up by questions on a short brief from the provincial government written and delivered by deputy minister of community health programs Dr. George Elliott, appearing for Health Minister Dennis Cocke.

He said the health department at present is not considering going into the business of making eyeglasses, contrary to a statement by Cocke which he made in Delta in October 1974.

Elliott said the minister at the time had been alarmed at the high cost of glasses in B.C. and said the province was interested in setting up a spectacle factory.

The deputy minister said Cocke is now interested in putting forward umbrella-type legislation similar to recently-adopted laws in Ontario that would include standards for the industry.

That move, he said, partly awaits the outcome of the current hearings being conducted under provisions of the Combines Investigation Act.

Elliott was questioned by Irvine Epstein, counsel for the Thomas Bradbury family whose policies control the multiple optometric interests of Fort Realty Ltd., of Victoria, with 54 outlets in three western provinces.

He was embarrassed as a citizen of B.C. that the provincial government's submission should be presented without at least "some basis of opinion" to back it.

Elliott said the government concurred in an accompanying brief to the minister without being able to support it in detail. The attachment is expected to be dealt with formally later.

Elliott said he could not divulge some of his sources of information but admitted speaking to six or seven of the top B.C. ophthalmologists, of which there are a total 116.

The brief also relied on material gathered since 1971 by the director of investigation and research under the Combines Act and known as "the green book," Elliott said.

After discussion within the department, the brief was read and initialled by Cocke.

Its main criticism was that the provincial government has long felt there is a monopoly in the Canadian optical industry, a belief emanating from an inquiry 17 years ago.

Elliott said 4-5 per cent of the 200-250 letters of complaint received by Cocke each week relate to the optical business, generally from "people who have had to pay what they consider a substantial sum for glasses." The province supports patients who believe "the price of spectacles is much higher than warranted."

The brief said B.C. believes Imperial Optical Co. has more or less a monopoly on the supply, manufacture, distribution and sale of ophthalmic goods in Canada, and that many opthalmologists and optometrists support this view.

VIEW ROYAL PROPOSAL

A bylaw to establish a community plan for View Royal was given first reading Wednesday by the Capital Regional Board.

But the board agreed with View Royal director Patricia Massy when she said residents there should have a chance to air their views to the board before the bylaw is finally passed.

A date when residents will be invited to comment will be set later. A similar routine was followed when the Sooke community plan was introduced earlier this year.

Community plans are being developed for all parts of the Capital district following approval last year of the overall regional plan.

The community plans specify long-term land use and development objectives and are followed by zoning bylaws which control land use.

The community plan covers 3,060 acres, including the View Royal fire protection district, an area to the west which takes in Thetis Lake Park and Chatham and Discovery Islands.

It provides for predominantly rural and residential land use, with intensive land use confined to the areas where there is already considerable urban development.

The plan provides for continuing highway commercial uses to their present locations and calls for the establishment of a village centre.

New Sawmill On Target

Construction of the new $10 million sawmill and planer mill at Cowichan Bay will be competed Dec. 19, company officials said Wednesday.

The sawmill, on the site of the old Slegg Mill, is scheduled to go into production Jan. 6. The planer mill will start up as soon as the sawmill has built up an inventory of rough lumber.

More than 400 people have applied for the 150 jobs that will be available at the mill site, the company said.

Holding Tanks, Pump For Septic Discharge

Holding tanks and a pumping system will be built at Macaulay Point to allow septic tank wastes to be "injected" into the 6,000-footo outfall discharging sewage into the ocean there.

The Capital Regional Board approved the project Wednesday. Cost is estimated at $32,000 and it will likely be in operation by next summer.

It will provide the first public location in the region where recreation vehicles can empty their sewage holding tanks, for a fee yet to be decided.

It will also mean closing of the site off Millstream Road where trucks have been dumping in recent years tankloads pumped from septic tanks.

The plan supersedes the regional board's earlier intention to have settling ponds for septic tanks wastes at its Hartland Road dump. The Macaulay system has been approved by the provincial Pollution Control Branch.

In other business, the board approved in prinicple the idea of building an incinerator which would burn the majority of the region's garbage and generate a fuel supply in the process.

A feasibility study will cost an estimated $10,000.

The concept would have the pryolysis type of incinerator located near a major customer for the fuel such as the B.C. Forest Products mills. Th fuel generated by the process could then be sold to help offset operating costs.

RCMP SEIZE GAMES' COINS FOR CHECKING

OTTAWA (CP) — The RCMP has taken possession of all Olympic coins held as assets of Interexchange Rare Coin Shop of Montreal for examination, the Olympic Coin Program announced today.

Representatives of the program said in a statement that the RCMP is checking the authenticity of the coins.

The statement said that the 350 people who have placed orders for Olympic coins with Interexchange, providing full or partial payment in advance, are not protected by the program because Interexchange is not an authorized distributor.

Month-to-Month Resuscitation
Ford's Plan for New York

WASHINGTON (UPI) — president Ford is proposing month-to-month federal loans of up to $2.3 billion to keep New York City financially afloat.

He is relenting in his opposition to federal aid because "New York has bailed itself out," he says.

"Bankruptcy for New York City is now behind us," he said.

"Talk of collapse and chaos should now disappear."

When congress returns from its recess next week, Democratic leaders, unable to pass their own loan guarantee proposal, are likely to embrace Ford's plan since it would accomplish the same purpose as their own bill — keeping the largest city in the U.S. from going bankrupt, possibly causing a run on the banks and a disruption in the recovery from the recesssion.

If there is any backsliding in the state's stringent program of higher city taxes, cutbacks in expenditures and a balanced budget, Simon could cut off the loans.

Simon would approve loans one month at a time. At the end of each fiscal year, the city would have to repay completely. The loans could not exceed $2.3 billion in any year.

Firm Denies Causing Cancer

BALTIMORE (UPI) — A Baltimore production plant that admits it uses a cancer causing chemical, says it doubts it is responsible for an allegedly high rate of cancer among city residents.

Neil Elphick, an FMC Corp. spokesman, acknowledged Wednesday that the plant uses dimethyl nitrosamine, which has produced cancer in laboratory animals, in the production of the rocket propelant dimazine.

Elphick added, however, that the plant has the best scrubbers available and that no human cancer cases have ever been linked to DMN.

But a controversy persists because a report from a Ralph Nader organization states that Baltimore has one of the highest cancer death rates in the U.S.

And the city has one of the highest levels of nitrogendioxide, the chemical group which includes DMN.

Federal Environmental Protection agency officials said a study of the danger from the chemical should be completed by the end of the year.

EPA official Joseph Pagett said, "it is commonly acknowledged that nitrosamines are carcinogens.

"The question is how much is too much. That is the aim of the rest of our research and we are hopeful of completing the rest of the project by the end of the year," he said.

"These levels are not necessarily a threat to cause cancer in people," he said.

Solons May Rule On Pipe

By FRANK RUTTER
Times Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — A strong indication that the route for a pipeline to transport natural gas from Alaska will be decided by politicians, not experts in regulatory agencies, has been made here by Thomas Kleppe, recently-appointed U.S. interior secretary.

Kleppe has so far maintained neutrality on whether such a pipeline should go through Canada's Mackenzie Valley or through Alaska.

But he said there is "great political interest" in it.

"Our recommendations have not yet gone to the president," Kleppe told reporters. "We're in the process of working on it."

While some officials in Kleppe's department are pushing for the all-American route through Alaska, the secretary himself carefully refrained from supporting this view.

"I think it is fair to say that the decision on the route itself ought to be one that could be and should be shared by the Congress," Kleppe added

Kleppe added the caution that any decision on routes involving Canada could only be made "after study and negotiations with the Canadian government."

Republican Representative Philip Ruppe of Michigan has already announced he will introduce such legislation declaring the route proposed by the Arctic Gas consortium to be "in the national interest."

Ruppe is lining up support for his bill, which he is expected to formally present before Congress takes a Christmas recess. A similar bill is being considered on the Senate side by Senator Robert Griffin, also a Michigan Republican and friend of President Gerald Ford.

CONCORDE STAFF CUT

LONDON (Reuter) — The British labor force working on the Anglo-French supersonic airliner Concorde is to be cut by one-fifth next year.

Three British Air Corporation factories are to have their total 12,000 staff trimmed by early retirements and natural wastage, a company spokesman said Wednesday.

Detente Backed

MOSCOW (Reuter) — Czechoslovakia and the Soviet Union declared Wednesday their "firm resolve" to do everything in their power to further East-West detente.

Legion of Death: Berrigan Protest

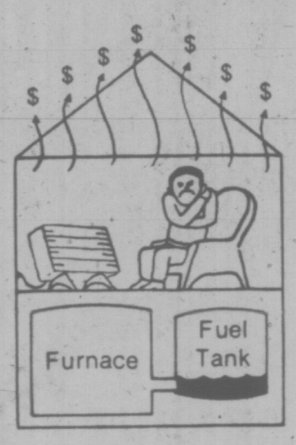

WASHINGTON (AP) — Daniel and Philip Berrigan and four other persons were arrested Wednesday as they dug holes in the White House lawn to protest the arsenal of nuclear weapons owned by the United States.

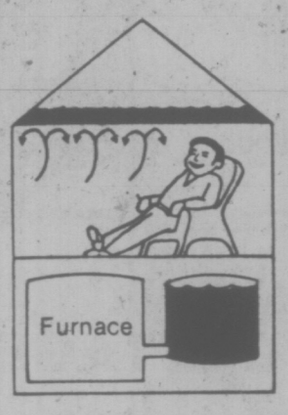

Five of those arrested Wednesday, including the Berrigans, wore what they described as death costumes, including white masks.

The sixth was dressed as Uncle Sam, and a spokesman for the group said he represented the U.S. walking arm in arm with death because of its policy of storing nuclear arms.

STUBBORN COMPUTER INSISTS RETIRED NEW YORKER DEAD

PLANTATION, Fla. (UPI) — A computer has decided Herman Cosman is dead and refuses to pay for his cancer treatments through Medicare.

The former New York electrician retired three years ago and moved to a condominium apartment in Plantation with his wife, Anne. He suffers from cancer of the bladder.

He said until last April Medicare was paying his treatment bills. Then, he learned, a computer in Baltimore decided he was dead.

Since then, he has received two printed form cards asking for details of his demise.

Cosman said he wrote back and said, "I'm sorry to inconvenience you, but I'm still alive.' The computer responded with another printed form inquiring about the circumstances of his death.

Bills for his treatment have been returned by Medicare with the notation, "expenses incurred after entitlement ended."

Cosman said his Medicare premiums are still being deducted from his social security cheque (he is still alive in that computer). Calls and visits to social security offices in this area and letters and phone calls to a district Medicare office at Jacksonville have failed to bring results.

Cosman said he was assured two months ago by a Medicare representative that the computer was being corrected. On Monday, another bill was returned to him, inscribed, "entitlement ended."

"It just gets crazier and crazier," he said. "They have records upon records, but for all the records, no one knows what the hell is going on.

"You try to work this thing out and they say everything's okay. After all this talk, we get a copy of the same damn thing."

TV 'Killing Dialects'

TORONTO (CP) — Canadians use only 45 of the 110 different sounds they are capable of making, says Jack Chambers, a linguistics professor at University of Toronto.

The influence of television is destroying many distinctive dialects in Canada, he said, because it exposes viewers to an "urban accent that goes straight across the country and is closely related to Midland American," a dialect that is traced back to the United Empire Loyalists.

Mr. Chambers, who began teaching linguistics because he was dismayed at the disregard for the English language in literature, said interest in his subject is growing. At present, approximately 600 students attend his classes.

"I decided to study languages because I felt I needed the tool for looking at literature precisely," said Mr. Chambers, who previously studied English literature.

He said few Canadians know how varied the English language is in Canada and it is important that different dialects be preserved because "a dialect is more colorful and interesting and it gives an area a sense of community.

Canadians erroneously believe Indians and Eskimos speak common languages, he said. Actually, there are about 70 different languages among Canadian native peoples.

Britain Keeps North Sea Oil

LONDON (AP) — The Britsh government today offered Scotland and Wales partial self-rule but said it will not permit the economic and political unity of Britian to be undermined by awarding the huge North sea oil deposits to Scotland.

"In what it said would be the most fundamental constitutional changes in Britain for centuries," the government proposed in a white paper that home rule be given to new assemblies which 5.2 million Scots and 2.7 million Welsh would elect by about 1978.

But it said the huge oil deposits in the North Sea belong not just to Scots but to all Britons. "Let there be no misunderstanding: such a proposal — for oil revenues to be controlled by those parts of the kingdom off whose shores the oil is found — would mean the break-up of the United Kingdom," the government said.

Scottish nationalists picked up nearly a million votes, and 11 out of Scotland's 71 electoral districts in last year's elections to the British Parliament, on the slogan, "It's Scotland's oil."

The proposed constitutional changes would be the most far-reaching since England and Scotland joined in 1707.

The government acknowledged the stability of British democracy "does not mean it is perfect" and said many state functions could be exercised nearer to the people.

Under the new government proposals:

—The Welsh would get a purely executive assembly with powers only to administer laws, not to make them.

—Both would control such functions of local government as health, social services, schools, housing, roads and environment but would leave foreign affairs, defence, European Community business, national law and order, economic and money policies to the national government.

U.K. MDs Launch Slowdown

LONDON (Reuter) — Thirty thousand British physicians were given the go-ahead Wednesday to slow down hospital services in an action unprecedented in the 27-year history of the National Health Service.

Those involved are 11,000 medical specialists or consultants angry about government plans to curb private medical treatment and 19,000 interns who want higher wages.

The council of the British Medical Association (BMA) advised that both groups treat emergency cases only, the consultants from Monday and the interns and residents from today. In addition, the interns were recommended to work a 40-hour week with no overtime.

Even if not all the doctors take the action recommended, it is feared there will be chaos in many hospitals.

BMA Secretary Derek Stevenson said every effort will be made to ensure that patients suffer as little as possible.

Internal Strife Flares In U.K. Labor Party

In a blunt statement on internal strife, Wilson said: "I have spent 13 years so far trying to keep this party together and I do not like what is going on."

The prime minister told a meeting of the national executive he disapproved of extremists on both left and right.

The two groups are equally arrogant and opposed to what the Labor party is trying to achieve, he said.

Wilson was commenting on a battle by right-wing cabinet minister Reginald Prentice to retain his parliamentary seat. Prentice's district party has voted to drop him as its candidate.

He has appealed against the decision and charged that the district party has been taken over by leftists.

But the national executive said Wednesday the local party has acted within the rules. Wilson said he disapproved of the way Prentice has campaigned to retain his seat, but added there should be a very strong case against a Member of Parliament to justify his removal.

1976 Plymouth Valiant Silver Duster

Plymouth Valiant is Canada's best selling compact car!

Sixteen years of unrivalled experience in building compacts has put Plymouth Valiant out front in engineering excellence, earned Plymouth Valiant an envied reputation for economy and performance, made Plymouth Valiant number one in compact car sales. And Plymouth Valiant for 1976 is better than ever.

Before you buy, discover why Plymouth Valiant is so far ahead of the pack. Make the 1976 Plymouth Valiant comparison at your Plymouth dealer's. Do it today!

Compare Our Miles Per Gallon... We're Competitive

Compare! '76 Valiant Electronic Ignition

It's the proven electronic ignition system. Proven in every car Plymouth has built for the past three years. Proven to give sure-fire starts in any weather, to be practically maintenance free. Where others are still experimenting, '76 Plymouth Valiant has the proof.

Compare! '76 Valiant Unibody Construction

If you could count them, you'd find Plymouth makes more than 4,000 individual welds in the frame of every '76 Plymouth Valiant. That's unibody construction, and means you get a tight, tough, shake-resistant structure for a ride that's not only quiet, it's safer too.

Compare! '76 Valiant Living Room Comfort

There's head room, leg room, elbow room to spare. Long-distance comfort for five adults, the kind of passenger room that demands comparison. And you can have big car options like air conditioning and a sun roof, features that make '76 Plymouth Valiant an even greater pleasure to drive.

Compare! '76 Valiant Engine Choice

You just can't beat the 225 Slant Six, acclaimed as one of the toughest most economical engines anywhere, with the same proven dependability as Plymouth Valiant itself. Or the 318 V8 engine renowned for the way it combines powerful performance with economy. Just choose the one that's right for you.

Compare! '76 Valiant Torsion Bar Ride

Torsion bar suspension is Plymouth Valiant's way of making sure you get a ride that's both quiet and comfortable. Better than springs, torsion bars smooth out rough spots, give you the precise handling and quick response you have every right to expect from the car you drive.

Compare! THE CHRYSLER WARRANTY

It's a 12 month unlimited mileage warranty, and that means from the moment you slip behind the wheel of your '76 Plymouth Valiant you're covered for a full year, no matter how many miles you drive. Covered for any part that proves defective or wears out including shocks, mufflers, brake linings, disc brake pads. Even the tires are covered, by the people who make them. All you have to do is perform normal maintenance like changing oil filters and wiper blades. (Warranty for taxis and police cars is 12 months or 12,000 miles, whichever comes first.)

Bachelors' Pots, Pans Hosed Down at Carwash

SEATTLE (AP) — Michael McGinnis and Girshohon Green are like most bachelors sharing an apartment—they let the dirty dishes pile up. Earlier this week the fellows decided it was time to clean up for Thanksgiving. So they loaded all their dirty dishes into the car and headed for a carwash

All the time is once every two weeks or so.

The two bachelors and a few friends who volunteered assistance spread the dishes, pots and pans and removable stove parts out on the concrete and plunked $1.50 into the machine.

The machine then spewed out soapy water with pressure strong enough to blast off the caked-on grime. That was followed by a hot water rinse.

True, the fellows and their friends got soaked in the process.

"But, reasoned a friend, that beats getting poisoned"

SANTA MONICA, Calif. — Richard Keeling has pleaded guilty to involuntary manslaughter in the heroin overdose death of singer Tim Buckley.

Keeling, 30, of Venice, was ordered to appear Jan. 9 for sentencing.

Buckley, 28, died June 29 while climbing a flight of stairs in his apartment. An autopsy found death was caused by a combination of alcohol and heroin.

Keeling allegedly gave or sold the heroin to Buckley, authorities said.

MOSCOW — Andrei Sakharov asked the Norwegian parliament today to deliver his 1975 Nobel Peace Prize to his wife at the ceremony in Oslo, Dec. 10.

The Soviet nuclear physicist, who is being honored for his fight for civil rights in the Soveit Union, told a news conference he has not abandoned hope that the Soviet government will rescind its refusal to let him leave the country. But he said he is naming his wife, Yelena, to stand in for him to give her time to prepare for the trip to Norway.

Mrs. Sakharov is in Italy, recovering from eye surgery performed there last August. Her husband said she may read the lecture which the Peace Prize winner traditionally gives at the ceremony, but "there might be technical difficulties"

He said that Mrs. Sakharov is to return to the Soviet Union shortly after the Oslo ceremony.

BURNABY — A professor from Simon Fraser University said Tuesday she will not accept the offer of a full professorship at the University unless all surviving professors fired because of a 1969 strike are rehired.

Kathleen Aberle said in an interview she has telegraphed the Canadian Association of University Teachers, which has been negotiating with SFU on behalf of the fired teachers, urging it to reject the current offer which would see CAUT lift its boycott in return for three job offers. One of the eight professors has since died.

DETROIT — The widow of a former Ford Motor Co. executive is suing the firm for $1.4 million, claiming that pressure on her husband to take early retirement drove him to suicide.

The suit, filed Monday by Mrs. Helena Sexauer of Detroit, charges the auto maker with age discriminatin and breach of contract.

Mrs. Sexauer said her husband, Wilbur, 59, took his life May 28, 1973, following the lowering of his job performance rating from "excellent" to "Satisfactory plus." The suit contends the downgrading of job performance prompted Sexauer's supervisor to ask him to retire.

"Retirement would have been a great financial loss to my husband and he refused," an affadavit filed with Wayne county Circuit Court said, and then "the harassment started."

FAST TONGUE FOILS WOULD-BE ROBBER

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP)—A Minneapolis man has demonstrated that — at least for him — the best defence against a street robbery is an empty wallet and a glib tongue.

Police say Harvey Johnson, 26, was walking on a city street when a man came up behind him, stuck a fork in his neck and demanded money.

"You're picking on the wrong guy," said Johnson. "I haven't got a penny. What do you think I'm doing out here? I'm trying to rip off some purses from old ladies."

Johnson said the robber checked his pockets, found them empty and shook hands with Johnson, saying, "you're in the same boat as me."

Then the would-be robber walked away.

LANCIA BETA SEDAN

The perfect luxury car has not yet been built. Or has it? The Lancia Beta is, quite simply, an automotive masterpiece. Its mirror brilliant exterior finish defies serious comparison with mass-produced cars. Its interior is soft, sumptuous steeped in quiet luxury. The Lancia 1756 cc. engine delivers controlled power when necessary, but riding characteristics are stable and comfortable under all driving conditions. And there is meticulous attention to detail throughout; in the smoothly welded body seams, and thoughtful instrumentation that includes a warning light to tell you when there is wear on one of the front brake pads. But the heritage and glory that began in 1906 and is enhanced in today's Lancia cannot be fully appreciated just by reading about it. Lancia has returned in two spectacular versions. A message from Bill Bennett to the people of B.C.'s public service.

"The very essence of an effective public service is to be above politics. That is our democratic system.

"It has been my experience that the vast majority of British Columbia's public servants are true professionals. You take pride in your work. And I believe you want to work beside people of equal competence and efficiency—no matter what political party they might support.

"An ugly rumour is circulating that a Social Credit government would make widespread cutbacks in public service personnel.

"This is totally untrue.

"It would certainly be unbecoming of me as head of a new government to authorize such action. Indeed, our first goal would be to work with the public service to assess its needs and further its value."

Hughes Issued Summons

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI) — A man claiming to be the illegitimate son of Howard Hughes sought to serve the elusive billionaire with a court summons Wednesday in hopes of beating a criminal fraud charge.

The attorney for Richard Hughes, facing the charge in Sandoval County, said the summons would also help in his client's longtime attempt to obtain a court order declaring him the son of Howard Hughes.

"If we could prove that he was (Hughes' son), it would give him a better chance of defeating a claim of fraud," lawyer Sylvain Segal said.

Segal said his client, who previously filed and dropped federal suits for millions of dollars against Hughes, would try to get the billionaire served with a summons to appear in Bernalillo County District Court in Albuquerque.

"I have reason to believe he will be served," the lawyer said. "I am not at liberty to reveal our plans at this point, but plans are afoot to have him served."

Segal said Hughes, or his legal representative, would have to be in the state of New Mexico to be served the summons.

For Hughes to be served and not appear in court, Segal said, could be used as grounds for a judgment in favor of his client.

Swiss Tunnel Builders Overcoming Problems

By SCOTT THORNTON

GOSCHENEN, Switzerland (Reuter) — The engineer wiped sweat from his brow and jabbed a finger at a pile of rocks which bulldozers were scooping away.

"That," he shouted above the din in what will be the world's longest road tunnel, "was a patch of just 1,000 feet — and yet it held us up for three bloody years."

His frustration sums up the problems of Swiss constructors who have been toiling on the St. Gotthard Tunnel project for six years and are still five years away from completion.

The 10-mile tunnel is being built in the historical heart of Switzerland, an area of craggy mountains, breathtaking passes and ornately decorated wooden chalets. It is needed to provide a major artery through the Alps between northern and southern Europe.

Originally scheduled to open in 1977, the tunnel now is unlikely to be completed before 1980. The original cost estimate of about $120 million has soared to about $200 million.

The constructors have battled avalanches, storms, rockfalls and some of the toughest rocks that civil engineers have entountered.

The tunnel will surpass by about three miles the world's longest existing road passage, under Mont Blanc between France and Italy.

Some 300 laborers, mostly Yugoslav, Spaniards and Italians, are inching their way from this Swiss town towards the southern terminus, the village of Airolo in the Italian-speaking district of Ticino. Another 300 workers are tunnelling northwards from Airolo under the St. Gotthard mountain range after which the project is named.

Geological conditions explain why the tunnel is three years behind schedule. The 1,000 feet which so discouraged the engineer was caused by a band of carboniferous limestone and clay which resisted power drills for three years until mid-August.

There was a similar holdup on the southern side but both blocks now are cleared. The northern gang is using 800 tons of cement a day to extend the two-lane tunnel.

Goschenen, a town often shrouded in mist because of surrounding mountains, is in an area vulnerable to avalanches. These sometimes confine workers to the wooden huts that serve as their homes.

Laborers often toil ankle-finished walls. The eriness of deep in mud and slimy water which seeps in through unthe incomplete tunnel, lit by are lights and pencil-thin red laser beams which help engineers keep a straight line, gives a feeling of claustrophobia.

Since the project began in 1969 eight workers have been killed, mostly in rockfalls. The work is so exacting that few laborers stay more than a year.

A road already connects Goschenen and Airolo, across the St. Gotthard pass, but it is snowbound six months of the year. A railway, built more than a century ago, pierces this section of the Alps like an arrow.

When finished in 1980, the St. Gotthard tunnel will be the central Alpine north-south artery, complementing St. Bernard Tunnel to the east and the 10-year-old Mont Blanc passage to the west. Swiss authorities estimate that foreign vehicles will account for about 70 per cent of traffic.

Although Switzerland is spending heavily to build the tunnel, motorists may not have to pay to use it.

Motorways and tunnels in Switzerland are traditionally free. Project costs, however, have soared and the Swiss government is considering whether to impose a charge.

Energy Hearing Dec. 15

OTTAWA (FP) — The National Energy Board will hold a public hearing Dec. 15 in Winnipeg on the proposal by Manitoba Hydro to build a 230,000 kilovolt power transmission line from Winnipeg to Minnesota, to carry electricity exports to the United States.

The deadline for submitting interventions is Dec. 10.

Manitoba Hydro has applied to build a 100-mile-long power transmission line, costing $5.7 million, from Ridgeway, east of Winnipeg, to the Manitoba-Minnesota border, where it would connect with a proposed new 190-mile-long U.S. power line to Hibbing, Minn.

Manitoba Hydro has also applied for permission to export electric power between Nov. 1, 1976, and Oct. 1986, using the new power line and existing interconnections with the U.S.

Forces Need 1,500, Defence Chief Says

OTTAWA (CP) — The Chief of defence staff says he needs about 1,500 more men in the armed forces to overcome strains created by peacekeeping duties.

Gen. J. A. Dextraze hinted that he might get those men through reducing spending on other things, perhaps by closing bases.

He told the Commons defence committee Tuesday that the size of the armed forces has stabilized at about 78,000 persons but he can justify an increase of about 1,500.

Peacekeeping in the Middle East, where about 1,000 specialists are working, had created a strain in Canada because there are no replacements.

He said in an interview he might get additional people if he can make budget cuts.

And he said inside and outside the committee that he is studying the structure of the armed forces to see if he is getting the best use of people.

Answering questions from Hugh Anderson (L-Comox-Alberni) and Frank Hamilton (PC-Swift Current-Maple Creek), he said the way the armed forces are spread over the country is uneconomic.

The forces can discharge their responsibility with fewer bases, he said. The defence department is operating the same number of bases tow as when it had more than 100,000 persons in the forces.

Charles Nixon, deputy minister of defence, added that more bases create a need for more "housekeepers" and fewer personnel are available for operational work.

The general gave no indication of what bases he might be looking at. The base at Summerside, P.E.I. is being kept open by federal subsidies.

The general told Allan MacKinnon (Victoria), Progressive Conservative defence critic, that it would cost about $200 million to provide the armed forces with 113 new tanks and about $85 million to refit the Centurions now in use.

Hamilton said the armed forces is getting the "short end of the stick" and should get some of the $1 billion spent on unemployment insurance.

Gen. Dextraze, replying to questions about surveillance of an expanded economic zone off the coasts, said there should be "one federal navy" and "one federal air force."

He talked of acquiring 113 tanks but outside the committee he said that he can use up to 140 to cover training needs and having sufficient machines in reserve.

He told Charles-Eugene Dionne (L-Kamouraska) if the present Centurions were completely refitted, they would be good battlefield tanks for about 10 years

He preferred West German Leopards, however, because they are standard in NATO armies and there would be no problems of spare parts These would last about 20 years.

Anderson, Donald Munro (PC-Esquimalt-Saanich) and Lloyd Crouse (PC-South Shore) asked about the need for more ships and aircraft to patrol a 200-mile economic zone the government expects to have eventually.

Nixon and Gen. Dextraze said discussions are being held with other departments on possible needs but the primary responsibility for surveillance of civilian shipping in peacetime belongs to the ministry of transport.

Arms Cost $1.3B

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Expenditures totalling over $1,381,000,000 have been made by the federal government on the aequisition of military hardware in the past 18 months to two years in modernizing and re-equipping the armed forces, Defence Minister James Richardson said Wednesday.

"There is a great deal of unfortunate talk that the forces are ill-equipped and that all their equipment is run down. That is not true," said the minister in an interview.

He cited a list of expenditures made in the past year and a half to two years such as the modernizing and automating of the forces' communication system The cost is more than $50,000,000.

Thursday at the regular cabinet meeting Richardson hopes to get approval for the strengthening of Canadian land forces in Europe. He has recommended the purchase of a new tank but at the minimum he wants the aging Centurions with which the forces are now equipped, refurbished with new guns and new engines.

The minister is hopeful that cabinet will approve the purchase or settle for a leasing arrangement for the German Mark I Leonard tanks. Or the government may decide in favour of American M-60 tanks or British Chieftains. The cost could reach $100,000,000

A second recommendation before cabinet is to stay in the anti-submarine patrol work and replace the Argus aircraft with new patrol aircraft. The new planes would be equipped with the most modern tracking and detection devices so the aircraft would be capable of detecting and tracking submarines and other vessels.

Cabinet approved last week in part the defence structure review. It calls for Canada maintaining a strong modern conventional defence force. The forces would remain at around the 78,000 to 80,000 level with a provision whereby the force of 5,000 now stationed in Europe for NATO may be slightly increased.

Any major threat to peace is largely in Europe on the central front The threat does not exist in North America, as the defence department views the world scene at present.

Richardson objects to the current tendency to regard Canada's armed forces as "weak and ill-equipped." He points out that millions of dollars have been sent in maintaining Canada's well-trained troops in a state of readiness, but he concedes that large additional amounts of money have to be spent on acquiring new tanks or improving existing tanks and buying new aircraft.

3 Parties Field Complete Slates

New Democrats, Liberals and Social Credit had nominated full slates of candidates in all eight Vancouver Island ridings when nominations closed at 1 p.m. today for the Dec. 11 provincial election.

Several independents had been nominated as well.

There are nine MLAs to be elected in the eight ridings, with two in Victoria and one each in Esquimalt, Saanich-The Islands and Oak Bay. The four up-Island ridings are Cowichan-Malahat, Nanaimo, Alberni and Comox.

All four up-Island ridings went to the New Democratic Party in 1972.

The five local members were split among the four parties, including the only two Conservatives in B.C., one Liberal, one Socred and one NDP member.

Dr. Scott Wallace is seeking re-election as Conservative leader in Oak Bay.

Hugh Curtis is seeking re-election in Saanich-The Islands, but as a Socred this time instead of as a Conservative.

The election will be between 8 a.m. and 8 p.m. Dec. 11 a Thursday.

An advance poll will be held from 1 p.m. to 9 p.m. on Dec. 4, 5 and 6 at First United Church hall at Balmoral and Quadra for Esquimalt, Victoria, Oak Bay and Saanich-The Islands. Advance voting will also be held during the same days at the Anglican Church hall on Fourth St. in in Sooke.

The complete list of candidates in Vancouver Island ridings:

Victoria

NDP—Charles Barber and Gordon Hanson; Social Credit—Sam Bawlf and Ian Rendle; Independents—Owen Kavanagh, Bill Scott; Liberal—David Anderson, Terry O'Grady; Conservative—Lloyd Burdon, Peter Stanley.

Saanich-Islands

NDP—Carol Pickup; Social Credit—Hugh Curtis (x); Liberal—Edgar Rhomberg; Conservative—Irene Block.

Oak Bay

Esquimalt

Cowichan-Malahat

Nanaimo

Comox

Alberni

In each riding an (X) indicates an incumbent member.

Garry Curtis, returning officer for Saanich-The Islands (no relation to Saanich Social Credit candidate Hugh Curtis) said the NDP will top the ballot for the first time in provincial elections.

Under provincial act regulations brought in by the Social Credit party when it was in power, the governing party is listed first on the ballot, followed by the candidate from the official opposition.

Other parties then follow in alphabetical order. Next after Social Credit will come any independent candidates (as I comes before L). If there are more than one, the independents are listed alphabetically by last name.

Following that will come the Liberal candidate and finally the Conservative candidate (because the party name is officially Progressive Conservative).

In the 1972 provincial election Social Credit candidates topped the ballot as the governing party but in every riding this time the NDP candidate will be first and Social Credit second.

In cases where there are two members to be elected, the two NDP candidates are listed one-two at the top of the ballot in alphabetical order by last name. Next come the two Social Credit candidates, then all the independents, the two Liberals and then the two Conservatives.

In single member ridings, voting is by a single X with the pencil provided in the polling booth.

In dual-member ridings, not more than two Xs can be made. A ballot is valid if only one X is made but this is unusual in dual-member ridings.

The ballot will list the home city, occupation and party of each candidate. For example, the last name of the candidate will be in very large letters on the ballot. Under this, in smaller letters, will be the candidate's full name, his home city, his occupation and his political affiliation.

A New Way to Make a Dollar . . .

The Greater Victoria Visitors Information Centre is trying to make a dollar — a silver one it can sell to tourists next summer.

The coins will be minted by a private company, after it obtains permission from the Canadian mint, and will be purchased by the Victoria bureau at about 20 cents each.

Silver dollars sold to tourists could be used as legal tender only in the city or retained as souvenirs. They would have a distinctive Victoria design.

VIC president Terry Farmer said Wednesday his organization has yet to survey Victoria banks and businesses to find out how many would accept the Victoria dollars as legal tender.

Many Prairie cities are minting their own dollars and they have been accepted by businesses and banks.

They have also been good money-raisers.

The bureau will show a profit on all those dollars purchased as souvenirs. The fact the coins can be spent makes them valuable for coin collectors as they are real money and not medallion dollars.

However, if in fact the dollar is spent, the VIC bureau will offer to buy them back at $1 face value from any business receiving them. The bureau will not make any money on any coins that are actually spent.

Farmer said the experience on the Prairies has been that as many as 80 per cent of the coins are retained for souvenirs or for coin collections.

"The potential is tremendous," he said.

VIC will order 50,000 silver dollars and will begin selling them in May, if they are acceptable to the local business community.

The coins will cost $10,000 and there will be selling commissions and other handling costs. Any unsold coins would be melted down to protect the value of those purchased by collectors. A distinctive Victoria design for the first issue has yet to be chosen and the VIC bureau is looking for ideas. The design would change every year.

While almost all the unsold coins would be melted down, a few would be retained for sets to be put together after about five years.

The set would contain five coins, each with a distinctive design for each year.

To make the VIC bureau independent of municipal grants, the dollar sale would have to bring in a profit of $15,000 in the first year, a target Farmer said he was confident could be met. Council grants to the tourist bureau totalled just under $15,000 for the present fiscal year.

Socreds Offer Sign Reward

The disappearing campaign signs in Esquimalt riding has prompted the Socred office to post a $500 reward for information leading to the conviction of anyone who defaces or steals the signs.

Dan Walker, campaign manager of Lyle Kahl's provincial election campaign, said today dozens of signs have disappeared, including large four by eight Socred posters.

NDP campaign organizers report their signs are disappearing also. Even large signs posted on fourth-floor apartments have vanished overnight.

A spokesman for that office said the size of the signs seems to indicate thieves are using ladders and vehicles to carry signs away.

DISABLED MUST GET TO POLLS

Provincial electoral officer Ken Morton said today handicapped people must find their own way to the advance polls if they wish to vote in provincial elections advance polls.

Ballot boxes will be taken to their cars, he said, if there are sufficient numbers of handicapped in hospitals, returning officers in each district can set up a travelling polling division.

Advance polls are Dec. 4, 5 and 6.

Morton was clarifying earlier to reports that led handicapped to believe they would be able to vote in thier homes if they couldn't get to the polls.

The new arrangement means only that the ballot boxes will be taken to the disabled after they arrived at the polling station by car.

MURDER HEARING ADJOURNED

PENTICTON (CP) — A preliminary hearing on a murder charge against Steven Scott, 27, of Vancouver, was adjourned Wednesday to Dec. 15 in Penticton District Court. Scott is charged with murder punishable by life imprisonment in connection with the death of Irene May Arpe, 55, of Penticton.

SANTA SAILINGS

The Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce's Santa Ship will sail again this year, distributing toys and candy to children in isolated areas of the Gulf and San Juan Islands.

Manned with personnel from HMCS Malahat, Victoria's naval reserve division, the ship will be HMCS Porte de la Reine. A 75-foot yard craft, commanded by reservist Lt.-Cmdr. Stewart Churlish, will accompany her.

Under the command of Lt.-Cmdr. Al Horner, Porte de la Reine, will steam into the Inner Harbor at 9 p.m. Friday, Dec. 12, ablaze with Christmas lights.

Beginning her run the next morning with calls at Kuper and Thetis Islands around 9 a.m., she will visit Bedwell Harbor at 4 p.m., tying up at Friday Harbor on San Juan Island at 6:30 p.m.

At 9 a.m. on the Sunday morning she will be at Deer Harbor at 9 a.m. From there she will call at Waldron Island at 11:30 a.m., Roche Harbor at 2 p.m., clear customs 5 p.m. at Sidney, returning to Esquimalt Harbor at 9 p.m.

Those wishing donations to be picked up should phone the hall during those hours. The number is 383-4521.

MARK TRAIL

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

As far back as 25 years ago, most European players were no longer leading the fourth-from-the highest against no-trump contracts, opining that the fourth-best lead gave declarer too much information. Instead, they led the lowest card in their longest suit, thus making it more difficult for declarer to determine the length of the leader's suit. And the lead of the lowest card has remained as a part of their "system" of leads.

While this "new" type of lead undoubtedly has the advantage of making it rougher for declarer, it also has the disadvantage of putting partner into a guessing situation very often. Today's deal features the lead of the lowest card in one's longest suit, with no conclusion being reached as to the worthwhileness of the lead.

Neither side vulnerable. South deals.

	NORTH
	♠ K965
	♥ Q3
	♦ K943
	♣ Q108
WEST		EAST
♠ Q7		♠ J1042
♥ K10765		♥ A984
♦ 1076		♦ 52
♣ J92		♣ 764
	SOUTH
	♠ A83
	♥ J2
	♦ AQJ8
	♣ AK53

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♦	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 NT	Pass	3 NT	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Five of ♥.

The three of hearts was played from dummy on West's opening lead of the heart five, and East took a time out to reflect on what to play. After prolonged thought, he put up the eight-spot, South won the trick with the jack and scampered home with 11 tricks. As is evident, had East won the opening lead with the ace, and returned a heart, the defenders would have cashed the first five tricks.

From East's position, he didn't know whether West's lead of the heart five was being made from a three-card suit, a four-card suit, or a five-card suit. And certainly declarer, who had jumped to two notrump on his rebid, rated to have the heart king.

This is pure conjecture on my part, but East evidently came to the conclusion that declarer had the tripleton K-x-x of hearts. If such were the case, then by putting up the ace of hearts he would be giving declarer two heart tricks; whereas, by inserting the eight-spot, he would restrict declarer to just one heart trick.

To be honest about it, if West had made the "normal" lead of the fourth-highest heart, East would have had the identical problem. Actually East should have played the ace, for if South had possessed the K-x-x, he would almost surely have played dummy's queen on the opening lead.

CANCER (June 1 - July 22): Consolidate. Protect interests. Build on solid base. Refuse to be sold bill of goods. Insist on references, verifications and quality. Home area could be in need of repair. Know it, check it and do something about it.

LEO (July 23 - Aug. 22): Some neighbors, relatives may appear to be in "fighting mood." Condition is temporary. Don't compound error. Maintain balance and humor. Highlight versatility, appreciation of art and creativity. Message from afar lends spice.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22): Costs, savings, investments in connection with home improvement—these are featured. Taurus, Libra individuals are in picture. What seems to be a financial clinker could rebound in your favor. Know it and don't accept adjective "impossible." You'll be surprised!

LIBRA (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22): You are in for adventure. Means this is day of discovery. Surprises are featured. Study Virgo message. Cycle is high — you make new start, win popularity contest gain by following hunch. Money you had "given up" finds its way back to you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21): Family member, temporarily confined to home or hospital, needs your affection. Know it and do something about it. Practice Golden Rule. Libra individual sets good example. Be diplomatic and you gain valuable ally.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21): Friend appears pugnacious. Withhold final judgment. What seemed to be indispensable now might be regarded as expendable. Key is to see as is, to dispel mystery clouds, to rip away tendency toward self-deception. Pisces, Virgo persons play important roles.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19): Highlight ability to face reality. Study Sagittarius message. Older individual, slightly jealous, will lend helping hand. You can advance if you throw aside pride of false variety. Meaning will become crystal-clear.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18): Finish what you start. Perceive potential. Deal with aggressive individual—and do so in forth-right manner. What seems a costly process may actualy be cheaper in long run. Know it and plan accordingly.

PISCES (Feb. 19 - Mar. 20): Involvement is highlighted. Nothing occurs halfway—it is all or nothing. Leo, Aquarius persons figure prominently. You get chance to say what you mean — and sparks of controversy could fly. Money prospects are better than they might appear on surface.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are dynamic, stubborn, extravagant, selfish, self-centered, talented, temperamental, studius, impulsive, attractive to opposite sex. Leo, Aquarius persons play important roles in your life. In 1976, you earn more and you will be handling more responsibility. If single, you'll marry. You could go into business for yourself and there might be an addition to your family.

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J. A. H. HUNTER

"You're back nice and early," said Clare as her husband came in. "The weather looked so bad when you left this morning."

Greg nodded. "It soon cleared," he told her. "I checked the time as I passed the old mill, and the minute hand was right on a minute mark one minute behind the hour hand."

Thanks for an idea to L. J. Upton, Toronto, Ontario.

ONE MORE TIME. CANCERS never give up looking for their own very special person. I am a 45-year-old, 5'2" attractive, brownette, widow. Have no debts and am fortunate enough to have two teenage sons. As I am extremely emotional I find the loneliness of widowhood impossible to live with — but being choosey by nature will not settle for just any man. If you are sincere, solvent, enjoy music, gardening and all of life's good things please write to me at Victoria Press Box 13. Please don't play games; the key word is love not lust.

IF YOU WITNESSED A FALL BY an elderly lady in Woodward's Store on August 27th, 1975, shortly after noon, on the main floor near the delicatessen department would you please send your name, address and telephone number to Box 1327, Victoria, B.C., placing the initials DAF on the outside of the envelope. Thank You.

GARDENING

Take a Check Between Showers

New strawberry plantings are vulnerable to both heavy rains and frost heaving. Rain water running over the surface washes the soil from around the crowns, and leaves portions aof the roots exposed.

Unless these exposed portions are promptly covered there are many dead plants by spring. This is one reason a commercial strawberry grower never sets out plants in the fall It is impossible for him to check each plant in an acreage after every rain or frost.

It is not so much of a problem for the home gardener with only 25 plants, especially when a supply of compost was put under cover in last September as advised in this column.

If this precaution was not taken, there is still a chance of finding some reasonably dry, well rotted compost near the centre of the present heap.

When this has been removed it would be wise to put the material from the top and the sides into the centre of the heap to hasten decomposition by spring. Thus two jobs are accomlished at one time

The new compost is then put around the plants with exposed roots and pressed firm with the boot. This may need repeating several times after heavy rains or when frost heaving is apparent.

Plantings, or sowings, made in trenches this fall may also need attention. Asparagus, sweet peas, garden peas and broad beans readily come to mind.

Few of us manage to finish off a trench with a perfectly level surface there are always depressions and a tendency to slope to one end Water lies in the hollows or washes the soil down grade, leaving plant roots or seeds exposed.

The addition of fresh compost, careful leveling, and gentle firming will improve conditons, but care must be taken not to bury the plants or seeds too deeply.

New plantings of primulas, together with wallflowers and other biennials can also do with attention. Primulas suffer the same as strawberries, especially when the soil is sloping at the edge of a bed, and wallflowers need the same tight soil around their roots as their cousins the cabbages.

Other plantings such as trees, shrubs and perennials are also worth a check We often find soil washed from around trees and shrubs, leaving depressions where water can collect and cause an over wet condition for the roots. A little extra compost added saves later problems.

Support stakes become loose in saturated soil. A few taps with a hammer or axe can prevent uprooting in the next gale. When ties for trees are made of soft wire threaded though a piece of old hose pipe they usually remain firm, but ties of string or soft material often break or come undone. Checking all ties is certainly not a waste of time.

Recent stong winds have loosened canes of climbing roses, jasmine, clematiss, and bramble fruits, leaving long shoots hanging over paths or entangled with other plants. A few minutes retying can prevent a lot of winter damage.

And while you have a break in the weather it would be wise to look around for the odd tool still outside, drain the wheelbarrow and turn it upside down, gather clay pots, and shut off the water.

Much winter damage to garden structures, and many plant losses are due to not spotting the cause in its early stages. A stitch in time often prevents an embarassing situation, and it applies as much to the garden as it does to clothes.

SCALES OF JUSTICE IN COP'S POCKETS

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Starting Jan. 1, the scales of justice will be carried in the pockets of individual police officers, Chief Ed Davis has decided.

California's liberalized new marijuana law goes into effect next year. Police will be limited to giving a citation similar to a traffic ticket to adults in possession of less than an ounce of marijuana.

Davis, long an outspoken supporter of tough narcotics enforcement told a dinner meeting he had tried out "new little scales every officer will have to carry to weigh dope. We finally have one that's vest pocket size. So if those cats think they're going to get away with very much they're all wet."

City Promotion Groups Merge

The Victorian Days Society merged with the Greater Victoria Celebrations Association Wednesday night to form a new organization called the Victorian Celebration Society.

The merger is for a one-year trial period and will become permanent if the experiment proves successful. The 12-member boards of each organization have also merged to form a 24-member board.

All activities of the two organizations will be carried out under the VCS name.

Ald. Robert Ellis has been elected chairman of the Victorian Celebration Society with John Ansell and Harry Addison as vice chairman.

The Greater Victoria Celebrations had supervised special events on a year-round basis while the Victorian Days Society had confined its activities to May.

The Victorian Days Society board members had all been elected positions while the Greater Victoria Celebrations Association had been half elected and half appointed. The appointed directors were aldermen from local councils.

The Victorian Days Society was self-supporting while the Greater Victoria Celebrations Association received municipal grants.

Both organizations went into the merger with a cash surplus, although the Victorian Days Society surplus was larger at $20,000.

First function of the Victorian Celebration Society will be the annual yule lighting contest which was started several years ago by the Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce and became an activity of the Greater Victoria Celebrations Association.

The VCS will also begin long-term planning for the next May festival in Victoria.

Mark Cooper, 26, said his eight-year-old German shepherd pulled him out of a whirlpool after he had fallen 85 feet Sunday in the Forest Hills area about 50 miles east of Sacramento.

Then the dog crawled on top of him to keep him warm, Cooper added. He was flown to Placer General Hospital on Tuesday after searchers found him.

Sheriff's Capt. Marvin Jacinto, who headed the rescue effort, said he had to decide whether a man or dog would walk alongside the Jeep carrying the rescue party

EATON'S

Hollywood's Canada by Pierre Berton

After such national classics as Klondike, The National Dream and The Last Spike, it seems surprising that Pierre Berton should turn to movies as a subject for his latest work.

But Hollywood's Canada isn't about movies at all. It is Berton's belief that the image of Canada has been moulded largely by Hollywood films. Anyone who believes that there is no such thing as a distinct Canadian identity, will have to change his mind after reading Berton's Hollywood's Canada. 13.95.

Meet Pierre Berton in our Book Department on Friday, November 28, from 12:00 to 12:30, where he will be autographing his latest work, Hollywood's Canada.

RCMP Visit Marchand

Pratte Quits

Times News Services

MONTREAL — Yves Pratte resigned today as chairman of Air Canada in the face of what he called "unprecedented charges of alleged incompetence and inefficiency."

Pratte, 50, chairman since December, 1968, outlined his reasons for quitting in a letter to Transport Minister Otto Lang.

In the letter, Pratte said the airline was showing financial improvement in the past year, but "in contrast during the same period, the senior management group of Air Canada has been subjected in Parliament to unprecedented charges of alleged incompetence and inefficiency.

"These attacks ... have been given some aura of credibility by the nature of the response from the government and more especially, by the establishment of the Estey Commission, which for many of us was a clear indication that the government had lost confidence in my stewardship of the airline."

The commission had uncovered "no significant fact" not already known to the government or for which "corrective action had not already been initiated by the company," he claimed.

While admitting the airline had made mistakes, Pratte said the government could have used "more effective and less destructive means to resolve the situation."

In one passage, Pratte apparently anticipated possible criticism in the forthcoming Estey report.

"Whatever the views of the commission, whether they have any validity or not and quite irrespective of the manner in which they might have been arrived at, they are likely to be accorded the degree of infallibility and finality of a judicial pronouncement," Pratte said.

Pratte, a lawyer and longtime friend of Prime Minister Trudeau, said his resignation was effective Monday, Dec. 1.

An Air Canada spokesman said that until a successor is named, his duties will be assumed by the chairman of Canadian National Railways, Air Canada's parent company.

PRATTE

OTTAWA (CP) — The RCMP today visited the office of cabinet minister Jean Marchand to talk about the so-called Sky Shops affair but what upset Mr. Marchand was that a reporter arrived ahead of the police.

And Prime Minister Trudeau diln't like it either. "I advised Mr Marchand not to talk with the RCMP until I talked to the (RCMP) commissioner," Mr. Trudeau said as he entered the weekly Thursday meeting of cabinet.

Mr. Marchand, minister without portfolio, was ambushed by a group of reporters as he entered cabinet meeting today following reports that his office or his home had been raided by the RCMP.

The Mounties raided the parliamentary office of Senator Louis Giguere (L—Quebec) Nov. 7. Senator Giguere has said he made a $95,000 profit on a $5,000 investment in Sky Shop shares in 1972.

The RCMP came to Mr. Marchand's office at 9 a.m EST today—after making an appointment—and the minister said "we discussed the procedure" of an inquiry He said he felt the visit was justified because when Senator Giguere became involved in the shares of the firm, Mr. Marchand headed the Quebec wing of the Liberal party.

"I told them I was willing to co-operate and give them all the documents I had." The police did not take any papers with them, he said.

"But what I object to is being received by a reporter at 8 a.m.," said Mr. Marchand. "Where is it (the information) coming from?"

CBC reporter John Drewery was the reporter involved and he said he approached the minister at breakfast to ask about a rumor that his office or home had been, or was to be, raided. "And it was during this conversation that Mr. Marchand told me the RCMP would be coming to his office at nine o'clock."

The early rumors around Ottawa also had Health Minister Marc Lalonde's office involved. But Mr Lalonde said this wasn't true. The RCMP hadn't been at his office nor had they asked to see him.

Solicitor-General Warren Allmand appeared annoyed when approached by reporters who were waiting for Mr. Marchand. Asked whether he knew anything about "raids," Mr Allmand said "If I did, I wouldn't tell you. I have nothing to say."

Mr. Marchand said the conversation with the RCMP was about the procedure to be followed in the investigation. "They were going to talk with the commissioner about it."

And he added, "They (the RCMP) visited other ministers and no one (in the press) was tipped off"

NEWS BRIEFS

Bomb for Fraser

BRISBANE, Australia (UPI) — Postal detectives today defused a letter bomb addressed to Prime Minister Malcolm Fraser. A post office spokesman said mail sorters detected the letter bomb earlier in the day. It was the fourth letter bomb picked up by security men addressed to political leaders in the past eight days.

Pound Sagging

LONDON (Reuter) — The value of the British pound fell to a record low of $2.03 (U.S.) on foreign exchange markets today, weakened by the United States dollar's advance in response to President Ford's offer to help New York City.

Near-Miss Probed

DETROIT (UPI) — The Federal Aviation Administration has been called in to investigate the near collision of two jumbo jets over Lake Michigan Wednesday night that forced one of the planes to make an emergency landing in Detroit.

Workers Protest

LONDON (Reuter) — About 20,000 workers marched through the city Wednesday protesting rising unemployment, now five per cent or 1.2 million people, the highest level since the Second World War.

Japan Paralyzed

TOKYO (UPI) — Hundreds of thousands of government employees halted trains and mail delivery for a second day today and vowed to continue their massive 10-day walkout until they regain the right to strike.

Israeli Raid

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israeli soldiers moved across the border into Lebanon early today, blew up a house, traded fire with Arab guerrillas and brought a prisoner back to Israel for questioning, the Tel Aviv command said.

Bomb in Loo

MIAMI (UPI) — A maintenance supervisor repairing the plumbing in a restroom of a Bahamas Air jetliner at Miami international airport stumbled on an "active" time bomb behind some panelling today. Police disarmed it before it could go off.

RANSOM NOTE ... AND FINGER

Times News Services

HELSINBORG, Sweden — The parents of a missing woman received a severed finger and a ransom demand for 325,000 kroner (about $78,000) Wednesday, police said.

The 27-year-old victim, daughter of a wealthy farmer in the southwestern city of Helsingborg, was last seen at her dentist's office Tuesday afternoon.

On Wednesday, police said, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bertil Ollson, received a packet containing the index finger.

"The finger matches the general blood group of the girl, Louise Marrstad," a police spokesman said. "The prints have now been sent to the criminal laboratory in Stockholm for examination."

$100,000 Fraud Cited

Times News Services

MONTREAL — A $100,000 sale of seven mobile homes to the consortium building the Olympic village led to a police investigation of alleged kickbacks involving the project, according to the Gazette.

"We are investigating what appears to be the sale of seven mobile homes for exorbitant prices," the newspaper quotes a police source as saying.

The mobile homes have been used as on-site offices by the developers, said the source close to the combined squad of RCMP and Quebec Provincial Police officers who carried out nearly 60 raids Tuesday and Wednesday on the homes and offices of key officials associated with Terrasses Zarolega, the consortium building the Olympic village project.

Police confirmed today they have completed a series of raids in connection with possible fraudulent activities in the construction of the Olympic village.

A spokesman said there was "no question for the moment" of bringing formal charges.

Scare Tactics Blamed In Liberal Shortfalls

VANCOUVER (CP) — The president of the B.C. Liberal party said Wednesday that the Liberals will be unable to contest some ridings in the Dec. 11 provincial election because of what he called "intimidation tactics" by Social Credit supporters.

Pat Graham said "we had to gige up nomination attempts in Kootenay Tuesday night after our fifth nominee was pressured out."

"The same thing happened earlier to the Conservatives there," he said.

"Blackmail and intimidation tactics are in use in other interior ridings as well. We may not be able to field candidates in Shuswap, Nelson-Creston, Cariboo and Peace River South."

Graham said his party's last potential candidate for the Kootenay riding was told by "a representative of the business community" that if he ran in the election, his new insurance business would be bankrupt within three months.

"This kind of fear campaign by Socreds and thier backers, afraid the anti-NDP vote will split, is more widespread than many people realize," Graham said.

"In effect, both Liberal and Conservative supporters in some ridings are being disenfranchised by threats of retaliation and even violence. You can't be too hard on a man who is simply afraid to risk the livelihood of himself and his family."

(Other election stories on pages 6, 7).

FROMME TO FIGHT GUILTY VERDICT

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Lynette Squeaky Fromme, who dedicated her life to mass murderer Charles Manson, was found guilty of attempting to kill President Ford — a conviction that may send her to prison for life.

Fromme, who was absent from the courtroom for the verdict as she was much of her trial, was found guilty late Wednesday night by a jury of eight women and four men which deliberated more than 19 hours. Fromme's lawyer said he will appeal the conviction.

The 27-year-old Miss Fromme is the first person ever convicted of attempting to assassinate a U.S. president. She was prosecuted under a special law enacted after the 1963 assassination of President John Kennedy.

Postal Highway Service For 35 Island Centres

The post office has instituted a highway service on Vancouver Island which will carry mail between the 35 small non-union post offices still open during the nation-wide postal strike.

A letter mailed at one of the small offices, such as Brentwood on the Saanich Peninsula, will be delivered to another small office, such as Comox, where it can be picked up or sent out on a rural route

Letters can also be sent from the small offices to the post offices in Duncan and Courtenay where letter carriers are on the job because enough postal workers have defied union policy and returned to work.

Letters are still not being delivered either to or from the Victoria office, although there are now 13 postal workers sorting mail.

Post offices on Vancouver which are not open include: Victoria, Sidney, Ladysmith, Nanaimo, Port Alberni, Campbell River and Port Hardy.

Meanwhile, the waiting game continued in Ottawa today as both sides in the dispute reviewed their positions on wage clauses and refused comment on when formal bargaining might resume.

Both union and post office spokesmen said behind-the-scenes manoeuvring still was going on in an attempt to bring the two parties back to the bargaining table

DART-GUN HEIST

NEW YORK (UPI) — Holdup men took an estimated $100,000 in gems from a Manhattan diamond merchant Wednesday after shooting him with an electronic dart gun, police reported.

The victim, Joseph Hertany, was taken to hosptial, where he was reported in fair condition.

Police said two men entered Hertany's office and stole the jewellery after shooting the man in the chest and stomach with two electronic darts, each three-quarters of an inch long.

The darts, shot from a battery-powered device resembling a flashlight and called a "taser gun," penetrate the skin, releasing an electronic charge which stuns its victim, according to police.

Provinces Balk At Inflation Talks

Times News Services

OTTAWA — The federal provincial finance ministers' conference ended Wednesday without reaching accord on the form federal-provincial agreements to fight inflation will take.

Ontario Finance Minister Darcy McKeough said "all the provinces want to see the regulations which will accompany the anti-inflation bill before they sign on the dotted line."

One of the major stumbling blocks to an agreement appeared to be the term of such agreements. Several provinces indicated they would be willing to go along with the program for a year or 18 months, but were unwilling to agree to the three years the federal government wants.

Another area of disagreement centred on whether the provincial public services would come under federal or provincial regulation.

Finance Minister Donald Macdonald said "we would prefer to have the provincial public sectors under federal jurisdiction to insure as much national uniformity as possible."

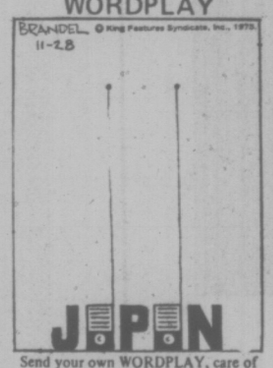

Despite the lack of general agreement, Macdonald said some agreements were reached on specific issues.

The provinces agreed they would co-operate fully with the federal Anti-Inflation Board in monitoring provincial marketing boards, Macdonald said.

There was also a general agreement that each province should have some form of rent controls, he said.

Agreement was also reached that it will be up to the federal government to determine whether there will be a surtax or excessive increases in professional incomes, he noted.

SWEET PUZZLE

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police were investigating Wednesday the disappearance of 288,000 candy bars worth more than $40,000. Lifestream Natural Foods Co. said the bars, bought during a four-month period, cannot be accounted for. Police were attempting to determine if the disappearance was due to fraud or theft.

Most Retired Canadians Below Poverty Line

OTTAWA (CP) — More than half of retired Canadians live below the poverty line, says a report on retirement compiled by the Canadian Council on Social Development.

The council, an independent organization which defines poverty as an annual income of $7,028 or lower for a family of four, suggests that better government pension benefits are the best answer to the problem

Private pension plans are generally inadequate and existing retirement policies reflect a drift — "a sustained ad hocery" — at a time when the proportion of retired citizens is growing, the report argues.

"Over one-half of all those over 65 have incomes which are regarded as below the poverty line, and are eligible for some assistance through the federal guaranteed income supplement scheme.

"The obvious message is that Canadians lack adequate income security for their retirement years."

The report says benefits available through the Canada and Quebec pension plans have been deliberately held down to allow private pensions to flourish.

"It has been assumed that the private pension system is capable of working effectively ... Private pension schemes have not provided adequate pensions."

As recently as 1970, the last year of complete statistics, "only 40 per cent of the work force was covered by private pensions."

Of 2.8 million persons covered, 1.8 million were employed by government or crown corporations.

"In other words, almost 70 per cent of those employed by private companies are not receiving coverage."

"As each layer has been found inadequate, a further layer has been added —only in its turn to be found inadequate."

The system now has six layers, it says — private pensions, personal savings, government old-age pensions, the Canada and Quebec pension plans, federal old-age pension supplements and provincial supplements.

The Canada and Quebec plans should be given the central role in the over-all pension system, it argues. They are popular, straightforward, universal, portable, secure, looked upon as faithful friends by many workers, and have the "tremendous advantage" of being indexed upward with the cost of living, the report says.

Five Weeks Without Mail And Isn't It Wonderful?

Historians of the distant future may look back on November, 1975, as the time when mail, as we know it now, became a thing of the past, like Eugenie hats, church-going, chain letters, tandem bicycling, marriage and other quaint relics of earlier days.

I would not want, you understand, to under-estimate the dimensions of the dispute that grips the land. I have, myself, a small syndication of weekly newspapers that's now gone belly-up because I've no way of getting my priceless gems to them. It's one of the minor casualties, I know, but very few people have escaped without some inconvenience or loss of revenue and from where I sit it looks as if it may just be the beginning.

(By the way, did you see the panel of Front Page Challenge, not one of whom makes less than 150,000 a year, bitterly attacking the head of the postal workers as "undemocratic" because the union's negotiating team quite properly rejected a take-it-or-leave it wage offer that perpetuated the postal workers' status as peons?)

I'll even grant you that there may be some communications — old-age cheques and pensions and the like — that could be categorized as indispensable and there will always be a need, I expect, for the handling and delivery of such mail.

Yet what I have found over the past month is that I don't really miss the daily visit of the postman in fact, it has been just about the most carefree month I can remember.

Just for starters, I can tell you that it's now a pleasure to go into the office. I have a little cubby-hole there that's almost guaranteed to start my working day with the information that I am an insufferable jerk, a male chauvinist pig, a has-been scribbler, a communist spy and other predictable expressions of endearment from those readers who are not, so to speak, on the same wave-length. Why, it's just done wonders for my battered little psyche.

Some readers, of course, simply can't contain themselves and deliver, by hand or wheel-chair, their gratuitous estimates (as they've every right to do), but after 40 years of it I find it just swell to begin a day with the ego more or less intact. But it's the home delivery — or, I should say, the lack of it — that really brings the roses to my cheeks and I have been analysing why this should be so.

In broad terms it can be said there were three kinds of mail. There were letters from friends or loved ones. There were bills. And there was that mail that's described so accurately as junk, one reason why your friendly, neighborhood postman appears to be spavined. In each case I could not only do without it. I was over-joyed to do withou tit.

The first fact that we must face is that personal mail hardly exists any more. It has nothing to do with the current dispute but somewhere over the past dozen years there's been an enormous case of writer's cramp.

Time was when you used to trade news, views, gossip, even the weightier things of life, with your correspondents. Now, at best, you get stenographic reports maybe once a year. Short of a visit in the flesh friendship no longer means the exchange of letters. I do not know what caused this, but it was the beginning of the end for mail as a welcome part of each day.

Along with this goes the decline in the correspondence, once taken for granted, from those who have left the nest. When I wrote a few months ago about three footloose daughters who seem incapable of penning even a short note I had phone calls and letters from hordes of parents who reported that they were precisely in the same boat. And so there went another reason for anticipating what might be in the mail box.

These things having gone, what's left are the bills, those envelopes with the tell-tale isinglass windows, and the great mass of mail that's turned the poor postman into a beast of burden for the sleazier merchants.

There were days, indeed, when all that came to my door were entreaties to horde dried foods as a hedge against the days of starvation to come, to invest in creams made from secret hormones to ward off old age, appeals for obscure and possibly fraudulent charities, hard-sell pitches from rotten magazines, meaningless constituent reports by politicians, religious tracts from the glibber evangelists and, in short, piles of unsolicited garbage that doesn't even burn very well.

The dispute between the postal workers and the autocrats who run things in Ottawa has thus had the effect of protecting me — and maybe even you — from great wads of hypocrisy in printed form.

If the thing lasts beyond the coming month there is even the delicious prospect that it could mean the end of the greatest hypocrisy of all, the exchange of Christmas cards. I, for one, look forward to the first year in my life when my tailer, my butcher, my insurance agent and my local gravel supplier don't send me their season blessings.

Why, just think of it. It means the end of that annual guilt complex when, in the very last week before christmas, you receive cards from people whose signatures are illegible or who are known but slightly to you or, worse, those that cause you to cry out, "My God, here's a card from the Murrays and we didn't send them one." Now all you have to say, with a shrug, is that it was too bad about the strike and the hell with Aunt Agatha.

As I say, I hope the thing gets settled soon. I hope the postal workers get a living wage. But I'll be just as happy if one result of it all is that mail goes just a little out of style. Now if we could just silence the telephone — but I suppose you can't have everything.

Rendle, Bawlf Take It on Chin

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

There were jeers for the Social Credit men, cheers for the NDP, laughter and sympathy for the Liberals and generally polite indifference for all the rest at a nall-candidates meeting in James Bay elementary school Wednesday night.

The good-natured but highly vocal crowd, with NDP supporters obviously in the majority, directed most of the heckling and aggressive questioning at Social Credit candidates Ia nRendle and Sam Bawlf.

Rendle received his share of the hoots and interruptions during his address, not least when he claimed that the NDP government didn't invent the monthly supplement" system for senior citizens with its Mincome program.

This, he said, was only an extension of a program which had existed under the Socred administration — at which one questioner demanded to know how many elderly British Columbians had received the original supplement.

Rendle said Socred leader Bill Bennett would immediately increase the Mincome allowance to $265 monthly if elected.

"I thought you weren't supposed to buy votes," yelled a young man from the back of the audience.

Rendle received his share of the hoots and interruptions during his address, not least when he claimed that the NDP government "didn't invent the monthly supplement" system for senior citizens with its Mincome program.

This, he said, was only an extension of a program which had existed under the Socred administration — at which one questioner demanded to know how many elderly British Columbians had received the original supplement.

Rendle said Socred leader Bill Bennett would immediately increase the Mincome allowance to $265 monthly if elected.

"I thought you weren't supposed to buy votes," yelled a young man from the back of the audience.

Bawlf had an easier time in his speech. He recounted his achievements as an alderman, and pledged that the Socreds would establish a provincial heritage trust to protect old buildings.

Bawlf said an efficient park-and-ride service for civil servants, to reduce downtown traffic congestion, would be swiftly introduced if his party came to power. And he promised action to ensure the provincial government, the "biggest developer" in Victoria with more than 100 acres of holdings, pays full property taxes.

Bawlf was kept busy during the question period. One person wanted to know how he could talk about the need for senior citizens' housing downtown when he was renovating so much of the area for commercial use rather than residential.

He replied that government financing doesn't offer sufficient incentive for developers to provide residential accommodation, and the only feasible alternative is to turn to commercial projects.

Liberal incumbent David Anderson gave so much "credit" to Premier Barrett's regime for various social programs and legislative reforms that at times he could have been mistaken for an NDP candidate.

He heaped scorn on the "fear tactics" which he said the Social Credit party were using in the current campaign. The audience applauded loudly when he said Bennett had enunciated a 10-point platform including eight proposals for increased expenditure, "and then he comes on and tells us he is going to cut the budget."

Anderson said Barrett deserves to have his majority "cut right back," and by electing Liberals in the Victoria riding voters would help to deny seats to Bennett, a man who "so obviously doesn't deserve any more."

His fellow-Liberal, Terry O'Grady, discounted the NDP presence as any significant factor in the Victoria riding — in the 1972 election, he said, the party drew only about 20 per cent of the total votes cast — and said the only real contest here is between the Liberals and the Socreds.

O'Grady's flamboyant style went over well with the crowd, and the laughs and interruptions dampened it not at all.

"Do you want Social Credit representation or have you had enough of that?" he asked. "I ask you to support us."

"No way," hooted many of the listeners.

Pleaded O'Grady: "Will you not vote for us, just a few votes?"

"No," they chorused.

NDP candidates Charles Barber and Gordon Hanson when they listed the NDP government's achievements, including the establishment of community resource boards and the introduction of collective bargaining for the province's 35,000 civil servants.

The latter, said Hanson, had replaced a 20-year denial of rights for government employees, "a paternalistic, miserly system of collective begging."

Conservative candidates Peter Stanley and Lloyd Burdon both laid stress on the party's "positive" approach which concentrates on issues and avoids mud-slinging.

Independents Bill Scott and Owen Kavanagh also spoke.

Among Scott's suggestions was the proposal that schools grow their own vegetables. Kavanagh, a nurse at Victoria General hospital, expressed concern about the shortage of hospital beds in the Victoria area.

Two Escapers May Seek Guns Mounties Warn

DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

Two men who escaped from William Head prison Wednesday are considered dangerous and will probably try to get weapons, RCMP in Colwood warned today.

John Edward Wonnacott, 28, and Glen John Glowa, 34, went missing sometime between the 4:30 p.m. and 10 p.m. head counts at the federal medium security institution.

Police believe the pair may have stolen a 1973 white Volvo from a residence near the prison and an all-points bulletin has been issued.

Wonnacott was serving 11 years, six months for three counts of armed robbery and one count of assault causing bodily harm and would have been eligible for parole the end of 1979. He was sentenced in New Westminster Jan. 31, 1972, and transferred to William Head within the past year.

Glowa was serving 15 years for four counts of robbery, being sentenced in Vancouver in November 1970. He was transferred to William Head from Matsqui only six weeks ago. His parole date was July, 1982.

Glowa is described as five feet 10 inches, 160 pounds, blonde hair, blue eyes, with tattoos of "love" on his left hand, a spider on the back of his left hand, and an eagle on his right forearm. When last seen he was wearing blue jeans, white shirt and running shoes.

Prison officials said he displays an "effeminate manner" and added he had recently investigated the possibilities of undergoing a sex change but had been rebuffed by the authorities.

"He was told," said one official, "that if he wanted to change his sex he would have to do it on his own time and not the government's."

William Head director John Mulroney said Wonnacott had been released from prison on temporary pass 13 times, and with the exception of one time when he went to his grandfather's funeral in Victoria, always under escort.

On the other hand, Mulroney said, Glowa had never been given a temporary pass.

Mulroney said there was a five-and-a-half hour interval between head checks Wednesday because a number of the inmates were involved in a variety of social programs in the institution that night. However, he noted neither Glowa nor Wonnacott participated in any of the programs.

Police believe the two men may have stolen a white Volvo, licence nuumber LNE 432, parked in front of 664 Lombard, owned by Victoria realtor William Holmes. The residence overlooks the prison about a mile away.

Mrs. Holmes said her husband drove home at about 9 p.m. Wednesday and they retired at about 11 p.m. Although there were six persons in the house no one heard a sound through the night.

She said a dog kept inside usually barks whenever anyone approaches the residence.

She said she discovered the car missing at 7 a.m. today, and when her son Patrick went outside he found a red and white plastic flashlight on the driveway, apparently dropped by the thief or thieves.

Store to Hide Smut Mags

A Colwood corner store owner said today he will put "smut" magazines beyond children's reach by hiding them behind the cashier's counter.

Mac's Convenience Store operator Al Chartrand made the commitment today in response to a concerted parent's movement against the girlie magazines, led by Shirley Wilde. But other store operators were not at definite.

Chartrand said the sexual publications carried in his store are now located on two racks by the till, a location off-limits to all children that visit the store.

"But if parents are serious enough to boycott the store, because of that location, I'll put them behind the counter."

Parents are protesting that children can't walk into a grocery store, pharmacy or convenience store in the Colwood-Langford area "without tripping over a smut counter on the way to groceries and other items."

They want the display of magazine covers with scantily-clad bodies hidden from a child's view, and although a sampling of store owners in the area agree with the philosophy of the move, they are baffled.

Joe Despot, of Langford Pharmacy, says the sales of magazines like Playboy indicate there are a great number of the magazines in many homes.

He said his staff has decided of its own accord not to sell particularly "rank" issues of some magazines, and they've been taken off the display racks.

But Despot is reluctant to say he'll hide the magazines. Now they are located on a rack within a child's range.

"I don't know — there are already regulations about these things and if our own government's can't regulate them further . . . I just don't know. Where do you draw the line?"

Colwood Pharmacy owner Orvall Roer is uncertain.

Girlie magazines, he said are included in a continuous row of magazines, in his store.

"I don't agree that the material should be hidden; that seems really sneaky way to solve the problem, but on the other hand I agree children shouldn't see them."

There are some children who look at the magazines, anyway, he said.

Crown Witness Admits Stealing Woodward's Groceries

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Staff

A key witness for the Crown in an armed robbery case in county court admitted under cross-examination Wednesday that he stole bulk groceries from Woodward's where he was a construction worker earlier this year.

Anthony Vogelaar, 4520 Vantreight, was called to testify in the case against Rodney Trevor Johnson, 24, of 1166 Summit, accused of armed robbery involving a wallet and contents from Maurice Dutour of Surrey.

Court was told earlier that the three men and a fourth person, Dan McIsaac, were driving in a truck from a cabaret in the early hours of April 13. Dutour said Johnson was holding a starting pistol while McIsaac was searching him for his wallet while the truck was stopped.

Vogelaar said he used his truck to take the stolen groceries to Johnson's house. He said he did this with Johnson and McIsaac but couldn't recall whose idea it was.

Asked why he didn't take the groceries to his house, he said "it wasn't all mine for one thing."

Your mother would have seen it, asked Johnson's lawyer, Doug Christie.

Vogelaar said he wasn't charged with the groceries theft and hasn't been convicted of a criminal offence.

Have you ever stolen anything else, asked Christie.

Prosecutor Barry Mah Ming objected, but Judge Peter Millward over-ruled him.

Vogelaar then said he objected to answering.

The judge, who had earlier advised Vogelaar of his rights under the Canada Evidence Act which prevents a person from self-incrimination, then ordered the witness to answer the question.

Mah Ming interjected again, saying the witness was being asked a legal opinion because theft is a legal question.

The judge again ruled it was an appropriate question and directed the witness to answer.

"In my entire life, yes, I have stolen other things," replied Vogelaar.

He denied it was his intention to steal from Dutour and that he expressed that intention to Johnson.

"It was your idea and McIsaac's idea to rob this man?" asked Christie.

"No sir, it was not my idea. I do not know whose idea it was."

In his testimony before cross-examination, Vogelaar said he picked up Johnson and McIsaac at 1166 Summit and they went to the King's Hotel pub and then the Century Inn pub where they met Dutour.

At closing time, they went to Sappho's cabaret.

He said he saw Dutour beside the truck with Johnson and McIsaac on either side and in front of him.

Vogelaar asked what was going on but no one said anything. He put his hand on either Johnson's or McIsaac's shoulder and Johnson turned around and told him to get in the truck.

"I saw a black gun and what looked like a white handle," he said.

He demonstrated in court how it was held to show that without a fist being closed over the small handle the white side could be seen.

Vogelaar said he had seen a gun like the one in court at Johnson's house two or three days earlier and Johnson had fired it.

He testified Johnson and McIsaac told him to get into the truck and go, leaving Dutour beside the road.

McIsaac opened a wallet in the truck and Vogelaar said he saw a $20 bill and a credit card.

The other two men said "it's not all here. They were excited. Something was mentioned that the credit card was dynamite, something to that effect."

While driving to Johnson's house, Johnson said "something to the effect you get a third, or something, and I said I don't know."

Vogelaar said he "deduced" it was Dutour's wallet but he wasn't sure.

The jury trial continued today.

PROSECUTOR COUGHS UP

A cough drop caused some tart comment in county court Wednesday.

What did you just give the witness, asked Doug Christie, counsel for Rodney Trevor Johnson, 24, of 1166 Summit, accused of armed robbery.

A cough drop, replied Mah Ming, adding that Vogelaar's throat was parched and he was coughing.

"That's the first time I've seen a prosecutor offer candy to a witness," said Christie.

"Would you like one, Mr. Christie," replied Mah Ming.

Pratte Quits

Times News Services

MONTREAL — Yves Pratte resigned today as chairman of Air Canada in the face of what he called "unprecedented charges of alleged incompetence and inefficiency."

Pratte, 50, chairman since December, 1968, outlined his reasons for quitting in a letter to Transport Minister Otto Lang.

In the letter, Pratte said the airline was showing financial improvement in the past year, but "in contrast during the same period, the senior management group of Air Canada has been subjected in Parliament to unprecedented charges of alleged incompetence and inefficiency.

"These attacks ... have been given some aura of credibility by the nature of the response from the government and more especially, by the establishment of the Estey Commission, which for many of us was a clear indication that the government had lost confidence in my stewardship of the airline."

The commission had uncovered "no significant fact" not already known to the government or for which "corrective action had not already been initiated by the company," he claimed.

While admitting the airline had made mistakes, Pratte said the government could have used "more effective and less destructive means to resolve the situation."

In one passage, Pratte apparently anticipated possible criticism in the forthcoming Estey report.

"Whatever the views of the commission, whether they have any validity or not and quite irrespective of the manner in which they might have been arrived at, they are likely to be accorded the degree of infallibility and finality of a judicial pronouncement," Pratte said.

Pratte, a lawyer and longtime friend of Prime Minister Trudeau, said his resignation was effective Monday, Dec. 1.

An Air Canada spokesman said that until a successor is named, his duties will be assumed by the chairman of Canadian National Railways, Air Canada's parent company.

SKY SHOP PROBE DISCUSSED

RCMP Visit Marchand

OTTAWA (CP) — The RCMP today visited the office of cabinet minister Jean Marchand to talk about the so-called Sky Shops affair but what upset Mr. Marchand was that a reporter arrived ahead of the police.

And Prime Minister Trudeau didn't like it either. "I advised Mr. Marchand not to talk with the RCMP until I talked to the (RCMP) commissioner," Mr. Trudeau said as he entered the weekly Thursday meeting of cabinet.

Mr. Marchand, minister without portfolio, was ambushed by a group of reporters as he entered cabinet meeting today following reports that his office or his home had been raided by the RCMP.

The Mounties raided the parliamentary office of Senator Louis Giguere (L—Quebec) Nov. 7. Senator Giguere has said he made a $95,000 profit on a $5,000 investment in Sky Shop shares in 1972.

The RCMP came to Mr. Marchand's office at 9 a.m EST today—after making an appointment—and the minister said "we discussed the procedure" of an inquiry. He said he felt the visit was justified because when Senator Giguere became involved in the shares of the firm, Mr. Marchand headed the Quebec wing of the Liberal party.

"I told them I was willing to co-operate and give them all the documents I had." The police did not take any papers with them, he said.

"But what I object to is being received by a reporter at 8 a.m.," said Mr. Marchand. "Where is it (the information) coming from?"

CBC reporter John Drewery was the reporter involved and he said he approached the minister at breakfast to ask about a rumor that his office or home had been, or was to be, raided. "And it was during this conversation that Mr. Marchand told me the RCMP would be coming to his office at nine o'clock."

The early rumors around Ottawa also had Health Minister Marc Lalonde's office involved. But Mr Lalonde said this wasn't true. The RCMP hadn't been at his office nor had they asked to see him.

Solicitor-General Warren Allmand appeared annoyed when approached by reporters who were waiting for Mr. Marchand. Asked whether he knew anything about "raids," Mr Allmand said "If I did, I wouldn't tell you. I have nothing to say."

Mr. Marchand said the conversation with the RCMP was about the procedure to be followed in the investigation. "They were going to talk with the commissioner about it."

And he added, "They (the RCMP) visited other ministers and no one (in the press) was tipped off."

$100,000 Fraud Cited

Times News Services

MONTREAL — A $100,000 sale of seven mobile homes to the consortium building the Olympic village led to a police investigation of alleged kickbacks involving the project, according to the Gazette.

"We are investigating what appears to be the sale of seven mobile homes for exorbitant prices," the newspaper quotes a police source as saying.

The mobile homes have been used as on-site offices by the developers, said the source close to the combined squad of RCMP and Quebec Provincial Police officers who carried out nearly 60 raids Tuesday and Wednesday on the homes and offices of key officials associated with Terrasses Zarolega, the consortium building the Olympic village project.

Police confirmed today they have completed a series of raids in connection with possible fraudulent activities in the construction of the Olympic village.

A spokesman said there was "no question for the moment" of bringing formal charges.

RANSOM NOTE . . . AND FINGER

Times News Services

HELSINBORG, Sweden — The parents of a missing woman received a severed finger and a ransom demand for 325,000 kroner (about $78,000) Wednesday, police said.

The 27-year-old victim, daughter of a wealthy farmer in the southwestern city of Helsingborg, was last seen at her dentist's office Tuesday afternoon.

On Wednesday, police said, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bertil Ollson, received a packet containing the index finger.

"The finger matches the general blood group of the girl, Louise Marrstad," a police spokesman said. "The prints have now been sent to the criminal laboratory in Stockholm for examination."

Scare Tactics Blamed In Liberal Shortfalls

VANCOUVER (CP) — The president of the B.C. Liberal party said Wednesday that the Liberals will be unable to contest some ridings in the Dec. 11 provincial election because of what he called "intimidation tactics" by Social Credit supporters.

Pat Graham said "we had to give up nomination attempts in Kootenay Tuesday night after our fifth nominee was pressured out."

"The same thing happened earlier to the Conservatives there," he said.

"Blackmail and intimidation tactics are in use in other interior ridings as well. We may not be able to field candidates in Shuswap, Nelson-Creston, Cariboo and Peace River South."

Graham said his party's last potential candidate for the Kootenay riding was told by "a representative of the business community" that if he ran in the election, his new insurance business would be bankrupt within three months.

"This kind of fear campaign by Socreds and their backers, afraid the anti-NDP vote will split, is more widespread than many people realize," Graham said.

"In effect, both Liberal and Conservative supporters in some ridings are being disenfranchised by threats of retaliation and even violence. You can't be too hard on a man who is simply afraid to risk the livelihood of himself and his family."

CANADA SPENDING $1B FOR PLANES

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Minister James Richardson announced today that Canada will spend almost $1 billion to acquire a fleet of new patrol planes from Lockheed Aircraft Corp. of the United States.

The minister also said the government will provide modern tanks for the land forces in Europe.

Beginning in 1977 defence capital expenditures will be allowed to increase 12 per cent a year for the next five years, he said.

The government is buying the more expensive of two models proposed by Lockheed. The planes will have an elaborate electronics package.

Provinces Balk At Inflation Talks

Times News Services

OTTAWA — The federal provincial finance ministers' conference ended Wednesday without reaching accord on the form federal-provincial agreements to fight inflation will take.

Ontario Finance Minister Darcy McKeough said "all the provinces want to see the regulations which will accompany the anti-inflation bill before they sign on the dotted line."

One of the major stumbling blocks to an agreement appeared to be the term of such agreements. Several provinces indicated they would be willing to go along with the program for a year or 18 months, but were unwilling to agree to the three years the federal government wants.

Another area of disagreement centred on whether the provincial public services would come under federal or provincial regulation.

Finance Minister Donald Macdonald said "we would prefer to have the provincial public sectors under federal jurisdiction to insure as much national uniformity as possible."

Despite the lack of general agreement, Macdonald said some agreements were reached on specific issues.

The provinces agreed they would co-operate fully with the federal Anti-Inflation Board in monitoring provincial marketing boards, Macdonald said.

There was also a general agreement that each province should have some form of rent controls, he said.

Agreement was also reached that it will be up to the federal government to determine whether there will be a surtax or excessive increases in professional incomes, he noted.

Postal Highway Service For 35 Island Centres

The post office has instituted a highway service on Vancouver Island which will carry mail between the 35 small non-union post offices still open during the nationwide postal strike.

A letter mailed at one of the small offices, such as Brentwood on the Saanich Peninsula, will be delivered to another small office, such as Comox, where it can be picked up or sent out on a rural route.

Letters can also be sent from the small offices to the post offices in Duncan and Courtenay where letter carriers are on the job because enough postal workers have defied union policy and returned to work.

Letters are still not being delivered either to or from the Victoria office, although there are now 13 postal workers sorting mail.

Post offices on Vancouver which are not open include: Victoria, Sidney, Ladysmith, Nanaimo, Port Alberni, Campbell River and Port Hardy.

Meanwhile, the waiting game continued in Ottawa today as both sides in the dispute reviewed their positions on wage clauses and refused comment on when formal bargaining might resume.

Both union and post office spokesmen said behind-the-scenes manoeuvring still was going on in an attempt to bring the two parties back to the bargaining table.

NEW B.C. PARK

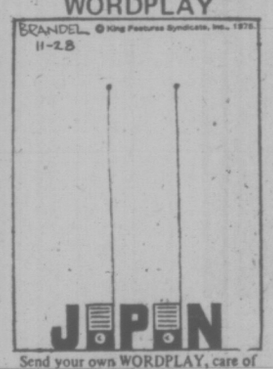

The provincial government today announced creation of the largest park in 36 years—the 1.66 million-acre wilderness area on Spatsizi Plateau in northwestern B.C.

Lands, Forests and Water Resources Minister Bob Williams and Recreation and Conservation Minister Jack Radford said the park will be B.C.'s second largest, next to Tweedsmuir Park.

Spatsizi is located about 200 miles north of Smithers east of B.C. Railway right-of-way and has been set aside largely to protect its wildlife habitat.

In the centre of the plateau is 82,000 acres to be known as Gladys Lake Ecological Reserve, which was announced at the same time.

SWEET PUZZLE

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police were investigating Wednesday the disappearance of 288,000 candy bars worth more than $40,000. Most Retired Canadians Below Poverty Line

OTTAWA (CP) — More than half of retired Canadians live below the poverty line, says a report on retirement compiled by the Canadian Council on Social Development.

The council, an independent organization which defines poverty as an annual income of $7,028 or lower for a family of four, suggests that better government pension benefits are the best answer to the problem.

Private pension plans are generally inadequate and existing retirement policies reflect a drift — "a sustained ad hocery" — at a time when the proportion of retired citizens is growing, the report argues.

"Over one-half of all those over 65 have incomes which are regarded as below the poverty line, and are eligible for some assistance through the federal guaranteed income supplement scheme.

"The obvious message is that Canadians lack adequate income security for their retirement years."

The report says benefits available through the Canada and Quebec pension plans have been deliberately held down to allow private pensions to flourish.

"It has been assumed that the private pension system is capable of working effectively . . . Private pension schemes have not provided adequate pensions."

As recently as 1970, the last year of complete statistics, "only 40 per cent of the work force was covered by private pensions."

Of 2.8 million persons covered, 1.8 million were employed by government or crown corporations.

"In other words, almost 70 per cent of those employed by private companies are not receiving coverage."

"As each layer has been found inadequate, a further layer has been added —only in its turn to be found inadequate."

The system now has six layers, it says — private pensions, personal savings, government old-age pensions, the Canada and Quebec pension plans, federal old-age pension supplements and provincial supplements.

The Canada and Quebec plans should be given the central role in the over-all pension system, it argues. They are popular, straightforward, universal, portable, secure, looked upon as faithful friends by many workers, and have the "tremendous advantage" of being indexed upward with the cost of living, the report says.
